Wildwood Detour Will Remain Despite Protest

Despite protests from a number of Wildwood Road residents, Elk Grove Village officials this week indicated the village's new traffic plan for the northwest portion of the village would probably remain in effect until the closed section of Arlington Heights Road is opened to traffic.

Twelve residents of Wildwood attended the village board meeting Tuesday night to protest the recently-instituted road plan, which has resulted in increased use of Wildwood between Higgins and Landmeier roads.

The residents brought petitions signed by a number of Wildwood homeowners and urged the board to take action to stop the heavy use of the road.

The residents noted they had counted as many as 250 cars using the street in a 15-minute time span. "The street was not made for this," one man said.

THE RESIDENTS argued that extra traffic control which had been promised had not been provided and the street has become impossible for children to cross. The street, which traffic has been encouraged to use, is really no wider or more capable of handling heavy traffic than any other residential street, they argued.

Village Mgr. Charles Willis admitted there were many problems with the road plan but said unless a better one could be suggested it would remain in effect until Arlington Heights Road is opened between Higgins and Biesterfeld Road. There is some chance, Willis said, that two lanes of the Arlington Heights Road could be opened as early as the middle of July, six weeks earlier than the expected Sept. 1 completion date.

Trustee Ed Kenna noted the village's traffic plan was designed merely to keep through traffic off residential streets and to consolidate the traffic in the residential area on Wildwood where it could be well regulated.

"If we took down all the signs, you'd be in a lot worse shape," Kenna told the protestors who urged elimination of signs which have encouraged use of Wildwood.

POLICE LT. William Kohnke answered criticism that the police department was not enforcing stop signs put up on the street to slow traffic down. He noted the department has only a limited number of men on duty at any one time and is concentrating the men in the north area.

The village board later approved ordinances for two four-way stop signs on Lively Boulevard, which through traffic has been encouraged to use instead of Wildwood. The stop signs are to go at Lively's intersections with Landmeier and Oakton Street. The Lively-Landmeier sign was approved earlier by the county.

Hearing On Rape Case Continued Until July 12

The case of an Elk Grove Village man charged with raping a village woman was continued yesterday to July 12.

A preliminary hearing for Michael Maroney, 24, of 165 Crest Ave., was rescheduled for that date in Circuit Court in the village. Maroney was arrested May 26 at his home and charged with the rape of a 20-year-old woman.

Police said the woman was forced into Applesseed Park at knife-point May 20 and attacked while she walked home from a movie. The rape was the first ever reported in the village.

Following the attack, police put together a composite drawing of the attacker, based on the victim's description. Police said they arrested Maroney after the victim saw, and identified him as her attacker.

Maroney, who works as a warehouseman in the village, is currently free on $10,000 bond.

Four Arrested; 35 Pounds Of Marijuana Seized

'Raid Cuts Drug Flow Here'

Police believe the supply of illegal narcotics in the Northwest suburban area was severely cut with Tuesday's raid in Prospect Heights, which netted 35 pounds of marijuana.

According to Lt. Errol Levy of the Cook County Sheriff's Police, undercover investigators who made the raid said the house, at 505 W. Camp McDonald, was the headquarters for a major north suburban wholesale drug ring.

"Drugs will be harder to get in this area without a doubt," Levy said. He said police believe narcotics distributed by the ring were sold primarily to persons under 30 in Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Des Plaines, Buffalo Grove and Wheeling.

There also were four arrests made by the agents of the Metropolitan Enforcement Group (MEG), a cooperative drug investigation force involving sheriff's police and about 20 north suburban police departments.

IN ADDITION TO the marijuana, Levy said the MEG agents also uncovered barbiturates, amphetamines, a hallucinogen called THC and a small quantity of hashish. Agents entered the house about 9 p.m. with search warrants and, according to Levy, the four suspects were dividing bricks of marijuana and packaging it for sale.

Arrested were Jerry Timm, 24, of that address; William E. Orce, 24, and Claire L. Orce, 20, of 19 N. Dryden St., Arlington Heights; and Paul S. Gilman, 21, of 1216 Stratford, Arlington Heights. All were charged with possession of marijuana.

Timm was also charged with possession of controlled substances (amphetamines and barbiturates) and Orce, who police said had a .25-caliber automatic pistol, was charged with unlawful use of a weapon.

Levy said of the raid, in which $25,000 worth of drugs were seized: "We have just gotten one cog. They (MEG officers) have been tracing the thing right down the line."

HE ADDED that drugs will still be available in the area but he said "one of the major sources" has been shut down with the raid.

It is believed that MEG agents had the house under surveillance for some time, but Levy said details of the raid were being held to preserve MEG's effectiveness as an undercover force.

A Niles police sergeant said Gilman is a student, Orce is an auto mechanic and his wife, a waitress. It is unknown if Timm was employed. The men were released on $5,000 bond and the woman on $1,000 bond yesterday.

Officials Defend Policemen

Elk Grove Village officials have joined Police Chief Harry Jenkins in defending five village police officers involved in the Waldemar R. Moosmann police brutality suit.

The village prepared a formal statement on the case late Tuesday after Circuit Court Judge Nicholas Bua ruled in favor of Moosmann, 510 Brynham Circle, and awarded him $15,000 in damages. Bua ruled lie detector tests substantiated Moosmann's charges that he was struck and injured by Patrolman Robert Canary in an incident in January, 1968.

The village's statement expressed regret that Bua ruled against the village noting that an earlier lie detector test had substantiated the officers' statements that they did not strike Moosmann. "Unfortunately," the statement read, "Judge Bua did not have benefit of those results" because an agreement stipulated only the tests by the Chicago firm of John E. Reed & Associates would be considered.

The agreement, made between attorneys for Moosmann and the village, resolved Moosmann's $1 million suit against the village. It called for $15,000 in damages to be awarded to Moosmann if lie detector tests proved his charges true.

THE VILLAGE'S statement said the varying results of the two lie detector tests were apparently accounted for by the "individual opinions of professional polygraph operators."

Village Mgr. Charles Willis reiterated Jenkins' statement that no disciplinary action would be taken against any of the officers involved. Besides Canary, those charged were Sergeants William Carroll and Rufus Springate and Patrolmen Jon Sharpenter and William Lancaster. All are still with the department.

Speaking for the village board, Trustee Ron Chernick said the board's only statement would be: "We believe our policemen."

Moosmann alleged police dragged him out of bed, falsely imprisoned him and injured his back in an incident which stemmed from a reported family disturbance in his home. His original suit, filed in January, 1968, asked $250,000 damages on four of six counts of police brutality.

Bua ruled that lie detector tests indicated Moosmann's statements were true and Canary's false.

Girl Escapes Serious Injury

A 19-year-old Elk Grove Village girl escaped serious injury yesterday but her car was badly damaged in an accident at Central and Busse roads in Mount Prospect.

Deborah L. Svoboda, 249 Greenbrier, was treated for facial cuts and released from the hospital, according to Jack Ryon, spokesman for Northwest Community Hospital.

Mount Prospect police said the accident took place about 12:15 p.m. when the car skidded on wet pavement and hit the steel guidewire of a utility pole. Miss Svoboda had applied her brakes when the light changed; she had been traveling east on Central at the time.

Jack L. Kemmerly, President of Jack L. Kemmerly Real Estate, Inc., announced this past week that his firm has participated in more sales, listed more properties and had a higher gross volume since January 1st than any other firm in MAP, Multiple Listing Service. Map, Multiple Listing Service is made up of 81 offices and nearly 1000 salespeople.

Kemmerly attributes his firm's success to the fact that he has more offices (8) in MAP, Multiple Listing Service than any other organization and his offices are strategically located within the immediate trading area. He enjoys full cooperation from all firms in MAP. Due to their greater knowledge of real estate, the large number of licensed brokers in the Kemmerly Organization have a highly professional outlook in their representation of both buyer and seller.

To Be Located On Algonquin Road Near Holiday Inn

by KEN KOZAK

A proposal to build a $20 million Hilton-managed motel and adjacent office complex on Algonquin Road near the Holiday Inn was revealed to the Rolling Meadows City Council Tuesday.

Kenneth Tucker, president of Kenroy developers, told the council his firm wants to build a 300-room motor hotel and three high-rise office buildings on the 19.7 acre site formerly known as the Royal Coach property.

The land is bordered by the Northwest Tollway to the south, Rte. 53 to the west, Algonquin Road to the north and the Holiday Inn to the east.

Tucker told the council he hopes to have financing for the project arranged in 60 days, and working architectural drawings ready by September or October.

IF THIS SCHEDULE is maintained, he said "the hotel could break ground this year and open within 13 months."

Tucker and several associates, including architects and engineers, outlined a three-phase program for development, beginning with the bi-leveled motel and one 10-story office building, followed by the second 10-story building in phase two, and concluding with the third office building, which is planned to be 20 stories high, but could be smaller, according to Tucker.

The three office structures will contain a total of 600,000 square feet of space, according to existing plans. They will be arranged in what Tucker called a tripod configuration, and connected by a two-story rotunda that will serve as a main entryway and may house a restaurant, and will be part of phase one.

The hotel will be built in different levels. The main tower will be nine stories high and will contain 260 rooms. A wing will be built in a two-story, inn style, and will house special guest rooms and suites.

AN INDOOR-OUTDOOR swimming pool, recreational area and restaurant and meeting facilities are also planned. The hotel will be connected to one of the office towers by a walkway.

The office building lobbies will be recessed below the upper part of the towers. The lobbies of the concrete structures will be enclosed in bronze-color reflecting glass and the upper stories will be enclosed in gold-color reflecting glass.

The appearance of the hotel will be similar, Tucker said.

Tucker said Kenroy has already negotiated a management agreement with the Hilton chain that provides for them to assume complete operation of the hotel and its facilities.

The agreement, however, is subject to certain conditions, he said. Those conditions are acceptance of the project by the city, and acceptance of the development plans by Hilton.

THE SITE of the development is the old Royal Coach Inn property that was abandoned last year when the previous developers went bankrupt.

Beck and Associates of Dallas, Tex., had planned a 1,000-room hotel but went bankrupt. The property was taken over by the Downtowner Motor Lodge Co. in October, 1970, and subsequently sold to Kenroy about a year ago.

The property has been called the most valuable piece of land in the city because the Royal Coach Inn developers had put $250,000 worth of utilities in on the tract.

Kenroy plans to use those water and storm and sanitation sewer utilities and improve on them where necessary.

THE PROPERTY is already zoned for hotel or motel use, but Kenroy will have to receive a variation from the city's zoning code in order to build high-rise structures.

The presentation to the city council Tuesday was unusual because the developers have not yet appeared before the city plan commission, the normal first step in seeking approval for a planned unit development. Kenroy representatives had been meeting privately with Mayor Roland Meyer and fire and building officials to determine some of the problem areas in meeting city fire and building codes.

Meyer said the special appearance Tuesday was "unusual, but I felt it was something that should come to the council for aldermen's questions before it goes to the plan commission."

No opposition to the project was registered Tuesday by councilmen. A hearing before the plan commission may be held July 5.

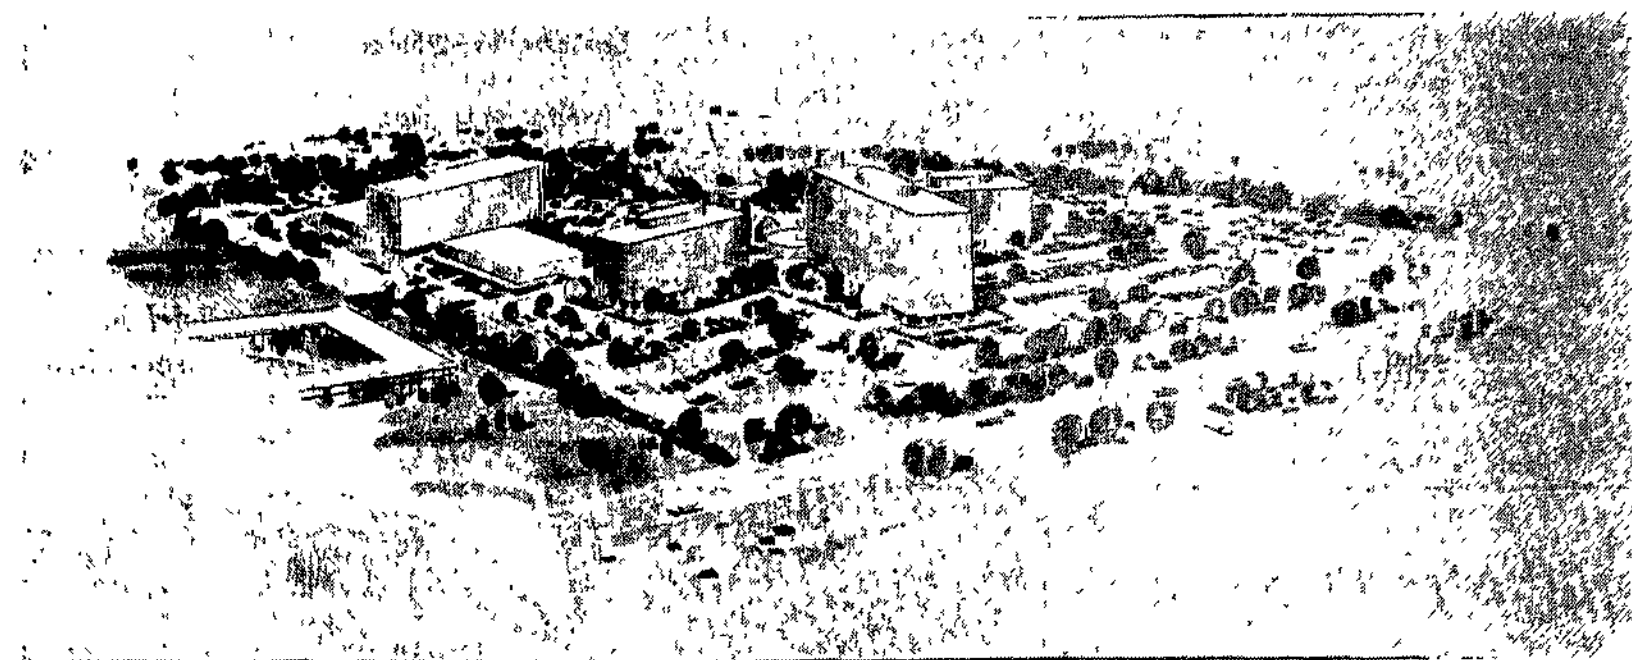

Bike Races Set In Elk Grove

Five bicycle road races — including a 54-mile main event — will be held Sunday in Elk Grove Village.

Sponsored by the Windy City Wheelmen, the races will begin at noon in the Cortez Industrial Park. A 1.8-mile race course has been set up on industrial park streets. The course begins at Busse Road and Touhy Avenue and ends on Touhy just west of Busse.

The final race of the afternoon will be a 54-mile race for senior men. Windy City spokesmen say top riders from the Midwest will be on hand for the race.

Other races scheduled include a one-mile midjet classification race, a nine-mile intermediate race, a 5.4-mile girls' race and an 18-mile junior race. All races are sanctioned by the Amateur Bicycle League of America.

AN ARTIST'S DRAWING gives an overview of the planned Kenroy development proposed for a 20-acre tract east of Rte. 53 on Algonquin Road in

'Good Hotels Needed Here'

In making his presentation to the Rolling Meadows city council Tuesday regarding his firm's proposed hotel development at Algonquin Road and Rte. 53, Kenroy president Ken Tucker stressed what he called a growing need for travel accommodations in this area.

"Studies regarding the demand (for hotel facilities) in this area say that we should have built this a year ago," Tucker told the aldermen. "There is a tremendous demand for good hotel facilities in this area."

The area is now served primarily by four major motor hotels. Holiday Inns in Rolling Meadows and Elk Grove Village, Howard Johnson's in Palatine and the Arlington Park Towers in Arlington Heights.

A market analysis compiled last year by the firm of Lavenhol, Krekstein, Horwath and Horwath says that these four facilities have 963 rooms available for rental.

KENROY PLANS to build a 300-room hotel to be managed by the Hilton chain. The plans also include the possibility of future expansion to 500 rooms.

The Kenroy project, plus a proposed Sheraton Inn in Schaumburg and a Holiday Inn in Itasca, give the area a predictable base of 1,628 rooms.

The four major motor hotels are now operating at 73 per cent capacity combined. All but the Arlington Park Towers are, on the average, 80 per cent full. The Towers, according to the survey, averages 60 per cent of capacity.

Because of the low occupancy there and what Tucker called a very high break-even point, he predicted that the Towers would never be a good hotel venture.

THE RESEARCH firm's statistical model predicts that a Rolling Meadows Hilton could operate at a 94 per cent capacity by 1976. True occupancy figures would probably be lower, according to the survey, because of fluctuating occupancy trends during the week, expected new competition and other unpredictable economic factors.

Approximately 85 per cent of the business for the new hotel is expected to come from traveling businessmen. The proposed three-building office complex on the same site as the hotel is expected to provide a considerable part of the draw for those businessmen.

Paramedic Bill To Get Second Reading Today

The bill enabling specially trained firemen and ambulance attendants to render emergency treatment is expected to come before the Illinois House today for a second reading.

The bill, drafted by Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, and Rep. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect, was introduced into the House on Tuesday. It was passed last week by the Illinois Senate.

Schlickman said yesterday the bill ordinarily would have been assigned to the House Public Welfare Committee, but was not because the committee has no more hearings scheduled in this session of the General Assembly.

Instead, he said he will move today to advance the bill to a second reading on the floor without a committee hearing.

Suspension of the House rules allowing a second reading without committee hearings would require 89 votes, the same number necessary to pass a bill.

IF THE second reading is permitted, the third reading and voting on the bill would take place at a later date.

The bill has the support of Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie.

It is designed to allow paramedics to administer drugs and certain treatment under the supervision of a physician without fear of liability.

A network to provide this emergency care is being set up at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights to serve surrounding communities.

Special Education Scores In Assembly

Special education legislation scored one of the biggest victories in the Illinois General Assembly this session.

While a series of education bills died in committee or were defeated on the floor, the special education legislation soared through both houses.

John Wightman, director of the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization (NSSEO), attributes the bill's success to a "good parent lobby. They can get support 2,000 strong to the legislature within two hours."

Two bills in particular are expected to be a bonus to local schools. House Bill 4386 grants districts a state reimbursement of $2,000 per child if the district provides "extraordinary special education services for handicapped children."

DWYER SCHOOL for children with severe emotional problems falls into the classification of extraordinary services, according to Wightman. The school, located in Arlington Heights, is operated by a cooperative of eight school districts.

Dwyer School has had to rely heavily on local district funds, said Wightman. "The extra state money may allow us to admit more children in the Dwyer program."

The second bill, House Bill 4328, offers state reimbursement for special education programs extended over a full year. Wightman said he plans to recommend that Dwyer School and the Kirk Center, a school for the physically handicapped, be put on a 12-month schedule.

A pair of bills lowering the minimum age of children eligible for special education from 5 to 3 years has produced mixed reaction. House Bills 322 and 323 allows parents concerned about the development of a 3 or 4-year-old to take him to a district for testing. If the tests reveal the child has a problem, he will be placed in a special education class.

SOME SCHOOL officials are concerned the new legislation, effective July 1, will bring a flood of 3 and 4-year-olds to their door. To accommodate the influx, NSSEO has set aside two classes in an Arlington Heights school. The children will also be placed at Dwyer School and the Kirk Center.

Finally, House Bill 4156 grants $2,000 in tuition for every child who must attend a private special education facility. Local districts are already taking advantage of the grant, which was optional in the past.

GOP Gather For State Convention

by BOB LAHEY

Illinois Republicans will begin gathering in Rockford tomorrow for the 1972 state convention, which will convene at noon Saturday.

Committee meetings will begin at 11:30 a.m. tomorrow and others are scheduled for 9 a.m. Saturday. When the convention is convened, delegates from throughout the state will be asked to approve committee recommendations for the state party platform, at-large delegates to the national convention, presidential electors, University of Illinois trustee candidates, and other matters.

Approximately 70 delegates will represent the Northwest suburbs at the convention. Delegates from Schaumburg Township were reported here earlier. Following are the delegates which will represent the other townships in the Northwest suburbs —

Art Olsen of Prospect Heights; and Bill Kinkade of Buffalo Grove.

RAY C. DICKERSON, Illinois director of business and economic development, came to the defense of Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie when Ogilvie's Democratic election opponent accused the administration of giving a "325,000 windfall" to a California publisher for printing for a promotional booklet for the state.

Dickerson claimed the booklet was financed through revenue from advertisements sold by the publisher — for a total of $56,485, not the $250,000 claimed by Walker.

According to Dickerson, none of the expense of printing the booklet was charged to Illinois taxpayers. The "sole cost and expense" of publishing the book was borne by the publishing firm, he said.

Dickerson's two-page disclaimer was prepared and distributed to newspapers throughout the state by the Illinois Information Service, a state agency.

A LAWSUIT filed by the Illinois Agricultural Association in Cook County Circuit Court would require all tax collectors in Illinois to hold personal property taxes in escrow until the Supreme Court rules on the legality of the taxes.

Gov. Richard Ogilvie had already advised that personal property taxes be paid under protest, in hopes the Supreme Court would uphold the 1971 law eliminating the tax.

The lawsuit by the IAA would make the protests unnecessary to collect rebates on the taxes. The IAA has secured farmers in each of the state's 102 counties as plaintiffs in the suit. Edwin M. Koop, 1020 N. Quentin Road, Palatine, represents Cook County.

SPECULATION THAT the appearance of Dan Walker and State's Attorney Edward V. Hanrahan at a dinner tomorrow night would be their last joint appearance before the November election was mistakenly attributed here to Thomas Flynn of Niles, Democratic candidate for state senator, who will host the dinner.

Various campaign organizers have reported a reluctance on the part of both Walker and Hanrahan aides to schedule appearances at the same time and place.

Flynn told us, however, he believed the appearance of the two at his dinner would mark the first joint appearance since Mayor Daley's organization dinner several weeks ago — not the last of the campaign.

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

"To finesse or not to finesse, that is the question" soliloquized Hamlet. "Verily, Polonius had said that a finesse is a 50 per cent chance while a suit will break 3-3 but 36 per cent of the time."

Then Hamlet went right up with dummy's ace of spades. His bidding had shown three aces so it was evident that Guiltendern, sitting West, would not lead away from a king at trick one. Hence the finesse would be hopeless.

The ace play would win if clubs broke 3-3 or if the king of spades was in the same hand that held the long clubs.

He played a couple of rounds of trumps, cashed his ace and king of diamonds and ran the rest of the trumps. The first discard from dummy was the queen of spades; the second the last diamond.

Then he led a club to the king and a second club back to his ace. He had seen West discard three spades and finally the queen and 10 of diamonds on the trumps. It looked very much as if West had started with four clubs.

This knowledge might not do him any good but East dropped the nine and 10 on the first two clubs. This set up a finessing situation and while Hamlet had never heard of the principle of restricted choice he still finessed against the jack

Lightning Kills Worker, Injures Another At Site

One man was killed and another seriously injured when they were struck by lightning while working on a construction site in Palatine yesterday afternoon.

Pronounced dead on arrival at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights was Willie Smith, 501 Lake Forest Rd., Highwood.

Listed in serious condition was Gary Bellamy, 23, of 300 W. 40th St., Westmont. He was treated for shock and multiple injuries.

Palatine police said the two employees of Ben Pekin Co., Palatine, were working in a hole at the Baybrook apartment construction site on E. Palatine Road when they were hit by the lightning at 3:20 p.m.

Smith's body was taken to the Cook County Morgue.

THE TRAGEDY occurred during a turbulent thunderstorm that swept the area, triggering both power failures and localized flooding in traditional storm trouble spots.

The storm knocked out electrical power, in some cases for several hours, in at least six area towns.

Blackouts ranging from 45 minutes to several hours were reported in parts of Rolling Meadows, Palatine, Arlington Heights, Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates and Mount Prospect, according to Jack Stephens, a Commonwealth Edison Co. spokesman.

The northwest portion of Rolling Meadows and the west central section of Arlington Heights were knocked out by what Stephens called a "feeder lockout."

He said lightning hit a power line and tripped a fuse-like safety device in an Arlington Heights power substation, shorting out the line serving those areas.

Power lines were reported down in several towns, including three in Palatine, four in Hoffman Estates and two in Schaumburg.

MOST OF the service interruption occurred in two main power corridors, one through southwest Palatine, Hoffman Estates, Rolling Meadows and central Arlington Heights.

The other main area of disruption followed a path through southern Schaumburg and southwest Mount Prospect.

Most of the power interruptions occurred between 3:45 and 5:15 p.m., according to Stephens. He said an estimated 3,000 customers scattered around the area had electrical service interrupted by the storm.

The storm also contributed to a seven-car accident on Rte. 53 between North-west Highway and Euclid Street. Early police reports indicated there were no serious injuries.

Burglars Get TV, Gear Worth $630

Burglars broke into the home of an Elk Grove Village family over the weekend and escaped with property worth about $630.

Gayle Bantner, 752 Milbeck Ave., reported Monday the theft of a television set, a tape player, two radios, drugs and tapes from his home. Bantner said the burglary apparently occurred over the weekend while he was out of town.

Police said the burglars apparently gained entrance by breaking a window near a door lock.

The Doctor Says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Would you please help us with our problem. My husband is 46, weighs 140 pounds and is five feet six. He has a hernia in the lower abdomen. It is not painful and seems to be of recent origin. Does surgery seem the best correction and how permanent and limiting is the future? I read somewhere about injections. Are they safe? Is surgery under local anesthesia possible?

Dear Reader — If your husband does have the usual type of hernia in the lower abdomen, it is best corrected by surgery. Such a hernia really is a hole in the muscular wall of the abdomen where the cord of the testicle passes to the scrotum. This allows a loop of the intestine to slip out through the hole to form the hernia or swelling that you have noted.

The danger of not treating such a defect is that the loop of intestine may be caught outside of the abdomen cavity underneath the skin and strangulate. This can shut off the circulation and cause gangrene of the bowel loop and other problems. It is true that lots of people go a long time before having surgical correction but the hernia does not improve with time and the person's health does not improve with age. The usual type of hernia operation in the lower abdomen is a simple procedure and well tolerated by almost anyone except those with very severe health problems.

I would think any procedure such as injections would be most unsafe and unsuccessful.

You should talk to the doctor who does the surgery about what anesthesia is preferable. Some hernias in the lower abdomen can be repaired under spinal anesthesia. Some are done under local anesthesia. One surgeon in Los Angeles has his patients walk out of the operating room. This varies with the patient's condition, the type of hernia and what the surgeon and his team are used to doing for the best results. This really is not major surgery, but it is very important surgery.

Did you know the Black Death was back? One of the greatest scourges in the history of mankind . . . the Bubonic plague . . . has made a reappearance. Its sudden return appears to be related to the back-to-nature movement and particularly in the so-called hippie communities. Dr. Darwin L. Palmer in Albuquerque, N.M., has been studying "Black Death" in the Southwest. In a 1970 outbreak near Albuquerque there were 13 cases, the largest outbreak of the plague since 1924.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.) Please send your questions and comments to Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D., Padlock Publications, P. O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. While Dr. Lamb cannot answer individual letters, he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

Dr. Middleton: War Is Not Lost

by ROGER CAPELLINI

Despite receiving a major setback in the Criminal Court Tuesday, Des Plaines physician James G. Middleton said yesterday, "The war is not lost — not by a long ways."

The "war" the doctor refers to is his attempt to have his conviction on charges of aggravated battery and deviate sexual assault overturned.

An eight-man, four-woman jury found him guilty Feb. 3 of drugging one of his former woman patients and then committing a deviate sexual act to her. On Feb. 25 Judge Robert J. Downing sentenced the doctor to 5 to 10 years in prison. Dr. Middleton, 46, of 939 S. Elmhurst Rd., Des Plaines, has been allowed to remain free on $25,000 bond.

The doctor's latest attempt to win his freedom failed Tuesday when Judge Downing denied a defense motion which charged the prosecutor in the case, James Kavanaugh, knew some of the evidence used against the doctor was false.

In an exclusive interview with the Herald yesterday, Dr. Middleton said he and his lawyer, Sam Adam, are investigating the possibility of having the case changed to a different jurisdiction.

DR. MIDDLETON said Tuesday night he was "surprised" with the judge's finding that there is no evidence of any perjured testimony, nor any indication there has been a conspiracy working against the doctor.

Referring to that ruling, Dr. Middleton said yesterday, "That confirms my opinion this matter is being handled in a manner so biased it is impossible to obtain an unbiased judicial examination." He said for that reason, he will seek to have the case switched to a court outside Cook County.

The former CIA agent said he feels there may be some kind of political pressure on Judge Downing that may have "warped" his judicial judgment. The doctor said if that is the case it might be difficult to find any judge in Cook County who would not be subject to the same kind of pressure.

The doctor's request for a new trial was based on a late-evening or early-morning telephone call he received from Kavanaugh within hours of the sentencing. Dr. Middleton charged that during the conversation Kavanaugh admitted he knew Lynn Nelson, the state's key witness, had lied under oath. Kavanaugh also said, according to the doctor, that he knew there are no drugs which could have produced the effects Mrs. Nelson and other women described.

TESTIFYING TUESDAY, Kavanaugh admitted he made the call but insisted he never made the admissions the doctor alleged. Kavanaugh said he called the doctor because he was afraid the doctor would harm him or his family and therefore wanted to convince Dr. Middleton that he played no part in any such conspiracy.

Under questioning by Asst. State's Atty. Nicholas Motherway, Kavanaugh said he never had any knowledge or belief that the doctor was not guilty of the crimes, that there was any perjury or that the doctor's office had ever been "bugged."

Kavanaugh admitted he told Dr. Middleton he would meet with the doctor anywhere if the doctor would "admit his complicity and take the first step toward mental health."

While being cross-examined by Adam, Kavanaugh repeatedly said he tried, during the conversation, to convince the doctor he was guilty and get him to admit he was guilty.

Kavanaugh also told Judge Downing he learned during the first few minutes of the approximate three-hour conversation, that the doctor did not consider Kavanaugh a member of the alleged conspiracy. The judge then asked, "Why then did you continue to talk for so long?" Kavanaugh answered he wanted to convince the doctor of his guilt.

ADAM SAID, in his closing arguments, "This case just ain't right." Reviewing the entire series of events from the doctor's arrest through Tuesday, Adam said, "Any rational being might very well conclude a conspiracy is working against him. This is more than just coincidence. There's more to this than meets the eye."

The defense attorney labeled Kavanaugh's story "inane," and asked why, if Kavanaugh was so fearful of his life, didn't he go to the judge to have the doctor's bond revoked.

Adam charged that Kavanaugh really made the call because he knew the entire case was faulty and wanted to get an admission of guilt to get himself off the hook for prosecuting the case.

"He picked his time," Adam said, "when Dr. Middleton was at the worst moment in his life — when he had just been sentenced to 10 years in prison — in the dead of the night — when he would be most vulnerable to appeal and plead guilty to get himself a lighter sentence."

In closing, Motherway said, "I see everything pointing to the fact this man (Dr. Middleton) is mentally ill. He is a dangerous character. He is a man to be reckoned with and feared."

Motherway said Kavanaugh may have been ill-advised and indiscreet in placing the call, but added, "His only sin was being human and falling victim to his fears."

ADDRESSING HIS remarks to the doctor's allegations, Motherway said, "I'm not sure James Middleton is capable of giving truthful testimony. I'm not sure he didn't hear what he wanted to hear."

Before he ruled against the doctor Judge Downing called Kavanaugh's actions, "highly unusual procedure. It does not establish, per se, any grounds for legal relief, but it does establish improper, unprofessional conduct which brings the adversary system into disrepute."

Yesterday Dr. Middleton criticized Kavanaugh's testimony, saying he felt it impossible for Kavanaugh to claim on one hand he made the call out of fear for his family and on the other hand offer to meet with the doctor anywhere.

"It is equally incompatible to fear me and then continue to provoke me by trying to convince me of my guilt for several hours," the doctor said.

Although he was unhappy with the judge's ruling, Dr. Middleton said he believes Kavanaugh's testimony will benefit the doctor's case in the long run. "Yesterday gave us more ammunition for a reversal," he said. "Kavanaugh is now committed to the transcript of his testimony which makes him either a fool or a liar, and gives greater weight to our position."

The doctor said he still is confident he ultimately will be cleared of all charges against him.

Collecting Coins

by M. J. ...

When the auctioneer's hammer rapped for the last time during the sale of Armand Champa's famous rare and scarce coin collection last month, new record-breaking prices had been set for some already highly valued specimens of United States coins. The two-day sale surpassed all expectations in competitive floor bidding.

Of particular interest was an exciting moment during the disposition of United States gold specimens. The coin on the block was the beautiful and extremely rare (only 10 were ever struck) 1879 coined half $4 gold Stella, a gold composition struck as a pattern piece only in 1879 and 1880.

The first bid of $23,000 was submitted through the mail, and announced by the auctioneer. This prompted a floor bid of $24,000, and it was obvious that from there on the sky would be the limit.

The $24,000 offer was immediately followed by two offers of $26,000, $27,000 was bid from the floor only to be followed by a shout of $28,000. Just when everything was beginning to quiet down, an offer of $29,000 was made by a dealer who had traveled a very long distance just to acquire this individual piece. After two warnings at $29,000 the bidding closed on the $4 gold Stella, and an entirely new trend had been set in gold market values.

A SUPERB Uncirculated specimen of an 1876-CC (Carson City) 20 cent piece once owned by the noted composer Jerome Kern, brought an immediate floor bid of $24,000, without any urging from the auctioneer. Only 10,000 pieces of this particular date were struck in Carson City, and while this is only 5,000 less than the number struck in 1876 at Philadelphia, the difference of $23,800 in value may be attributed to most of the CC specimens being unaccounted for.

Information on this and all future sales to be conducted by the American Auction Association, may be obtained by writing Mr. James F. Ruddy, American Auction Association, Suite 810, 6922 Hollywood Boulevard, Hollywood, California 90028.

COLLECTORS OF the United States Numistamp Type Series will be happy to know the problems experienced in maintaining the extremely high relief associated with this medal have been corrected and the Type II 1860 Indian-head cent numistamp or Number 3 in a six-piece series is being delivered. This completes the United States Small Cent type series.

A new U.S. souvenir card honoring Belgium '72 (the international philatelic exposition) will be available for distribution in Brussels when the exposition opens June 24. The card will also be available in the United States after that date for $1 each, by mail, from Belgica Cards, Philatelic Sales Unit, Washington, D.C. 20006.

Three stamps are simulated on the card, each with a Belgian affinity. These are the flag of Belgium in the over-run nations series of 1947, the 1958 stamp which shows the U.S. pavilion at the Universal and International Exhibition in Brussels, and the Gen. George S. Patton Jr. commemorative of 1953 Belgium has issued a stamp honoring Patton.

The text of the card is a brief commemoration of the exhibition and a description of the three stamps and is printed in Flemish and French over the Postmaster General's signature.

If the cards are ordered separately from the above address, the usual service charge will be waived.

FIRST DAY COVER service is available from The Washington Stamp Exchange, Maplewood, N.J. 07040, engravers of Aircraft cachets. They will service U.S. and U.N. covers for you or sell you the cachets if you prefer to service them yourself.

Canadian covers on Rosecraft cachets are available serviced or unserviced from Rosecraft Covers Ltd., Box 402, Ottawa, Canada K1N 8V4.

U.S. and U.N. covers can be obtained from Airmaster, P.O. Box 7156, Louisville, Ky. 40207 either serviced or unserviced from Airmaster cachets.

Write to the individual dealers for prices.

OUR THANKS to Mount Prospect Postmaster Theodore Geocaris for some interesting information brought out in a recent U.S. Postal Service survey.

The survey found twice as many people add to their collections by buying stamps from post office than from hobby shops, stamp stores and dealers.

"The conclusion can be drawn that U.S. stamps enjoy greater popularity over foreign stamps than had been believed. However, the margin is not necessarily 2 to 1 because many stamp dealers also sell U.S. stamps," Geocaris said.

Conducted to obtain statistics on stamp collectors, the survey found that male collectors outnumber females 8 to 5. The 15 to 24 year old age group led with 16 per cent. The figures dip to 10 per cent for the 25-34 year old group, advance to 14 per cent for those 35-44 and to 15 per cent for those 45-54. Only 8 per cent of the collectors are 55 to 64 years of age.

The number of collectors between the ages of 15 and 64 was found to be 16 million with the New York City metropolitan area having the highest concentration of collectors in the nation.

Questions? Address Stamp Notes, Padlock Publications, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

Is Unnecessary

Back in the 1950s and early 1960s, when Communism was everybody's bugaboo, fallout shelter construction was the scheme of every homeowner and civic official.

Build those shelters — and there were plenty of plans available — stock them with supplies and Geiger counters, and when the Red nuclear holocaust begins, there's two weeks of supplies available until the fallout blows away.

Last week in Des Plaines, the fallout shelter craze was revived, in a somewhat more rational form, when the Des Plaines Herald reported the city might construct a $200,000 fallout shelter to protect the city's communications machinery during a man-made or natural disaster.

The shelter would be constructed in a specially designed basement in the proposed new $2 million city hall building, according to the city council's civil defense committee.

The "rough estimate" cost of $200,000 would be partially covered by a federal grant, with local taxpayers picking up the rest of the tab.

Already a list of those allowed in the shelter has been drawn up. It includes the mayor, other top city administrators and aldermen — if they are needed to perform duties. Primary purpose of the shelter would be to maintain contact with 23 private city shelters, which can house 26,000 persons (or 38 per cent of the Des Plaines population).

If we were living now under the shadow of an impending atomic disaster, such a center might make sense in keeping one of our communities functioning during a crisis.

It might even make good sense if Des Plaines was threatened frequently with natural disasters, such as tornadoes. But in such cases it doesn't seem likely that $200,000 basements are needed; there's an existing basement in the old Des Plaines city hall which would serve the purpose for a low cost.

It seems as though someone in the Des Plaines government decided that the new city hall building should possibly have a fallout center/communications center. Since federal grants were available for this purpose, it seemed to make sense to seek such a grant.

But ahead of the grant must come the question, is there a need for such a center in Des Plaines? Just because there is easy federal money available doesn't justify a center for which the taxpayers, on either a local or federal level, shall pay.

The $200,000 which would go into such a center could be better used to train residents about basic first aid techniques and to educate children as to what to do if a tornado should strike a school.

Civil defense, in protecting our communities, has a role in the event of a natural disaster. A $200,000 center in a city hall basement is not part of that role.

Alinsky's Message

If you've ever complained loudly at a village board meeting about those damned apartments planned down the block, then you have a trace of Saul Alinsky in you.

When you and your neighbors spoke, you challenged the authority of city hall — and that challenge was Alinsky's message to the world.

Saul Alinsky

Alinsky, who died at 63 this week in Carmel, Calif., was the gruff organizer of powerless, voiceless people — the people who learn that change often occurs most rapidly through vocal protest.

He called his method "rubbing raw the sores of discontent," and it inspired deep admiration (his students are still at work in this country) and intense hatred (especially from the challenged establishment).

Alinsky was co-organizer of the Back Of The Yards Council in Chicago — a neighborhood political force which eventually itself became part of the Establishment. He was also active in the formation of The Woodlawn Organization (TWO), a powerful black South Side community unit.

His challenge did not end with urban ghettos. At a speech in Arlington Heights in 1969, he challenged the suburbs:

"Four-fifths of America is in the middle classes and one-third of that number live in the suburbs. You who live in the suburbs represent the ultimate power. If you do not organize, then we are all lost.

"What do you have here in the suburbs? You have a happy life. Many of you grew up in the Depression when you dreamed of moving to the suburbs and the grass and the clean air. Well, you've made it. And do you have a happy life? What have you got? You've got a very bad drug situation with the kids and you don't know where you are coming or going on inflation."

Whether to suburbanites or ghetto-dwellers, Alinsky kept pounding them with his message: Through community organization, the forces which plague communities — and drain each of us of significance and worth — can be controlled. His goal was a decent life for all; it still remains, in the wake of his death, a goal which must never be forgotten.

Bob Lahey's Column

Some Questions About The ERA

Two things were made clear in the extended debate in the Illinois House last week on the proposed constitutional amendment to bolster equal rights for women:

1. The issues which led to proposal of the amendment by the Congress are too serious to be treated lightly by male opponents who don't suffer the inequities the amendment seeks to correct.

2. Men, as well as women, who oppose the amendment do not necessarily deserve to be accused of that tired phrase, male chauvinism.

On its second go-around in a hearing before the Illinois House Judiciary Committee, the so-called ERA (for Equal Rights Amendment) finally got the serious treatment that it deserves from the House. Hopefully, it will receive the same serious attention when called for debate before the full House, probably today.

True, it became a little tiresome to hear most of the parade of witnesses at the hearing, both pro and con, putting forth their offspring as some kind of biological credential for their expertise on the question ("I have four daughters," "I have three daughters," "I have two daughters and three grand-daughters").

Otherwise, both witnesses and legislators managed to confine themselves to the issues.

The issues and charges put forth by proponents are too obvious to be denied: That women do not receive equal pay for equal rights, in many instances. That women do not enjoy the same professional opportunities available to men. That women do not receive fair treatment in matters of finance and credit.

These things are just about unanimously conceded by opponents of the amendment, but they argue that all those circumstances can be corrected by legislation or court action, though that might admittedly be more time-consuming than rewriting the Constitution.

But they say the constitutional grounds for correcting these inequities already exist. As Rep. Eugene S. Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, expressed it in his newsletter this week:

"What bothers me about (ERA) is that it apparently is redundant of, if not in conflict with, the 14th Amendment. Isn't it enough that 'no State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States' . . . nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws?' This language certainly strikes me as being sufficiently clear and all-inclusive."

Backers of ERA, of course, say that provision is not strong enough to guarantee all the privileges and immunities of citizenship to women.

That brings us to the merits of the proposed amendment.

And the issues and charges put forth by opponents are too serious to be ignored. Among them, let's take just two: That Congress could not exempt women from the draft. That the precise equality dictated by the amendment would remove, among other things, the traditional responsibility of the father to be the sole support of his wife and children.

The truth of the matter is that proponents of ERA did not satisfactorily answer those issues in the House hearing.

On the question of the draft, one woman proponent suggested that: "Even if a woman were not exempted as a mother or a conscientious objector, she probably would be inducted as a non-combatant, and she might travel extensively, would save money, and would learn valuable skills." To any military veteran — and there is no frivolity intended here — that sounds like a recital from a recruiting poster, and faith in recruiting posters is not high among veterans.

On the question of family support, the women argued that Illinois statutes have already supplanted common law, specifically placing responsibility for the welfare of the children equally on the mother and father.

But what about women in states which do not have such laws? Opponents argue that they could no longer demand more than 50 per cent of the family expenses from a recalcitrant husband.

The ERA forces have attracted wide support among voters and news media, including this newspaper.

Should ERA be ratified by Illinois, it will still need approval by 38 states.

Whether or not it gains that support, some important steps have been taken to forward the cause of gaining women the status to which they are entitled.

Notwithstanding a firm belief that the status of women needs improvement, it is wished here that that improvement would be accomplished by some other means than tampering with the Constitution.

The most engaging witness to appear in last week's hearing was the Orthodox Rabbi Chaim Keller of Chicago. As he put it — and he intended no frivolity either — "If some want to raise their daughters to be machinegunners, they should do it in good health." But, he added, he had no wish to send his 10-year-old daughter off to be a soldier eight years hence.

Word-A-Day

McGovern: 'Somewhat Conservative'

by LESTER KINSOLVING

Senator George McGovern's political opponents do not suggest that he is so far out as to resemble a cross between Leon Trotsky and Chief Crazy Horse.

But during an exclusive interview with this writer (while flying from Washington, D. C. to Michigan for a one-day whirlwind tour) the former Methodist minister came on as a distinct conservative — in the best sense of the term — particularly when compared to some contemporary clergy kamikazes.

When asked to comment upon such church activities as the Episcopalians raising $200,000 for James Forman's Black Manifesto demands, or the Presbyterian donation of $10,000 to the Angela Davis Defense Fund, the Presidential candidate replied:

"I think it is a legitimate point that sometimes churches have given to the more sensational claims, while turning a deaf ear to responsible and long-term causes such as the NAACP.

"There is a definite distinction between responsible and irresponsible dissent. I remember marching with Mrs. Martin Luther King and Ralph Abernathy on one occasion where there appeared — always keeping herself in full view of the TV cameras — a girl in a bikini and an American flag. And she was also wearing a sign with an obscene reference to the President. Then, once, while I was speaking, some group hurled the hammer and sickle flag behind me where I couldn't see what they were doing.

"Some people would much rather 'sound off' and 'do their own thing' than really try to change government policy. I have denounced Rennie Davis, Abbie Hoffman, Tom Hayden, Jerry Rubin and Huey Newton, for issuing incredible statements calling for violence — and calling for the killing of 'big' as they call the police."

In 1965, McGovern termed draft card burning "immature, impractical and illegal." Five years later he observed: "The rock throwers, hecklers and bomb throwers are enemies of us all. The blunt fact is that violence-prone extremists on the left and the inflammatory Agnew-type orators are natural allies. They feed on one another. And their target is the moderate and progressive candidates of both parties."

Does the Senator still hold this position?

"Yes I do," he replied without hesitation, "and I don't agree with my biographer who writes that this 'sounded like a right-wing orator on the stump.' We have some obligation to be effective in politics — rather than just sounding off."

McGovern was vividly exposed to the excesses of the far left early in his political career, when in 1948 he supported Henry Wallace and attended the national convention of the Progressive Party as a delegate. Here he encountered a number of the radical left who had attached themselves to the Wallace campaign — and who he recalls as having "unbending rigidity." From the opposite end of the spectrum, he has been repeatedly smeared by the far right.

McGovern is fully able to change his mind should the situation warrant a reevaluation. And as something of a rarity among politicians, he readily admits having made mistakes.

"The two votes, I most deeply regret were in supporting the Gulf of Tonkin resolution, as well as 14B." (Section 14B of the Taft Hartley Act guarantees the states the right to pass right to work laws.) "This vote to shut off debate on right to work made me look like a fence straddler. Even though I was 'voting my district' I was wrong. But some labor leaders have forgiven me because they know I've supported so much else of benefit to the working man."

McGovern has a natural affinity for rendering such support. He disclosed to this writer that two books by the renowned "Prophet of the Social Gospel," Walter Rauschenbusch, were the primary motivation for his entering theological seminary — that and the influence of his father.

The elder McGovern, son of an immigrant who at age 9 was scooping coal in Pennsylvania at one cent per bucket, was a minister of the strongly conservative Wesleyan Methodist Church.

Young George split with the denomination's rigid views while he was a student at Dakota Wesleyan — where at the proms the students were never allowed to dance, but only to stroll about the floor, arms length and hand-in-hand, while the band played on.

But he cites his father's philosophy — "the concept of public service and getting beyond one's self" — as the center of his life. In his office is the framed Scripture: "Whoever shall save his life shall lose it, and whosoever shall lose his life for my sake, shall find it."

If these sentiments were expressed by many a public figure — including some clergy — it might well sound hubristic. But McGovern has an exceptionally retentive and logical mind, plus a sincerity unmatched in national politics since Eugene McCarthy — but with none of McCarthy's base detachment which made his speeches resemble doctrinaire musings at a faculty tea.

His delivery was described by his biographer as "a flat Midwestern voice," with a note that some McGovern backers once tried to subject him to a New York voice teacher.

"Well, they'll have to take me as I am!" replied the Senator, with a smile that is winning because it is so genuine.

But there was nothing at all "flat" in the manner in which he electrified a capacity crowd of senior citizens in the United Auto Workers Hall near the Buick plant in Flint. There was also an impressive agility — devoid of evasions — with which he fielded hordes of hot questions from a large and hungry press corps.

McGovern succeeded, for example, in deflecting the peripheral (but in Michigan, torrid) issue of busing by noting:

"We're now busing about 42 per cent of the children, when before the court decision we were busing some 38 per cent. How about asking the kids how they feel? And how many American boys have been killed by busing? Let's focus on the real issue: Vietnam. Mining Haiphong harbor isn't going to stop the North Vietnamese — and it certainly isn't getting our POWs released."

Commented one aged U.A.W. retired union official, his eyes shining between well-worn eyelids:

"The key to this guy is that he's so completely honest."

This and McGovern's long record of concern for social justice — as well as his pioneering opposition to the Vietnamese War in the Senate — may be the reasons why this writer has noticed an increasing number of clergy about the nation who are wearing McGovern For President buttons.

Speculation as to whether he has a realistic chance in the November sweepstakes, or even for the nomination at Miami Beach, is more the province of the political writers.

With 24 million new voters between the ages of 18 and 24, with inflation and unemployment, with ITT and the mining of Haiphong Harbor, with a national malaise as America's longest and most disastrous war is further escalated, McGovern is appearing to many people to be a light of hope in a national twilight of honor.

The great majority of Americans have been brought up to look for fatherly guidance to their teachers and their pastors — and McGovern has been both, as well as a war hero (Distinguished Flying Cross for saving the life of his crew while landing a badly disabled bomber on an island in the Adriatic).

His economic programs, while unusual, appear to be logical and hardly "left wing" — at least not in the analysis of the hardly wily out editors of Time magazine.

He is neither a shouter nor a demagogue, but manifests an overpowering style in which logic and sincerity combined with unusually tough political savvy may provide ultimate leadership to a nation war-weary and disgusted with bombast, dissimulation and rhetoric.

EDITORIAL: Let's settle the school aid dilemma — now.

Westinghouse Announces New Compressor Facility

Westinghouse Electric Corp.'s major appliance group has announced completion of the industry's first computer-controlled facility for manufacturing compressors used in refrigerators and room air conditioners.

J. L. McGowan, marketing manager, major appliances, said, "The $1.7 million facility will increase production, reliability and manufacturing flexibility in the manufacture of refrigerators and other refrigeration products."

"This facility was designed to take the heart of the refrigeration and room air conditioning cooling system — the compressor — and eliminate its being subject to the plant's changing environs, place it in a stable clean room situation and install a computer to control and monitor the manufacturing process. The idea was to achieve a greater consistency in our compressors. Our manufacturing development laboratory in Pittsburgh developed and installed the complete, integrated system in conjunction with Columbus personnel."

ONE ADVANTAGE of the system will be an estimated 50 per cent increase in production capability. The computerized system has the capability to manufacture a compressor every seven and one-half seconds.

Another advantage of the system is an anticipated 15 per cent increase in reliability factors. "Although the compressor is already considered one of the industry's most reliable devices," McGowan said, "reliability factors will be increased because individual parts and even complete compressors that might have even the slightest defect will be automatically detected and then rejected by the computer. Each compressor is monitored and controlled 200 times by the computer as it passes through the atmospheric-controlled assembly room."

Manufacturing flexibility is achieved through the application of a multitracked conveyor system at the beginning of the manufacturing process. Different sized parts are placed in the tracks and started into the system as different sized compressors are needed. The compressor size varies by a factor of 10 ranging from one-tenth to one horsepower.

The computer-controlled facility is part of the major appliance group's recently announced $10 million capital expenditures program encompassing divisions in Columbus and Mansfield, Ohio, and Edison, N.J. The Westinghouse-Columbus division manufactures refrigerators, freezers, dishwashers, food waste disposers and other specialty products.

Business Today

by RON SCHERER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Many families have a "genius" who bought some penny shares of uranium, gold mining or other speculative stock. Now they're worth "only the paper they are written on."

Don't throw them away. People actually collect them. They may be worth something someday as the collectors increase in numbers and sophistication.

Michael Mullan, of R. M. Smythe & Co., and John Hering, head of Hering & Co., both collect these aged specimens. Mullan owns the Robert D. Fletcher Manual of Valuable & Worthless Securities and also gives professional advice on the potential value of old certificates. As Mullan says, "We see an awful lot of oddball certificates coming in here for evaluation."

MULLAN SAYS many people collect the certificates just "because they are a part of some historical scenario, were signed by someone famous — such as Jay Gould — have interesting revenue stamps, or were forerunners of some great company."

Some of Mullan and Hering's favorites include a Paul Revere-designed and signed certificate, an American Express certificate signed by Wells & Fargo, a Santa Ana war bond signed by the Mexican general with his property displayed as collateral in case he lost, which he did.

Collectors sometimes buy only gold mining stock certificates, or even more specifically, only Cripple Creek area gold mining firms' stock certificates. In many cases the certificates are valued by collectors only if they were issued and signed. Many of America's famous men have been involved in the floating of the stock and bonds and the unsuccessful company's stock became worthless. But, to collectors, the autographs on the certificate have some value.

ONE OF MULLAN'S favorites is a colorful British stock certificate of the South Sea Company. This firm founded in 1711 to trade with Spanish America eventually landed the king as a director. The stock was quoted at 120½ in January, 1720, and 550 in May and by July and August was selling at 1000. In September the bubble burst and the stock dropped to 175. An inquiry revealed massive bribes, and almost brought the government down.

"Most of the world's problems," Mullan says, "are found in this world of bond and stock certificates. To finance anything from canals to wars, a government or company must have money, and most have issued bonds or stock certificates to do it."

Collectors of modern day certificates appear to have been attracted to the Playboy Co. certificate, the first to have a modern day nude.

The center-spread Playmate of February, 1971, a girl named Willy Roy, reclines in all her unadorned glory top and center of the Playboy certificate. Because of some Wall Street objections, Willy's arms and hair preserve some of her modesty.

You would think that with the popularity of air conditioning, especially by way of one-room units, that the electric fan would be obsolete:

It isn't.

If anything, fans come in a wider variety of models, in sizes that vary from tiny desk models to giant exhaust fans that will empty an entire house of its stale air in minutes.

Not everyone wants air conditioning and not everyone needs it. In moderate climates a fan will provide all the relief you need from the heat.

Use portable fans to give quick comfort in a small area. For larger areas consider exhaust fans. There are small window mounted units or big ones that can be placed in the ceiling. Installed and used properly, they can move cool air through an entire house.

THE EXHAUST fan is used throughout the night when outside air is cooler and is used to replace the warm inside air.

Once the house is cooled off in the morning, the fan is turned off and window shades and windows are kept closed on the sunny side of the house. The idea is slow up the heating process until night rolls around again and you can pump more cool air in again.

Most people can make do with window fans. The fan is placed in an open window. Sometimes the removal of a window unit is required.

Don't put the fan just anywhere. Best place is an upstairs window on the sunny side of the house. Open a window on the shady side so that you replace hot air with cool air.

Windows adjacent to the fan must be closed. Leaving them open will short circuit the air, moving it from the window next to the fan right through the fan without ever moving the air through the house.

ATTIC FANS are bigger and more efficient. Install the fan high in a central location so that it draws air through the whole house.

There must be exhaust openings in the attic. These can be in the roof, gable ends or under the eaves. You may have to put in a special louver. Openings should be screened.

Whatever fan you use, keep doors and windows on the lower level of the house open during the night. This allows cool air to enter to replace the warm air that is being exhausted.

Veterans' News

Q—MY PRESENT husband has adopted my daughter whose father died from injuries suffered in World War II. Does this make her ineligible for schooling under VA's Dependents' Educational Assistance program?

A—No. Adoption does not affect her eligibility which is based on her father's death from service-connected causes.

Q—EVEN though I have been married six years, my husband, a World War II veteran, still carries his mother as beneficiary on his GI insurance policy. Can VA change it so I will be the beneficiary?

A—No. VA must pay the proceeds of GI insurance to the beneficiary named by the veteran.

Q—WILL THE Army furnish a memorial marker to be put in a private cemetery for my son who was lost at sea during World War II military service?

A—Yes. Application forms for memorial markers are available at all VA offices, and should be mailed to the Office of the Chief Support Services, Department of the Army, Washington, D.C.

Q—I'D LIKE to apply for a certificate of eligibility for a GI loan, but I lost my DD-214 Armed Forces Report of Transfer or Discharge. What should I do?

A—VA will accept a legible copy of an original discharge or release from active duty. If a copy is not available, any VA office will supply an application form for requesting a replacement from your military department.

Q—MY HUSBAND, a veteran, is in a nursing home for a condition not related to military service. Will VA pay for his nursing home care?

A—No. VA is permitted to provide nursing home care only for a limited time for such veterans who have received maximum benefits from VA hospitalization. There is no time limit for veterans who were hospitalized primarily for service-connected conditions.

Special Swim Classes Benefit Youths At 'Y'

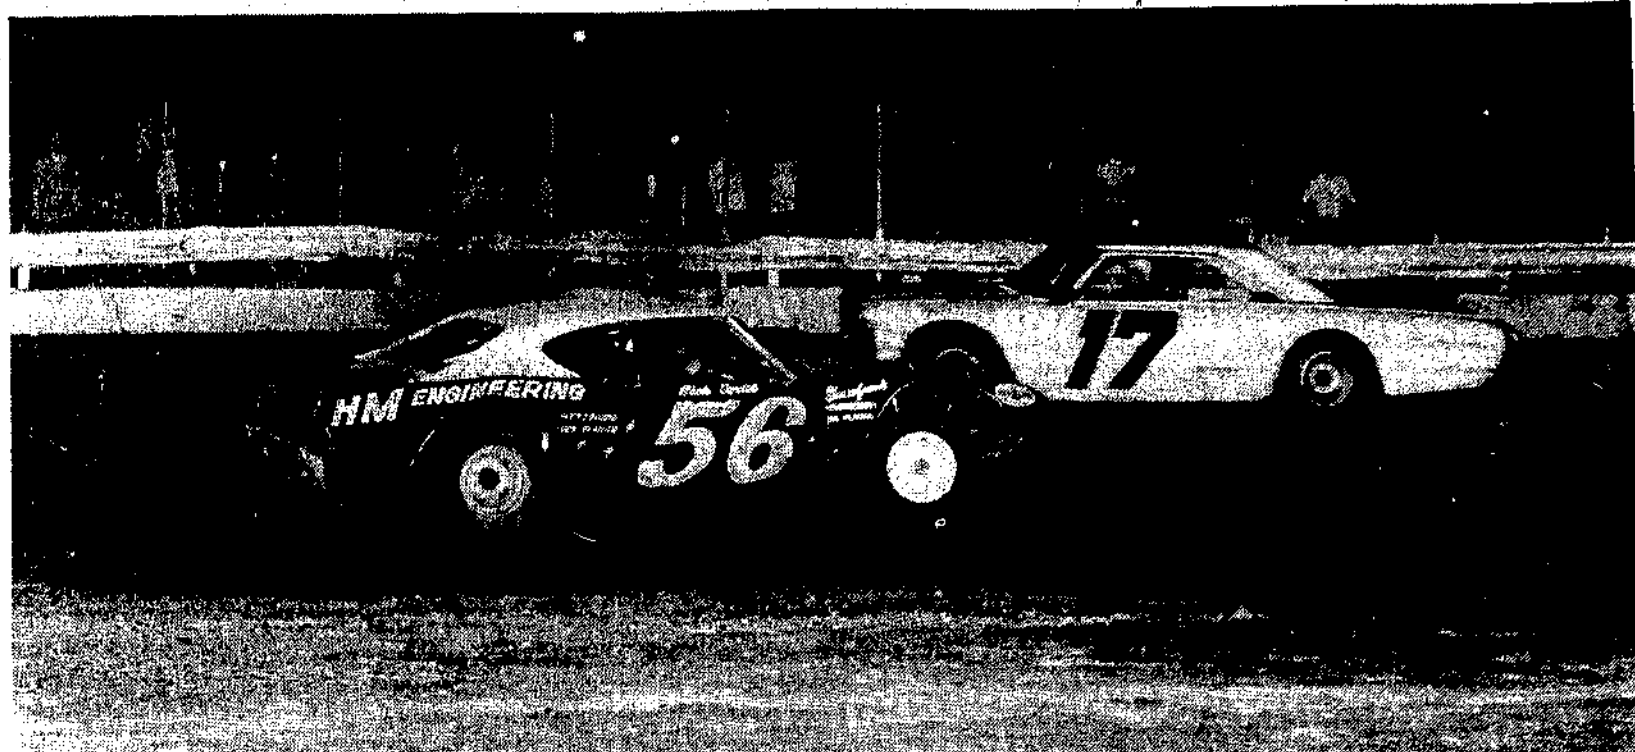

The Northwest Suburban YMCA sent 17 swimmers and volunteer instructors to participate in the Northern Illinois Special Olympics in Chicago recently. The swimmers were awarded six gold medals, 13 silver medals and seven bronze medals, plus participation ribbons.

The students taking part are part of a group of more than 100 being given swimming lessons for people with special needs at the Y every Wednesday evening. It is an all-volunteer program and the students are taught to swim by qualified instructors, interested young adults, Girl Scouts, Explorer Scouts, E-Hart, Tri-Hi-Y and UCP groups who donate their time to the program.

Since the program started 11 years ago many children and adults have been taught to swim and many are able to go on to regular classes after being taught the basics of swimming. All groups and volunteers attend orientation sessions before teaching in the program.

Mrs. Thomas Crouch (Deerfield) is Program Chairman and Mrs. John Goble and Mrs. Walter Ost (Mount Prospect) are Co-chairmen. Youth coaches for the Olympics are Laura Dragon (Palatine), Sue Dragon (Arlington Heights), and Lynn Richartz (Prospect Heights). Instructors training the students are Renee Henning (Arlington Heights), James Hinde (Des Plaines), Pat Forton (Mount Prospect), Robert Acker (Des Plaines), Tom Broderick (Des Plaines), Bill Flowers (Elk Grove Village), Alan Zelm (Prospect Heights) and Debbie Berg (Rolling Meadows).

RICH OERTEL of Palatine, driving car No. 56 here, has recorded two preliminary stock car wins at the Waukegan Speedway to climb to 11th in the season's point standings following a late start this year. Oertel got a little out-of-shape last Saturday night while leading the feature race and spun-out; otherwise he likely would have been among the leaders at the finish. Sunday he took fifth in a hotly contested race. Tom Musgrave of Mundelein (No. 17) steers clear of Oertel.

Bicycle Racing Returns To Meadows Hills Layout

Bicycle racing returned to Northbrook's Meadows Hill Park track this week with a 20-race program.

This is the 14th year of summer racing, which has seen the original oiled dirt track become one of the finest bicycle racing plants in the country. The banked quarter-mile hard surface oval has good lighting and an excellent sound system with nearly 2,000 seats. Admission and parking are free. A collection is used to support the racing and for park improvements.

Eleven meets are scheduled from June 15 through Aug. 24. Senior riders will compete in a "Miss and Out" race, spring heats and final race as well as a five-mile point race with five sprints, all on each race night. Junior Amateurs (aged 15 through 17), Intermediates (aged 12 through 14) and Midgits (aged eight through 11) have similar races.

Re-coated this spring, the track is "faster" than in previous years. Rivalries should carry over from last year as the competition for the 1972 season championships are renewed.

Last season trophy winners were: Midget champion, Glen Berg, Northbrook; Intermediate, Greg Berg, Northbrook; Junior, Bob Vehe, Mount Prospect; Senior, Hans Nuremberg, Kenosha, Wis.; and Women, Martha Jack, Northbrook.

Jim Rossi of Chicago, five times national champion, returns to racing after two years "retirement." Jim has lost little of his speed and should make a bid for state champion honors and a good showing in the nationals.

The nationals, scheduled for Kenosha, Wis. Aug. 1 through 6, should bring out-of-state riders to this area to take advantage of the midwest tracks in Milwaukee, Kenosha, St. Louis, Detroit and Northbrook.

Races are staged by the Northbrook Cycling Committee with former Six Day Race Champion Torchy Peden as Race Director.

Northwest Y Again Plans Summer Swimming Lessons

Swimming at the Northwest Suburban YMCA is again being offered for a variety of participants this summer, with programs for all ages including instructional swim classes, as well as recreational swims.

Swimming is a sport even for pre-schoolers. Starting them early helps their muscular development and coordination. There are many different age levels in the pre-school program. They range from Peanut (9 months-2 years) to Wee Folk (2-3 years) to Tiny Tot (3-5 years).

The Y also has instructional classes for first and second graders (Small Fry). There are many swimming classes available for pre-schoolers and on different days. Classes begin June 19.

This summer the Y will also continue its Progressive Swim Program for all interested youth members ages 7-16. These classes are held on Mondays thru Wednesdays. There are also diving classes as well as synchronized swimming and skin diving lessons for youth members.

For adults this summer the Y has plenty of activity. Beside Adult Swims from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. every day, there are adult swimming lessons Wednesday evenings and Thursday mornings. Skin and Scuba diving lessons beginning June 23, and Synchronize Swimming lessons this summer. Also offered is an aquacise course in which adults perform exercises in the pool.

Standings Tighten In Men's Golf

The Friday Nite Men's League at Buffalo Grove Golf Club has seen Team 8's lead diminish as five teams are within 7½ points and closing fast. Team 1 was last week's high point getter with 23½ of a possible 37. Bob Berry, Jack Alsmiller, Ray Ledinsky and Jerry Jakubowski are its members.

Jerry Diana captured both low gross (34) and low net (32) for the players in A flight while Jim Gillespie turned the same trick with scores of 43-31 for Flight B.

Ray Ledinsky and Joe Bosignaro shied low gross in Flight C with 46's while Ledinsky's 34 won low net. In Flight D competition, Cy Kozel captured low gross with 44 but shared low net honors of 32 with Jerry Jakubowski.

9th District Play Begins; Lions Rip Schiller Park In 16-0 Action

by JIM COOK

Defending Ninth District Legion champion Logan Square successfully embarked on what could be a repeat performance by shelling first-year initiate Schiller Park, 16-0, in the abbreviated league opener at Hersey Tuesday evening.

Head coach Larry Nomellini's club, in the process of boosting its overall slate to 7-2, enjoyed the well-deserved "laughter" after four straight "squeakers" in South Bend, Ind. over the weekend.

Schiller Park, the Ninth District's newest entry, was assembled under game conditions for the first time this season. Drawing from the baseball-minded high schools at both East and West Leyden, the team has the potential to develop into a winner, but experience left them outclassed Tuesday.

The Lions feasted on a pair of Schiller Park hurlers for 11 hits and with the aid of five walks and the same number of errors, were able to tally in each of five innings.

Mike Cook started on the mound for the Lions and after experiencing control difficulty through the first-inning, settled down behind a nifty two-hitter during his four-inning stint.

The towering lefty walked five, but fanned two Schiller Parkers in each frame to notch eight strikeouts before yielding pitching chores to another southpaw Terry Moriarty.

Terry was touched for a pair of safeties, but preserved the shutout with a one, two, three inning in the fifth and a one-over-the-limit exercise in the sixth.

Offensively, the Lions were the sharpest they've been all season. Before Nomellini began emptying his bench in the fourth, eight of nine starters had accounted for at least one hit and scored at least one run.

Logan Square pushed three across in the first on a walk to Ken Martin, Jim Bucaro's sacrifice, consecutive singles by Joe Bombicino and Stan Bobowski and a sacrifice fly by Cook.

Four more went up in the second as an error, Tom Chapman's booming double, Martin's single, a walk, another Schiller Park misplay and two passed balls opened the flood gates.

Chapman, who experimented by closing his batting stance for this contest, highlighted a five-run third with a three-run leg homer that split the seam in left and center. Martin's second hit of the game, a hit batsman, Cook's line shot double and Steve Bobowski's single accounted for another pair.

Ed Collins opened the fourth with a walk and both he and Mike Garbus tallied on the latter's single coupled with a three-base error.

The merciless barrage continued in the fifth as Bombicino walked, Moriarty and Collins singled and two crossed on a balk and a wild pitch.

Logan Square will be gunning for its second straight district triumph at Park Ridge (Maine South High School) tonight at 6 p.m.

Three Wins For Celtics

Palatine Celtics traveling soccer teams recorded three wins in five games in recent action.

The Junior team (ages 15 through 17), which is assured of first place in its division, was a 5-1 winner over the Green and White team of Chicago. Ken St. George scored two goals and Brian Scipino, Jerry Blain and John Kinsella one each. Steve Sakats was goalie.

The Intermediate (age 14 and under) B team won one of three games as Scott Vena was the only goal scorer in both losses — 3-1 against Menominee of Chicago and 6-1 against Northbrook.

But the squad won its first game at Hanover Park, 6-1. Brian O'Callaghan recorded a three-goal hat trick, Kevin O'Callaghan scored two others and Tom O'Driscoll counted on a penalty kick. Ian MacIvane was goalie.

The Intermediate A team won an exciting 1-0 game against Morton Grove. Palatine had the edge in play throughout but couldn't dent the scoring column until the final two minutes when Danny Tischler won it on a penalty kick. Brian Scipino racked up the shutout in goal.

The banquet for House League intramural players (ages 12 and under) was held at Palatine High School earlier this month. Trophies were presented by Mr. Bill Jones, a professional referee and head referee for the Young Sportsman's Soccer League in which Palatine teams compete.

All boys got trophies depending in size on where the team placed in the standings. The five coaches (John Kinsella, Jerry Blain, Scott Byker, Ken St. George and Larry Gackowski) received coaching trophies and a team trophy was established. It was awarded to Mr. Dave Roberts, manager of the first-place Spurs. The team trophy will be passed to the winning squad each year.

The Intermediate A team will be playing the Northwest Kickers with the date yet to be announced.

Kansas City Troutout Camp At Niles West

Area boys interested in pursuing a baseball career are invited to the Kansas City Royals' troutout camp next Sunday, June 18, at Niles West High School.

The troutout will begin at 10 a.m. at the Niles field, Oakton and Edens in Skokie, and all boys are eligible although only boys who have graduated from high school may be signed.

However, it is to a young boy's advantage, possibly a sophomore or junior in high school, to receive the early exposure now if he is interested in a baseball career.

Another intensive search for baseball talent throughout the entire United States is scheduled for this coming summer. Director Syd Thrift of the Kansas City Royals Baseball Academy said.

Scouts and coaches for the Academy, the only institution of its kind in the world, will start scouring the countryside immediately after the June free-agent draft in the hopes of finding potential stars who then will be brought to Sarasota for 16 months of intensive training.

All the players expenses will be paid by the Kansas City Royals of the American League. Included will be board and room, health and hospital insurance and the tuition and fees at Manatee Junior College where the selectees will attend classes three mornings a week. In addition the players also receive a salary.

The Academy's first class was the result of 128 troutout camps during which 7,688 athletes were examined during the summer of 1970. Last summer 132 trials were held with 7,244 prospects being reviewed.

Thrift says the list of troutout camps for the coming summer is even greater than it was during either of the preceding seasons with six of them slated for the state of Illinois alone. Three will be held in the Chicago area with the others at Carlyle, Skokie and Springfield.

Art Stewart of Chicago who also scouts for the parent Kansas City Royals, will be in charge of all six camps. He has been one of the Academy's most industrious scouts and is credited with signing six of the members of the current squad.

Stewart came into the Royals scouting system from the New York Yankees for whom he signed such major leaguers as Jim Bouton, Fritz Peterson and Jerry Kenney among others.

The players he signed for the Academy are outfielder Minnie Minoso, Jr., of Evanston, Ill., son of the former Chicago White Sox great; infielder Bruce Beranek of Rice Lake, Wis.; pitcher Tom Bruno of Downers Grove, Ill.; third baseman Ken Dohm of Morton Grove, Ill.; first baseman Gary Shieve of Janesville, Wis.; and outfielder Sheldon Malloy of Argo, Ill.

To receive consideration for appointment to the Academy, an applicant must have completed his high school eligibility, have athletic ability although not necessarily in baseball, be less than 20 years of age and be able to run 60 yards in 6.9 seconds.

A permanent staff of six professional baseball coaches handles the diamond phase of the student's development.

But baseball is never forgotten. The first class, which gathered on Aug. 10, 1970, had played 241 games by the time it was graduated just before Christmas of 1971. The squad won 162 games and lost 70 for an average of .672.

Included in its accomplishments was the championship of the Gulf Coast League with a 40-13 mark and a 10-4 record made on a 17-day tour of Latin America. Now the graduates of the class are playing in the farm system of the parent Kansas City Royals — and on their way to the majors.

DAD'S DAY COMING!

GET HIM A MOWER THAT HE'LL ENJOY USING — LOOK WHERE THE CATCHER IS BETWEEN THE HANDLE.

Snapper's V-21 and 18 vacuum clean your lawn.

Any season of the year, Snapper V series mowers work hard. They pick up leaves, pine straw and most other light litter as you mow:

- Extra large bag is between the handles, for close trimming on both sides.
- "Down-flector" blows walks and driveways clean, windrows leaves and can be used in areas where bagging grass is not needed.

THE CONVENT AT SACRED HEART of Mary High School has become a strange prize, but a prize nonetheless that two local organizations are vying for. The Northwest Human Resources Development Center, renting there now, wants to expand its counseling program to provide living space for troubled youth. Clearbrook Center is negotiating with the Archdiocese of Chicago, the owners, to rent the building and use it as a live-in center for retarded adults.

Seek To Avoid 'Institutionalism'

Clearbrook Aim: 'Open' Adult Center

With recent approval of a request for federal funds, Clearbrook Center is moving closer toward making the idea of a community residence for retarded adults a reality.

In this, the second of three related stories, the Herald looks at what Clearbrook wants to do and why.

BY KEN KOZAK

Clearbrook Center's plan to try to build a community live-in center in the Northwest suburbs for retarded adults was not born in haste.

The idea germinated several years ago and has been carefully carried by people close to Clearbrook some of whom had seen their retarded children outgrow the day school there and move into the shadowy world of institutionalization because there was nowhere else for them to go.

"For seven years, families associated with Clearbrook have been talking about the need for a community residential facility strictly for retarded adults," said Byrn Witt, Clearbrook's executive director. "Now we've taken the first steps."

"Where are those first steps leading?"

According to Witt and Ken Jamsa, Clearbrook's program director and the man most deeply involved in charting those steps and subsequent ones, they are leading toward a live-in center for mildly or moderately retarded adults, primarily directed toward keeping those people in the community and out of institutions.

HOW FAR is the idea from becoming a reality?

Some facts indicate that it is not far at all.

Clearbrook has received a federal start-up grant of $16,800 to rent a building to use as a residence for 20 retarded adults to convert it, if necessary, for use as a residence, to train a staff.

The Illinois Department of Mental Health and the Department of Public Aid have promised monthly per resident grants, up to a maximum of about $400 per resident to maintain a live-in center after the start-up grant has been depleted.

Clearbrook officials have been negotiating for two months with the Archdiocese of Chicago in an attempt to rent the convent at Sacred Heart of Mary High School in Rolling Meadows for use as a residence. The negotiations still are going on, but the center is also looking for alternate sites — apartments, office buildings — in a four-township area.

Last March Clearbrook took a preliminary survey to learn if there is sufficient interest in this area in a community home for retarded adults. From that survey the center compiled a list of 17 possible residents. Through subsequent months the list has been reduced to 10 people for whom interest in placement with Clearbrook has been maintained.

BUT POSSIBLY most importantly, the people at Clearbrook are convinced that they will have a live-in center for retarded adults in the Northwest suburbs, whether it takes three months or three years.

They say they are dedicated to a particular ideal, that being that many people who are statistically categorized as mildly or moderately retarded deserve more of a chance than they can get sequestered behind the walls of state hospitals at Elgin, Lincoln or Dixon.

The chance that a live-in center might give them, according to people at Clearbrook, is a chance for normalization.

Byrn Witt

"There is a lot more potential than most people realize for many of these people," says Jamsa, who came to Clearbrook from the Jewish Children's Bureau, a residential facility for retarded children in Chicago.

"The normalization principle means that we will be trying to get these people back into the community. I think many professionals in the field have underestimated what these people can do," Jamsa said.

Calling the proposal more humane than existing state institutions and many private, for-profit shelter care homes, Witt said he feels "these people are entitled to a better life than institutional life."

INSTITUTIONALISM. The word conjures images of bleak, spare rooms, strict supervision and sublimation of individual identity. Whether true or not, the image is often of dead-end corridors leading deeper and deeper behind walls that seem to climb higher and higher.

How does Clearbrook plan to maintain what for all intents and purposes promises to be an institution without letting institutionalism overwhelm the process of normalization?

One part of the plan is to serve people who are or have been from communities that the live-in center will serve.

Says Witt, "They will have to be people who have been local residents at one time or another. They will come from our sheltered workshop (in Elk Grove Village). Some might be people in the community who need our services and may not know it. Others might be local residents who have been or are in state institutions."

In general they will be people 16 years of age or older, men and women, many of whom live at home with their families, which, Witt says, "is sometimes not in the family's best interests, nor in their best interests."

They will share rooms, common dining areas and recreation areas.

THE VOCATIONAL rehabilitation programs that will be offered will focus on returning the residents to the community, and making them as independent of the institution as possible.

"Past programs have adapted people to life in state hospitals. If you tried to send them back into the community, they weren't ready for it," says Jamsa.

An important part of the service offered by Clearbrook would be attempts to place the residents in jobs in the community. This would necessitate not only finding jobs, but teaching residents how to get around the community, how to use the facilities in the community, what it takes to function in the community.

"Functioning," Jamsa said, "is the only criterion by which these people should be judged. Can they do the job? Can they get along with each other? Can they take care of themselves? Are they responsible? If you function adequately, you make it."

"Some people won't function adequately, and they might have to live there forever. But others will move up and out and become independent."

Although institutionalism will be avoided, some aspects of institutional structure will be inescapable either because of the nature of the program or by choice.

The state will license the home, will inspect it regularly to enforce state guidelines for operation and will audit the books. There will be physical requirements, some very stringent, controlling the building (down to a detail as small as specifying the size of doorways) and the disbursement of funds.

The home will, if anything, be over-staffed, according to Witt, to insure proper maintenance and control.

ALTHOUGH they are eager to finalize preliminary agreements and begin preparing for business, Witt and Jamsa admit they are apprehensive about possible community opposition to their plan.

They hope they won't see a recurrence of what happened in Lake Forest several months ago, when the city officials there ruled that a home for retarded children presented such a threat of anxiety for community residents that the project was killed.

Whether they end up in the Sacred Heart convent, or in an apartment building in Des Plaines, they eventually will have to face a city government somewhere and probably some very concerned residents in the bargain.

They then will be put upon to explain themselves to the community that they are trying to reach, and will be trying to make their residence a part of it. It will probably be a more exacting test than any they have faced so far.

Tomorrow: Argyle House — what has the first 20 months brought to Springfield's community live-in center for retarded adults and what Clearbrook might learn from it.

Center's Growth Traced

The search for an adult living center for retarded adults appropriately begins in Rolling Meadows, where Clearbrook Center found its first permanent home.

After operating in a barn and later in an Arlington Heights Church, Clearbrook Center opened its doors at 3201 Campbell, Rolling Meadows, in 1965.

The school was greeted with wholehearted support from Rolling Meadows officials who approved the plans and waived building fees. Organizations from throughout the Northwest suburbs spearheaded fund-raising projects to help the school get under way.

The 1965 budget was $30,000. Three years later it was $300,000. Today the budget tops $700,000 with expectations of a budget of more than $1 million next year.

The school in Rolling Meadows (there also is one in Des Plaines) is a day-care facility for severely handicapped persons from age 3 to 18, who live in Palatine, Wheeling, Schaumburg, Elk Grove and Maine townships.

Another arm of the school opened recently in Elk Grove Village, where a sheltered workshop and vocational rehabilitation center is available for retarded persons over 18 years old.

The sheltered workshop and vocational center has an enrollment of 60, while the day-care center has 70 students.

GENERAL INFORMATION:

Mount Prospect grew rather slowly until after World War II, but as a result of the mass move to the suburbs by Chicagoans, its population increased 371.6% during the 1950's. Its current population of 45,200 people represents another rise of 139.1% in just the 12 years from 1960, largely due to the annexation last fall of a large area of Prospect Heights, northeast of the village.

Many large trees line the village streets and the Chamber of Commerce annually sponsors such events as a 3-day July 4th Fair, Welcome Lady service to new residents and in recent years an annual Oktoberfest.

Mount Prospect celebrated its 50th Anniversary in 1967, highlighted by a 3-day fair, parade, and village historical exhibition. The village is developed with numerous winding streets and features home styles of all sizes and designs with the downtown area paralleling the Chicago and North Western Railroad tracks.

CHURCHES:

Included in the village are 4 Lutheran, 2 Catholic, and 8 Protestant churches.

VILLAGE HISTORY:

The recorded history begins about 1871 when a Chicago real estate man, E. C. Eggleston, purchased a tract of land from the Burke and Rooney families, who were among the early farmers to settle in this area. He named the town "Mount Prospect" probably to express his optimism as to its future. The settlement grew slowly, even after erection of the Chicago and North Western Railroad station about 1875. According to the "Illinois State Gazetteer" in 1893 the village had a population of 35 with mail delivery once a day. One of the earliest business establishments in the village was a creamery and cheese factory operated by William Will at Busse and Wille Streets.

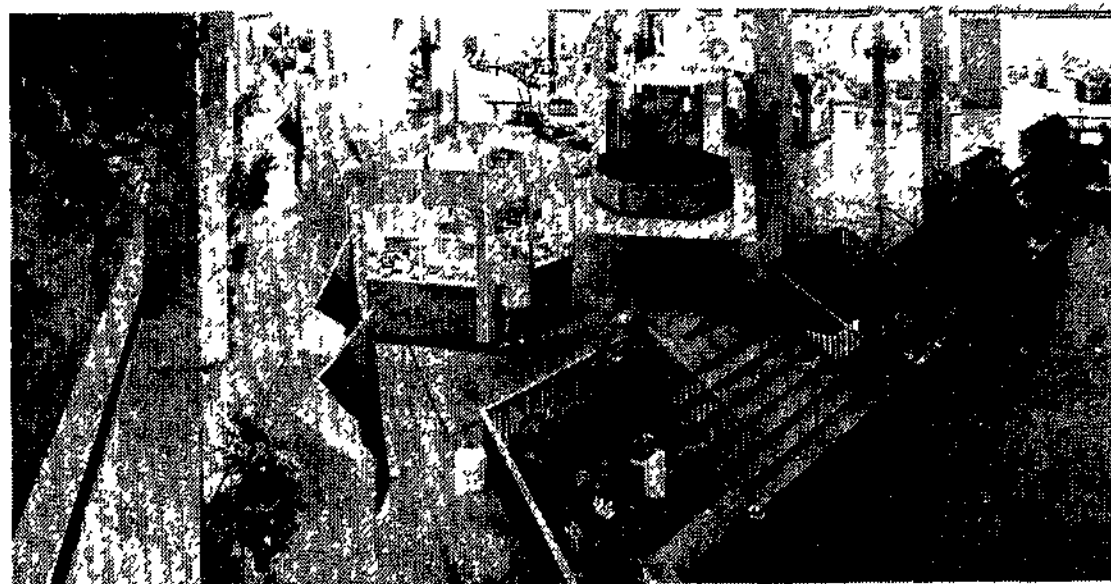

RECREATION:

The village is served by the Mount Prospect Park District and the River Trails Park District. The Mount Prospect Park District has 3 outdoor pools, 1 indoor pool and several parks scattered throughout the village. Also, it has the Lions Park Recreation Center, and the Mount Prospect Community Center, the latter having an 18-hole golf course. The River Trails Park District has an outdoor pool. Both have sled hills. Mount Prospect also has tennis courts.

Also in Mount Prospect is a private indoor-outdoor tennis club, as well as numerous movies and theatres. Planned is an indoor ice skating rink, privately owned for the Randhurst Shopping Center.

HOUSING:

Established areas of older homes meet newly constructed areas with the average age of homes estimated at 10 years. Prices range from $33,000 to $125,000. New homes start at $40,000. Over 700 rental units are in the village, including some new 12-flat buildings and several "close-to-downtown" 2 unit apartment areas. There are many new major apartment complexes on the perimeter of the village, and rents range from $245 to $350 per month.

The MALL at Randhurst Shopping Center.

MEDICAL:

Northwest Community Hospital and Holy Family Hospital are adjacent to the village. In addition, there are 35 doctors and 30 dentists operating within the village.

TOWN SHOPPING:

The central downtown district features a full variety of retail shops with several "Park-and-Shop" centers. Randhurst Shopping Center is located at the north end of the village and there are various secondary shopping districts on the perimeter of the village.

TRANSPORTATION:

C&NW trains reach the Loop in 42 minutes (29 minutes for express trains). The United Motor Coach buses take 70 minutes to reach the Loop. A recent special bus system has been developed to commute shoppers from Chicago directly to Randhurst.

VILLAGE GOVERNMENT:

Mount Prospect has a village form of government. The head of the village is the Village President, also called the Mayor. He and a Board of 6 trustees, all elected at large, pass legislation for the village. The Village Manager is the chief administrator. He carries out the policy of the Village Board. Under the Village Manager are the department heads such as the Fire Chief and the Police Chief.

SCHOOLS:

The village includes 7 public elementary, 2 junior high, and 5 high schools serve the community, with Prospect High School and Forest View High School located within the village. There are also 1 Lutheran and 2 Catholic elementary schools in the village. The pupil teacher ratio is 22:1, with $690 spent per pupil annually.

ORGANIZATIONS:

There are 34 civic and service clubs available to men and women.

Real Estate Brokers To Meet June 26-30

"Practice makes profit," paraphrases Realtor Palmer Berge, C.C.I.M. of Jackson-Berge, Inc., realtors, Seattle, Wash., instructor for "Case Studies in Investment Property, Exchange and Taxation," which will be presented in Chicago, on June 26-30. The event, presented by the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers, will take place at the Lake Shore Club.

Realtor Berge goes on to explain that this advanced 5-day course stresses the application of theory to actual test cases, solving investment problems and implementing exchange transactions under the direct supervision of faculty experts.

Registration for "Case Studies in Investment Property, Exchange and Taxation," may be made through the Registrar, Department of Education, NIREB, 155 E. Superior St., Chicago, Illinois 60611.

With 19,000 members NIREB is the largest professional organization affiliated with the National Association of Real Estate Boards and acts as its educational arm for realtors and sales associates, offering this course and many others every year.

Three-Unit Townhomes Opening Slated

Triad/Townhomes of Larkspur, a new condominium community, is under construction by 3H Building Corporation in northwest suburban Hanover Park. The new townhomes are unique in the Chicago area, with only three living units to a building.

Created by B. A. Berkus and Associates, nationally known California architects, 3H Triad/Townhomes possess large areas of glass, spacious rooms, and permit outdoor activity on both patios and balconies.

Detailed scale models of the Triad/Townhomes are presently displayed for home buyers while full size homes are being completed. Individual buildings will have either three three bedroom homes, or three two bedroom units. Each Triad building has two homes with two stories and one single level home.

"Our research indicated that a three-unit condominium is the most efficient from a cost point of view," said William A. Maybrook, director of marketing. The fourth home in most four-plex condominium adds unnecessary expense, requiring its own foundation and roof. This added cost must be either applied to this unit, making its price disproportionately high, or be spread through the building, reducing the prices of all units.

The Triad/Townhomes at Larkspur, Maybrook said, would range in price from $22,000 for the two bedroom, single floor model to $28,500 for the three bedroom, two story home. The buildings are styled in brick and textured siding and have garages attached. The landscaped green areas, drives, and walks are maintenance free.

The two-story three bedroom condominium is designed with direct entrance from the garage for convenience in wet weather. A full bath on the upper level is complemented by a powder room for guests just off of the main entry. A sliding glass door separates a gracious, covered patio from the open planned dining-living room area. The kitchen, with ample cabinet space, is handy to the laundry and utility areas.

The upper level has three large bedrooms with roomy closets, including a walk-in closet in the master bedroom. Sliding glass doors lead from the master bedroom to a balcony over the patio. The home is priced at $25,000.

The single level three bedroom Triad/Townhome has its entry at mid-level, a few steps down from the living area. It has a private balcony, accessible through sliding glass doors from the dining area. The unit is priced at $23,500.

The two bedroom Triad/Townhomes are priced at $23,000 for the two-story units and $22,000 for the one-level ranch-style home.

Scale models of the Triad/Townhomes of Larkspur are now on display in the sales office of Hanover Highlands, located on Irving Park road, 1/2 mile east of Barrington road.

B. A. BERKUS AND ASSOCIATES, nationally known California architects, created the Triad/Townhomes of Larkspur, a new 3H Building Corporation development in Hanover Park. Each building will have three units and prices start at $22,000 for a two bedroom model. Special features accented are the large areas of glass, spacious rooms, patios and balconies.

Condo Community Building Starts

Construction has started on the first phase of a $50 million, 120-acre condominium community in suburban Palatine Township, it was announced today by Walter Zaremba, president of Building Systems Housing Corporation.

Mortgage Loan Completed For Walden Square

Great Lakes Mortgage announced recently it had completed financial arrangements for a $2,100,000 mortgage loan for a five-story office building located on the south side of Algonquin Road and Arbor Drive in Schaumburg. The commitment to purchase the loan has been made by Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

The building known as the Walden Office Square is being constructed by Pepper Construction Co., general contractors. The architectural firm for the project is Baranek, Conte and Associates. David F. Livingston, vice president of Great Lakes represented the firm and made the financial arrangements.

Walden Office Square is of steel construction with precast concrete panels and contains insulated tinted glass windows set in aluminum frames. The building has 83,948 square feet; contains two passenger elevators and will provide easily accessible parking for 343 cars. Total land for the project covers 183,482 square feet.

The office building has approximately 70,000 square feet of net rentable area.

The Walden Office Square is one of three such buildings being developed by Walden Investment Corp. This development is part of a $200,000,000 residential-commercial community. It has been designed to parallel the dramatic growth anticipated for the Village of Schaumburg.

The first portion of the community, located off Dundee Road, just west of Route 53 in Northwestern Cook County, will consist of 664 condominium homes and 137 townhouses, Zaremba said. First models and a sales pavilion will open about July 8.

Zaremba said construction of five townhouse models will start about July 1. The community, to be served by a new extension of Baldwin Road, from Dundee to Gardenia Lane, will be called "Ivy Glen." The large site is bounded by Baldwin Road, Gardenia Lane, Long Grove, Nichols and Hicks Roads.

This is the second major condominium development by Building Systems Housing Corporation in the Chicago-area. The firm, one of the nation's fastest-growing builders, recently opened a development in Aurora, also called Ivy Glen.

Included in the new Palatine Township community will be an elementary school to be built by Community School District 15 on 7.2 acres of land donated by Building Systems Housing Corporation, a subsidiary of Building Systems, Inc., headquartered in Cleveland.

The first 90-acre portion of Ivy Glen also will include two recreation areas, complete with outdoor swimming pools and bath facilities, Zaremba said.

Plans still are being developed for the final 40 acres he explained.

Two and three-bedroom condominium units will be priced in the low $20,000 range, Zaremba explained. Down payment will be five per cent.

"The Ivy Glen homes have been designed as an answer to today's spiraling home building costs," Zaremba said. "The units will offer outstanding value and be priced for the average budget."

Each home in the four and five-plex units will be centrally air conditioned, carpeted wall to wall and include oven-range, dishwasher, refrigerator and disposal. Living and dining areas are thoughtfully combined into one expansive "L" shaped room, adjoined by a large, fully-equipped kitchen.

EACH HOME includes two or three large bedrooms, several spacious closets and conveniently-sized tile bath. Each has its own entrance, enclosed garage and storage space.

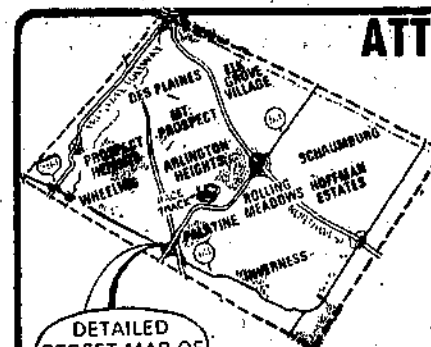

"Our special sound-engineered walls guard residents' privacy night and day," Zaremba said.

The Ivy Glen, condominium four and five-plex units are designed in the colonial Williamsburg tradition.

Ivy Glen townhouses, to be ready later this summer, will feature two and three bedrooms and be available with either 1½ or 2½ baths, Zaremba said. They will include living room, dining room, fully-equipped eat-in kitchen and laundry facilities. Purchase price in the mid to upper $20,000 range will include all kitchen appliances, central air conditioning and wall-to-wall carpeting.

THE BRAXTON HOUSE is typical of the seven different exterior designs that will be offered at Ivy Glen in Palatine Township. All are decorated in the warm, charming Williamsburg tradition. The first portion of the new community will consist of 664 condominium homes and 137 townhouses. First models and a sales pavilion will open about July 8.

Burgundy Opens Doors To New Residents

The "Age of Freedom" living at Cambridge On-The-Lake has just expanded with the Grand Opening of The Burgundy, the third condominium building in the 24-acre community. According to Richard J. Brown, builder of the Chicago-style resort-style community, many of the new residents have already moved in.

When Cambridge On-The-Lake first opened, the "Age of Freedom" concept was defined by Brown as the time in life when people are freer than ever to enjoy some of life's finer amenities. People who were nearing retirement were expected to comprise most of the target market. On the basis of the residents from the first three buildings, however, Brown explained that the "Age of Freedom" is ageless, since the new owners have come from three separate and distinct segments of the market.

"Many of the first residents," Brown said, "were the very people we expected. They are people whose children are grown. Their homes became too large, so they decided to trade the burdens of home ownership for a freer lifestyle."

"The second segment are young marrieds who haven't yet started a family... but who wanted to build equity while they are enjoying their lives."

"The third group was more unexpected," he continued. "They are successful single people from their mid-twenties and up, who wanted something more than a stack of rent receipts to show for their investment."

Brown added that all three groups seem to take equal advantage of the recreation facilities. The Lakeside Pavilion offers year-round swimming, sauna and whirlpool baths, along with rooms for parties, hobbies, cars, billiard and ping-pong. Warm weather activities include shuffleboard, fishing in the 2 1/2-acre lake, sun-bathing and golfing on the putting green.

Ground has been broken for The Gascon, the fourth of the seven buildings. Sales are already being made in this building, but there are still a few Apartment Homes in The Burgundy available for early occupancy. Prices in The Burgundy are fixed and will not be affected by the new building.

Apartment Homes at Cambridge On-The-Lake include one, two and three bedrooms, with variations in between, such as one bedroom with a study that adjoins the living room. Prices range from $28,990 to $55,250 with down payments as low as 10%.

Cambridge On-The-Lake is located on Dundee Road in Buffalo Grove, between Route 83 and Arlington Heights Road, across the street from the Arlington Country Club. Model Apartment Homes are open daily from 10 a.m. until dark.

TIPS TO HOME BUYERS AND HOME SELLERS FROM MAP MULTIPLE LISTING REAL ESTATE SERVICE

HOW TO MAKE YOUR HOME MORE ATTRACTIVE FOR THE SALE

If you are getting ready to sell your home, it is important that you make the home "visually" attractive for any potential buyer. The first impression is of the utmost importance and here are a few aspects that should be checked and adjusted if necessary.

Be sure your landscaping is always kept trim and neat with special care given to weed removal. Be sure all mechanical and electrical components of the home are in working condition, that your doorbells are all working and all door hinges are oiled. Fix any leaky faucets, keep all windows clean, be sure any obvious wall cracks are repaired and that there are new bulbs in all inside and outside light fixtures. Needless to say any rooms that are in critical need of decorating should be repainted and brightened. It is amazing how much a small amount of decorating and maintenance will add to the attraction and to the selling price of your home.

Quinlan & Tyson To Expand Office In Highland Park

After only two months of operation, the Highland Park area office of Quinlan and Tyson, Inc., realtors, will be expanded and will double its facility at 1795 St. Johns Ave., Highland Park.

The Highland Park sales staff of seven persons also will be doubled by adding experienced sales representatives to the staff, according to John Orchard, real estate sales manager of the office.

The expansion of the staff and the increase in office space will make the new Highland Park area office one of the largest offices operated by the 88-year-old North Shore and Northwest suburban real estate firm. This is the first time in their history that an office has expanded so rapidly.

The firm will expand its quarters into space adjoining the present office. The new space has been occupied by the Carrier Cook Shop. Remodeling work already has begun, and the expanded facility is scheduled for completion and grand opening in August.

Molding Tip

Scenic wallpapers can be made extra effective when framed with a molding painted to match the paper's background color.

Sale Of Homes Increases

April, 1972, sales of existing homes in Cook County increased 10.6 per cent in dollar volume over figures recorded for the same month last year. This is the first time 1972 sales have surpassed those recorded for a comparable period in 1971, according to First Federal's latest Home Sales Index.

Dollar volume for April totaled $88,393,000 exceeding the April 1971, total of $80,629,600. Number volume reached 2,713, a 4.3 per cent increase over the 2,600 transactions recorded for the same month last year.

April, 1972, volume also showed a substantial increase over the previous month's figures. Number of transactions increased 17.7 per cent over the 2,305 experienced in March, 1972, and dollar volume exceeded March's $69,123,800 by 28.7 per cent.

Cumulative totals for the first four months of 1972 show a 3.1 per cent gain in number volume over the same period last year and a 0.1 per cent decrease in dollar volume. Number of transactions through April, 1972, totaled 9,081 for $277,702,300, compared to 8,810 sales for $279,255,900 during the same period in 1971.

JEFFERSON TOWNSHIP led the county in overall activity for April, with 280 sales for $10,502,500. This is 10.6 per cent of total number volume and 11.9 per cent of total dollar volume for the county's 33 townships.

Wheeling Township ranked second in dollar volume, with $5,331,500 for 6 per cent of total county sales, followed by Lake Township with $4,979,000, which is 5.6 per cent of total dollar volume. Lake placed second in number volume with 177 transactions for 6.5 per cent of the county total, followed closely by Thornton Township with 174 transactions for 6.4 per cent of total sales.

Due to increased savings costs, First Federal recently raised its mortgage rates a quarter point across the board, according to James C. Fitzmaurice, senior vice president and mortgage manager.

"Savings costs have increased because a greater percentage of our savings is in premium-rate certificates. However, this higher cost also helps us maintain the flow of funds necessary to supply an active mortgage market," he said.

FITZMAURICE ADDED that the current market for residential mortgage loans in the Chicago area is one of the most active he has ever seen.

"Our winter months, which usually fall off substantially due to a slowing of housing starts, exceeded any previous year in dollar volume. Sales throughout all Chicagoland are high, including the south and southwest areas where, for years, many people have been predicting huge increases in activity," he stated.

"It appears evident that growth in these areas will continue unabated for years to come, since much of the raw land available for home building is south and southwest."

No-Pets Rule Silly? You May Be Getting 'Favor'

The long-standing rule in apartment leases banning dogs, cats, and other pets has been a bone of contention between many pet-loving tenants and their building owners and managers.

But with the increase in the number of apartments per structure — not only in high-rises but in garden apartments — the rule makes more sense than ever, according to William D. Sally.

And now, on top of all that, is the growing concern over environment, plus mounting evidence that dogs and cats especially can be sources of illness to humans.

"The landlord who enforces the no-pets rule may seem unnecessarily cruel and heartless, but he's acting in the best interests of all residents of the building, as well as of the people in the neighborhood," explained William D. Sally, vice president of Baird & Warner, Inc., and general manager of the firm's property management division.

As Sally explained it, the no-pets rule was originally put into the standard lease form to protect the property and to make sure that other tenants were not annoyed. That was back in the days when most apartments were three-story walk-ups.

"If a third of the tenants in one of these old-style 36-apartment court buildings had pets, that meant 12 dogs or cats committing nuisances or otherwise bothering people," Sally said. "That was bad enough."

"Today, if a third of the residents of a 300-apartment high-rise or garden apartment complex have pets, that means 100 animals to worry about. And that's a real problem."

Actually, there are four parts to the problem:

— Economic. Pets have been known to cause damage, sometimes extensive, to the apartments in which they're kept, as well as to hallways, lobbies, elevators, and stairways. Chewed woodwork, clawed walls, and soiled carpeting are among the most common damage.

In addition, pets can kill or seriously harm trees, bushes, and lawns, entailing high maintenance costs for the landlord.

"Obviously, the building owner must cover the costs of damage, which is usually done by raising rents," Sally said.

— Tenant relations. While a dog is "man's best friend," he's usually so only to the owner; to everyone else, he can be a damned nuisance. Barking dogs and meowing cats have been known to cause tenant battles, and to cause non-pet-owning tenants to move out of a building where the no-pets rule is not enforced.

There have been many complaints about the mess animals make in elevators and halls, and barking or whining dogs left by themselves all day in an apartment while their owners are at work or away for other reasons, according to the Baird & Warner executive. This is unfair to the tenants who want peace and quiet — as well as cruel to the animal.

"ONCE YOU START making exceptions for the owner of a well-behaved pet, you leave the door open for trouble with tenants who have pets that are not so well-mannered," Sally said. "The best way to avoid trouble is to have the same rule for all: No pets."

— Environmental. The owners of new buildings, and owners of many older properties as well, are spending thousands of dollars to create a total environment to satisfy their tenants. This total environment includes garden areas, tree-shaded conversation areas, lakes, ponds, swimming pools, as well as neatly kept lawns.

"The presence of a few dogs and cats can spoil it all, simply by the damage they can do to the landscaping and other aspects of the environment," Sally said.

As the dog population continues to increase, the problem becomes worse, in terms of the increased amount of dog droppings that literally foul the environment. According to the Humane Society of the United States, 10,000 dogs and cats are born every hour in the U.S.; that's 96 million a year.

The result is that grassy areas have become "mine fields." The streets of many residential areas are being described as "outdoor privies." Sally says that the mess caused by a few dogs can spoil the environment for all of the tenants.

— Health. Dog droppings are viewed by some experts as the biggest problem. The litter attracts flies and creates odor. Swept or washed away, it pollutes the waterways. People have been injured by falls caused by slippery droppings.

Besides all that, dog feces can contain dangerous germs that can cause ringworm, scabies, and toxocara canis. Dog urine can cause leptospirosis. Nor are cats safe. They can cause toxoplasmosis, especially dangerous to pregnant women because of the defects it can cause in the fetus. Cats and their droppings are infection sources.

"When you consider all parts of the problem, it's easy to see why the no-pet rule makes good sense," the Baird & Warner executive said. "The landlord who insists on it is protecting more than himself; he's protecting his tenants and acting in the best interests of the community."

Durnan Joins Homefinders

Homefinders Realtors announces that Thomas J. Durnan has joined the staff of their Buffalo Grove office.

Durnan has had extensive experience in the real estate business in the Wheeling and Buffalo Grove area for the past three years. Prior to his entry into the real estate field, Durnan was associated with the Kitchens of Sara Lee.

A native of Ossian, Iowa, Tom, his wife Heide and their two children currently reside in Wheeling.

As an associate broker with Home-

Thomas

finders, Durnan will continue to operate in the residential, commercial, investment and industrial phases of the business.

DON HENRY, vice president of Marlis Construction Co., displays his office wall "papered" in old blueprints, in the business office at Deer Creek development in Deerfield. This idea would make a practical cost-free addition to any boy's room. The entire Deer Creek office suite is decorated in similar unusual and inexpensive ideas which visitors are welcome to view.

Ideas Lend 'Home' Touch To Marlis' Area Offices

New home decorating ideas turn up in many unlikely places. One unusual place is the business office of the Marlis Construction Company in Deerfield. Located in a home at the entrance to Deer Creek, the company's newest development, the office boasts a number of inexpensive, yet practical, decorating ideas.

"The most important aspect of any successful decorating scheme," says Marlene McGinnis, Marlis' sales manager, "is the idea behind it. We've tried to show that here in our offices."

The "wallpaper" in one office would make an attractive, practically cost-free addition to any boy's room. The deep blue walls, covered with geometrically perfect lines running at every angle are beautiful, yet definitely masculine. "The paper on these walls," explains Don Henry, Marlis' vice-president, "started out as a pile of old blueprints about to be thrown away. We just started pasting them to the walls with wallpaper paste. It was easier than regular wallpaper and didn't cost a penny."

Used as a wastebasket in the family-room-turned-conference-room is a copper coal bucket full of character that looks to be at least 200 years old. It is really an inexpensive Belgian import made last year.

Visitors to the office of President Ralph Markus see an impressive, yet inexpensive set of newly manufactured genuine flintlock pistols. As safe as the familiar toy cap gun, their frontier look never fails to draw comment from every man in the room. Advertisements for these safe, yet real, working flintlock hand guns and long rifles can be found on sporting magazines on most newsstands. Since they are safe, licenses and registration, etc., are not required.

"Here's an easy way to make a desk — or bar — look built in," says executive vice president Tom Boucher. "The front and sides of this desk were badly scratched. We took an extra piece of carpeting, matching the carpeting on the floor, and tacked it to the front and sides of the desk. The same carpeting on both the floor and desk front gives a beautiful built-in look without any built-in costs."

Visitors are cordially invited to stop by Deer Creek to see the Deer Creek model homes and office. Take Edens Expressway or the Tri-State Tollway to Deerfield Road in Deerfield. Go West to Riverwoods Road, then North 1½ miles to Deer Creek.

Home Builders Assoc. Wine-Tasting Set

A wine-tasting party will close out the meeting season until next fall for the Home Builders Association of Lake County when members convene on Monday, June 19, at the Parkway Restaurant in Waukegan, according to President Robert Spillane of Hallmar, Inc. in Zion.

Wives have been invited to enjoy this special program which includes a sampling of various wines and a film narrated by Joseph Cotton. The Christian Brothers Winery will present the program which is being sponsored by the Modern American Mortgage Corp.

The cocktail hour, also being hosted by the Mortgage Corp., will begin at 6 p.m. and dinner will be served at 7 p.m. Reservations can be made through Maria Svaidl at the Home Builders office, 782-8657. Tickets are $7.50 per person with advance registration or $8.50 at the door.

Dear Homeowner:

Thinking ahead to a move? Today's home not suited to tomorrow's needs?

At best, a move involves inconvenience. At its worst, a move can be a nightmare of problems and unforeseen difficulties, and very real financial hardship.

BUY FIRST OR SELL FIRST???

BUY... and risk DOUBLE MORTGAGE PAYMENTS or a DISTRESS SALE!

SELL...and risk DOUBLE MOVE EXPENSE or a FORCED PURCHASE!

AND IF THE MARKET CHANGES... THEN WHAT???

Kole Real Estate, Ltd. has a TRADE PROGRAM which will guarantee the sale of your present home and allow you to purchase your new home without the possibility of owning two homes! Our GUARANTEE POLICY is based on having everyone who is buying another home participate in our guarantee fee so that the risk is spread out over many homes; doesn't this make sense? Everything will be in writing so you will always know in advance the most and the least you may expect from the sale of your home. We eliminate the uncertainties of equity loss and inconvenient moving dates.

It is so much easier to buy and sell real estate when the management of complex problems are handled by professionals. Every member of Kole's TRADE PROGRAM staff has had extensive training in the specialized business of Home Trading. Why not give us a call so that we may familiarize you with the benefits of our exclusive guarantee!

Remember, Kole cares about you, your home and the community!

Sincerely,

KOLE REAL ESTATE, LTD.

JOHN L. MARKAY, left, partner in the rapidly expanding firm of Gladstone, Realtors, congratulates John Touhy on his promotion to manager of the firm's sixth office, which opened last week in Mt. Prospect.

Gladstone Opens Sixth Office In NW Suburbs

Gladstone, Realtors, came a step nearer its aim to serve the entire Northwest suburban area with the opening last week of its sixth office. The new branch is located at 860 E. Northwest Hwy., Mount Prospect, the site of an old established real estate firm.

John L. Markay, of Mount Prospect, partner in the firm with Vincent J. Bolger of Wheaton, said, "We realized back in 1964 that the Northwest suburbs were destined to become Chicago's champion growth area." The two DePaul graduates — Markay has a degree in business and Bolger a degree in law — started out in a one-room office in Franklin Park. Their quarters were so small that early clients referred to it as "the dollhouse." Markay, Bolger, and a part-time receptionist-typist were the only members of the organization.

The vigorous pair enlarged their space in Franklin Park and in time opened offices in Des Plaines and Elk Grove Village. Gladstone's industrial-investment office now shares a building with the residential division in Elk Grove Village. Earlier this year, a fifth office was opened in Villa Park and currently the Des Plaines building is being renovated to double its space. Staff members now number more than 50.

The company was one of the first in the area and in Illinois to offer a guaranteed sales plan for home sellers. Another first was the installation of two-way radios in all salesmen's cars to provide customers with prompt and speedy service.

A firm believer in continuing education, Gladstone regularly offers courses in real estate licensing. The top students are hired by the company and go on to additional training under the wing of experienced salesmen. In line with this policy, the company promotes from within, the partners point out. John Touhy, formerly in the Des Plaines office, has been named Mount Prospect office manager.

Touhy is a graduate of St. George High School in Evanston and of Southern Illinois University, where he earned a degree in political science. During his service in the U.S. Navy, he cruised European and Red Sea ports.

Rocco De Paul Joins Nelson Real Estate

Rocco DePaul has joined the Robert L. Nelson real estate sales staff and will operate out of the Nelson Real Estate Mount Prospect office. He has been a licensed real estate broker since 1956 and has completed advance courses in real estate appraisal and has been active in the sub-division of extensive land in the Northwest suburbs.

DePaul resides in Arlington Heights with his wife and four children.

Pre-Finished Metals Leases In Des Plaines

Pre-Finished Metals, Inc. has leased the entire 30,000 square foot building at 515 East Jarvis Avenue, Des Plaines, it was announced by Strobeck, Reiss & Company, Realtors.

Pre-Finished Metals is headquartered at 2111 East Pratt Avenue, Elk Grove Village and will use the Jarvis Avenue space as a warehouse.

James H. Klein of Strobeck, Reiss, represented the lessee and James Anderson of Paul-Sutherland represented the building in the leasing negotiations.

Water Reaches Permanent Depth At Apple Canyon

Water topped over the spillway of the dam at Apple Canyon Lake, near Galena, Ill., on May 6, signifying the completion of the largest man-made lake in North-central Illinois. The lake, which reaches depths of up to 76 feet, was created by damming Hell's Branch Creek in scenic Jo Daviess County. The 420-acre lake, which is almost three miles long, is one of the major attractions at this new vacation-home community, under development by the Branigan Organization, Madison, Ill., a subsidiary of Union Camp. It took less than two years for the lake to fill, after the closing of the dam in July, 1969.

All water sports, including fishing, are now available on the lake which offers fifteen miles of shoreline.

Another recreation outlet nearing completion is the private campground, featuring 99 sites, which is open to all property owners, many who have not yet built their homes. The campgrounds, plus ranch-style shower and laundry building, will be finished about mid-June.

The heated swimming pool, adjacent to the Canyon Clubhouse, is already in operation, and the nine-hole golf course, weather permitting, will open in July.

A new fleet of boats, including a 27-foot pontoon boat, which holds 12 passengers, is available for touring the lake. A pony ring is open for children visiting the lake and riding horses are also available.

All major construction, such as the dam, lake, clubhouse, roads and golf course, is now completed at Apple Canyon Lake. More than two-thirds of the 2,600 home sites, all platted and recorded with the county, state and government offices in Washington, D.C., have been sold, according to Kessler. About 85 homes, all year-round, are either up or under construction.

Tours of Apple Canyon Lake are available daily from 9 a.m. until dusk, seven days a week.

To get to Apple Canyon Lake, take highway 20 west through Freeport, and Stockton, then follow the signs.

Introduce Building Automation

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — A new building automation system that controls environment and intrusion and fire alarms by means of a computer has been introduced by the Johnson Service Co.

One of the first installations is designed to control a 60 building network and 50 of these buildings, for Illinois Bell Telephone Co. of Chicago, will communicate with a new central processing unit via telephone lines.

The firm said its JC-80 system makes instant decisions against stored ideal conditions and simultaneously directs building operations to conform with the ideals.

Johnson said the system offers better service to building occupants at lower costs because it is designed to precise building automation criteria. Johnson said the savings in fuel, power and equipment efficiency can be expected to pay for a new control system installation in less than three years.

The system includes control of air conditioning, air pressure, heating, cooling, ventilation, fire and smoke protection, security, clock systems and other functions.

In addition to its building automation functions, Johnson said, the central control unit can also be used for other electronic data handling such as inventory control and cost records. The firm said the system is expandable from a small nucleus consisting of a minicomputer and operator's console to a central system which directs the operations of any number of subsystems. Data communications can be by direct wire or leased telephone lines.

John W. Chapman Jr.

Chapman Retains Post As Federal Board Chairman

John W. Chapman Jr. of Northbrook, chairman of the Chicago Federal Executive Board, was unanimously reelected to that position. Chapman's second term as Chairman will begin July 1. The Federal Executive Board is comprised of the heads of all federal departments and agencies in the Chicago Metropolitan Area and is one of 25 such boards in the United States.

A 51-year old native of Chicago, Chapman returned in 1970 to that city as regional administrator of the General Services Administration's six-state midwest region, after serving as deputy administrator of GSA from March, 1969 to September, 1970. He also serves as special assistant for regional affairs to the GSA administrator.

A career spanning more than 30 years of federal service has eminently qualified Chapman to handle the responsibilities of the FEB chairman. During his present term, he has instituted new programs in the areas of consumer affairs, environmental protection, and formed the Voluntary Action Committee.

Educated in the Chicago public schools the University of Chicago and the University of Iowa, Chapman enlisted in the Army during World War II and rose to the rank of lieutenant colonel. In 1955 he became the youngest man in GSA history to hold the position of regional commissioner and in 1962 was appointed assistant commissioner of GSA's Public Building Service in Washington, D.C.

Hanover Highlands Nears Completion

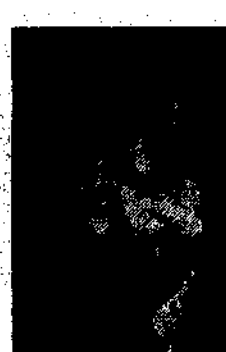

Only a few homes remain in 3H Building Corporation's Hanover Highlands, Hanover Park, Illinois, providing an excellent opportunity for home buyers who would like to locate where construction activity will soon cease. Model homes, which are on display, are offered for sale with complete furnishings.

3H has built and sold more than 2700 homes in the northwest suburban community. "Hanover Highlands was our first major development," said William A. Maybrook, director of marketing. "While we are certainly pleased with its success, there is definitely a sense of nostalgia as we close out sales there." Maybrook said that three and four bedroom homes price from $25,990 may still be ordered.

THE

Last year,
all John Benson saved was $54.32.

This year, he joined the Payroll Savings Plan.

Poor John. Money just seemed to slip right through his fingers. Every time he planned to stash something away, there wasn't anything left.

Then John decided to join the Payroll Savings Plan where he works. Now, an amount he specifies is automatically set aside from his check before he gets it. And invested in U.S. Savings Bonds.

Because John has become such a systematic saver, he's almost forgotten about it. When he gets around to remembering, he's going to have quite a nest egg laid away.

And now there's a bonus interest rate on all U.S. Savings Bonds—for E Bonds, 5½% when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months 14% (the first year). That extra 14% payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970... with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.

If you keep forgetting to save something out of your check, join the Payroll Savings Plan and let somebody else do the remembering for you.

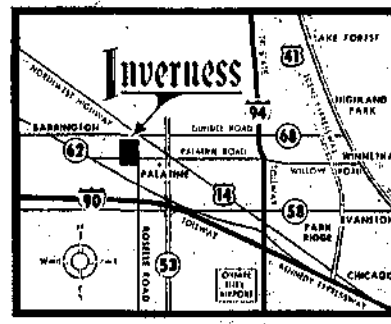

Take stock in America.
New Bonds pay a bonus at maturity.

The U.S. Government guarantees the full redemption value of its U.S. Savings Bonds. The U.S. Government does not insure the value of the Bonds.

CHANGES

Can you imagine a village where there are no property fences? Where the smallest homesites are an acre? Where there is no industry? Where no two homes are alike? Where every home must receive architectural approval? These are just a few of the unusual features of Inverness that are protected by prudent deed restrictions to jealously guard against changes in the character, value and way of living in the community. How much does it cost to join this exclusive 450-family village? Our acre-or-larger homesites start at $14,000, with only 20% down and an annual percentage rate of 7%. We also have a portfolio of homes for sale for immediate occupancy due to executive transfers. Prices range from $60,000 to $200,000. Drive out today; or, if you prefer, send for a free brochure.

Our picturesque 4-Silo office is open daily on Baldwin Road, just west of Northwest Highway (Rte. 14) between Palatine and Barrington. Convenient to Northwest Tollway (north from Rte. 53 exit).

*Example $14,000 purchase—$2800 down, $4 monthly payments of $169.04.

Cooks Seem Modest Produce Plus Protein

Women are rather modest about their cooking ability, according to a poll of 3,500 ladies by Sears, Roebuck & Co.

One of every four women questioned said they consider themselves "less-than-satisfactory" cooks. Six out of 10 said they are good cooks. Only 15 of every 100 women gave themselves a rating of "excellent" in the cooking department.

Now the promises of garden catalogues are coming true, it's time to reap the goodness of fresh vegetables from back yard or grocery and bring more, and more important, salads to the table. To make salads into satisfying meals, add meat, Julienne strips of any one of a variety of ready-to-serve sausages and other cold cuts give substance to a salad. So, too, do strips of leftover roasts.

Breakfast skippers will be enticed by this fancy breakfast in a sandwich that can be made the night before and cooked in minutes. Everyone has enjoyed French toast, bread dipped in egg and milk and fried. French toast, developed at least five centuries ago by thrifty homemakers, seems to be a homely dish, an economical way to use stale or "lost" bread. But once dry bread has been transformed into French toast — dipped in custard and fried crisp on the outside tender on the inside — the lost is found and, appropriately, the Belgians call it "pain trouve" or "found bread." Add slices of ham and some special seasonings to French toast and the result is this breakfast skipper's temptation called French Ham Sandwiches.

Ham sandwiches spread with mustard butter are soaked in an egg and milk mixture flavored with Worcestershire sauce then broiled. The custard soaked bread will puff and turn golden brown under the broiler for a tempting breakfast few people will be able to pass up. Serve French Ham Sandwiches with your favorite syrup, orange juice and glasses of nutritious milk for a total of only 683 calories. Breakfast should provide about one-third of the day's food requirements.

1 1/2 teaspoons prepared mustard
8 slices (3/8" thick)
Vienna bread
4 slices (1-oz. each) cooked ham
3 eggs, beaten
1/2 cup milk
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1/4 teaspoon salt

This is a well-balanced meal with each of the four basic food groups represented, and the addition of whole milk to the menu supplies a breakfast with many of the required daily nutrients he needs for energy and good health without adding unnecessary calories. An 8-ounce glass of whole milk adds only 160 calories to your daily calorie total because it's 98 per cent fat free.

FRENCH HAM SANDWICHES

3 tablespoons butter, softened

Blend butter and mustard; spread on both sides of bread. Place ham on four slices of bread; top with remaining four slices. Combine eggs, milk, Worcestershire sauce and salt. Place sandwiches in buttered 9-inch square baking pan; pour egg-milk mixture over sandwiches. Turn sandwiches to coat both sides evenly. Allow to stand 30 minutes or overnight in refrigerator. Remove to broiler pan; broil sandwiches 6 inches from heat, 3-4 minutes; turn and broil until golden brown. Serve with maple or fruit syrup. Makes 4 servings.

A Spicy Sauce For Franks

Light the charcoal — it's barbecue time in the backyard again. Between now and the day the fires are extinguished at the close of the summer season, we'll bet that one item appears quite frequently on the menu. What is the item? The frankfurter or hot dog. It is popular because it is simple to barbecue and a meal that appeals to every age group.

Easy though it is to barbecue, the frankfurter is hardly ever served or eaten just plain. It's usually accompanied by sauces or relishes and really lends itself very well to this type of glamour treatment.

This summer, when you're thinking about sauces to serve with frankfurters, remember the dairy product that is rapidly becoming indispensable to modern cooks. Yes, dairy sour cream goes with frankfurters, too. In this recipe, it combines with onions and seasonings to form a spicy sauce that can be enjoyed either hot or cold. If you choose to serve the sauce hot, be sure to heat it slowly over low heat, for dairy sour cream is allergic to high temperatures. A few minutes on the grill, away from the hot coals, will be sufficient to heat the sauce.

NIPPY SOUR CREAM SAUCE

- 1 cup dairy sour cream
- 2 tablespoons prepared mustard
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
- 3/4 teaspoon salt
- Dash pepper
- 4 drops hot pepper sauce

Combine all ingredients; mix thoroughly. Serve hot or cold with frankfurters or hamburgers. Yield: 1 cup sauce.

Eggs Star In Budget Loaf

Everybody's trying to save on food these days. It's one of the few areas of the budget where you can cut corners by smart shopping and clever cooking. Economy dishes need not be boring. Witness this Elegant Gelled Egg loaf made with hard-cooked eggs in a lemon and mayonnaise gelatine base with crisp trimmings. Unflavored gelatine is an artful way to economize for it turns leftovers or economy foods into appetizing and interesting dishes. They're so good-looking, too. This delicious loaf calls for practically no cooking — just enough to dissolve the gelatine thoroughly.

ELEGANT GELLED EGG LOAF

- 1 envelope unflavored gelatine
- 1/2 cup cold water
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1/8 teaspoon pepper
- 3/4 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
- 1 1/2 teaspoons grated onion
- 1/2 cup finely diced celery

- 1/4 cup finely diced green pepper
- 1/4 cup chopped pimiento
- 4 hard-cooked eggs, chopped

Sprinkle gelatine on cold water in saucepan to soften. Place over low heat, stirring constantly, until gelatine is dissolved. Remove from heat; add salt, lemon juice and pepper. Cool. Add mayonnaise; mix in remaining ingredients. Turn into a 3-cup loaf pan or mold; chill until firm. Unmold on crisp greens.

Yield: 4-6 servings.

Note: If desired, recipe may be doubled.

Ham Insurance

A large canned ham in the refrigerator is especially valuable company dinner insurance in the summer when parties are often spontaneous and relatives or friends may drop in unexpectedly. A ham can be kept unopened in the refrigerator for several months. What if company doesn't materialize? No problem — that ham will make a fine family meal with leftovers for satisfying salads and hearty sandwiches.

Now The Cook Can Vacation, Too

Family camping takes many forms in all parts of the country. Some families go the tent-and-no-conveniences route. Others drive mobile campers and pull in to campsites with electricity, recreation buildings and hot-and-cold showers. Whatever the choice, cooking continues to be the chore of a housewife really not on vacation when it comes to feeding appetites whetted by outdoor activities. Many women find the new cooking magic bags for roasting, boiling, freezing and reheating with little cleanup make the "vacation" job much easier.

COOKING MAGIC CHILI

- 4 cups water
- 1 teaspoon cumin
- 1 tablespoon onion flakes
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1/2 teaspoon garlic salt
- 2 tablespoons chili powder or to taste
- 1 teaspoon black pepper
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 1 teaspoon all-spice
- 1/2 teaspoon red pepper
- 1 (6 oz.) can tomato paste
- 1/2 tablespoons vinegar
- 3 bay leaves
- 1 (15 oz.) can kidney beans
- 2 pounds ground chuck

Mix all ingredients except meat in a 12x18-inch cooking magic bag. Crumble in uncooked meat. Twist tie shut 2 inches from top. Place in a 13x9-inch baking pan. Puncture 5-8 small holes in top of bag. Bake 2 hours in pre-heated 350-degree oven. Skim off excess grease. Then freeze flat in 2 serving portions in 8x10-inch cooking magic bags for camping trip. Heat in boiling water, uncovered, for 25-30 minutes to serve.

CHICKEN TETRAZZINI

- 1/4 pound fresh mushrooms, cleaned and sliced
- 5 tablespoons butter or margarine, divided
- 5 tablespoons flour
- 2 cups chicken broth
- 1 cup light cream
- Salt and pepper
- 2 cups diced or silvered, cooked chicken
- 1 package (8 oz.) thin spaghetti
- 1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese

In a skillet lightly brown mushrooms in 1 tablespoon butter. Remove from skillet and reserve. Melt remaining butter in skillet. Stir in flour. Remove from heat and stir in chicken broth. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly until smooth and thickened. Add cream. Season to taste. Divide sauce in half. Add chicken and mushrooms to the first stage according to package directions. Drain and stir in the other half of the sauce.

Place in 10x15-inch cooking magic bag in a 2-quart casserole. Turn top open in a double fold. Put spaghetti mixture into casserole. Make a hole in the center of the spaghetti and pour in the cooled chicken mixture. Twist bag close to top of food and secure with twister tie and freeze. To reheat, place bag in boiling water, uncovered, for 25-30 minutes until piping hot. Open bag, sprinkle with grat-

Don't Wash Cherries

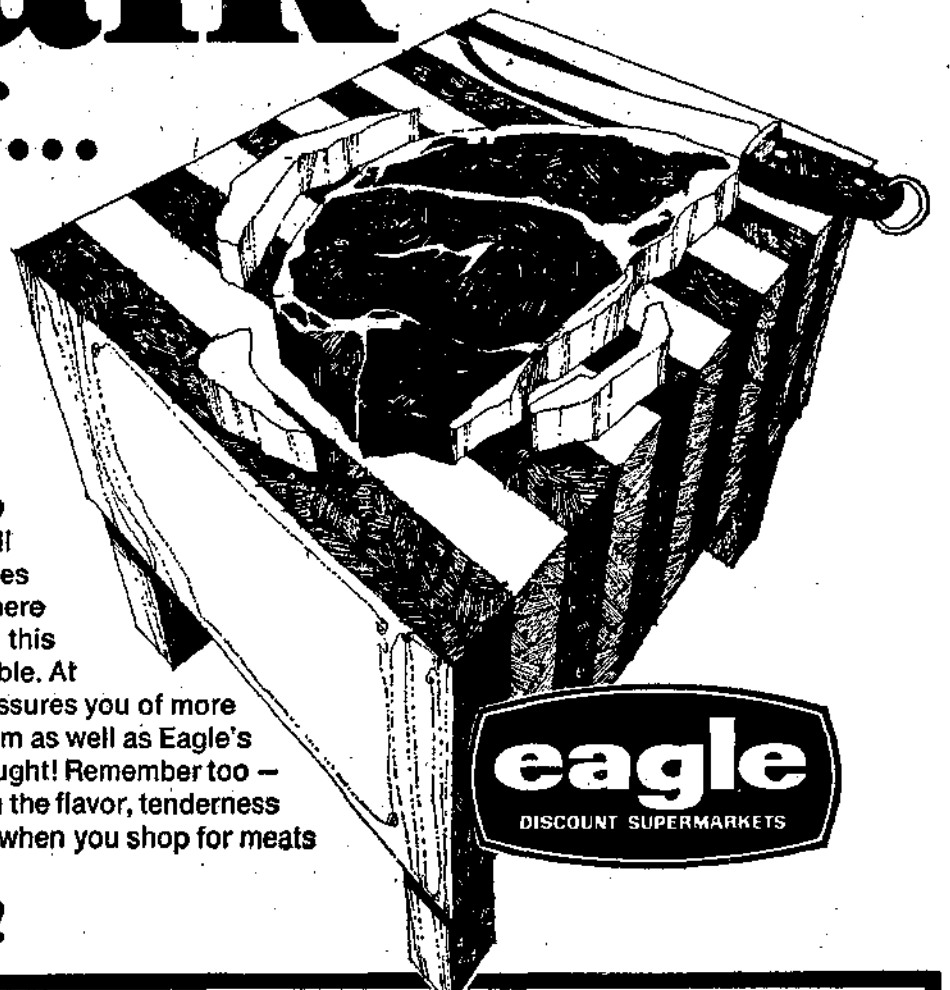

UPI — Cherries should not be washed before storing, according to food and nutrition specialists at Texas A & M University.

The experts say fresh cherries should be refrigerated unwashed and with stems until they are actually prepared for eating. The fruit is very perishable and should be eaten within two days.

Plain Talk about Trimming Beef...

In Plain Talk — the way meat cuts are trimmed is even more important than the price per pound! Meat is the biggest single item in the food budget. The way meat cuts are trimmed can increase your cost per serving. For example — the chine bone, gristle, and excess fat in an ordinary standing rib roast, can add up to 14% of its total weight! In plain figures, there can be as much as 70c worth of sheer waste in a $5 roast — waste that Eagle trims away before it is weighed. And in T-bone steaks, the excess fat and tough tail end in an ordinary size steak, can easily add 4 ounces of weight — and a proportionate amount to the price you pay for it. But NOT AT EAGLE! Here again, these are carefully trimmed before you buy your steak. AND THAT'S NOT ALL. What Eagle leaves IN a cut is just as important. You get all the lean, tender part in every chuck roast. And every Eagle round steak includes the "eye" of round — the choice part that is often removed completely elsewhere and sold under some fancy name at a much higher price per pound. When this happens, the very best part of your round steak ends up on someone else's table. At Eagle, it isn't only what comes OFF that counts — it's also what's left IN that assures you of more good eating — more real value for your money. So always compare Eagle's trim as well as Eagle's low discount prices. You'll discover that you are saving even more than you thought! Remember too — all Eagle Meats are "Bonded" for quality. You must be completely satisfied with the flavor, tenderness and quality — or have the full purchase price refunded! You CAN'T go wrong when you shop for meats at Eagle.

Eagle Bonded Beef... it's a Tender Subject!

Choose Chicken On Father's Day

If an author were to write a manual on the care and feeding of fathers, chances are that he would recommend the frequent appearance of chicken. According to the National Broiler Council, chicken is the favorite of all the tending meats. That's why the affable bird is sure to turn up on the menu Sunday for Father's Day.

Chicken can come to the table in virtually hundreds of ways. Chicken may be simmered, roasted, grilled, broiled, sautéed, stewed — in short, cooked in any of the basic fashions. Its method of preparation is bounded only by the imagination of the cook, and every homemaker worth her salt has a large repertoire of her favorite ways with a broiler-fryer.

The savvy homemaker knows that when she feeds her family chicken, she is providing top-notch nutrition value, too. An average serving of chicken offers 23 grams of quality protein. And while chicken is generous with protein, it is stingy with calories, making it ideal for weight-watching fathers — an average serving of broiled chicken breast yields a gentle 185 calories.

To provide Dad with the special dinner that will make Father's Day memorable, we suggest Lemon-Sauced Chicken Dinner. The dish begins with fried chicken, the national favorite way with the bird, and winds up with a creamy lemon sauce. The sauce is poured over the chicken, and the bird is sprinkled with Parmesan, and browned under the broiler.

With the chicken, serve marinated vegetables as a pleasant change of pace from tossed salad. Combine tomato wedges, cooked green beans and chopped onion; marinate in olive oil and vinegar seasoned with salt and pepper to taste. And to add another festive note, accompany with minted iced tea. For dessert, Dad's favorite cake or an especially luscious pie, such as Molasses Pecan Pie.

DAD'S LEMON-SAUCED CHICKEN DINNER

1 broiler-fryer chicken, cut in serving pieces
1 teaspoon Ac'cent
1 teaspoon Salt
1/4 cup butter or margarine
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 teaspoons grated lemon rind
2 teaspoons sugar
1/2 cup light cream
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
1 lemon, thinly sliced

Sprinkle chicken with Ac'cent and salt. Brown in butter in skillet 20 minutes. Cover, cook over low heat 30 minutes. Remove chicken. Keep in a warm place.

OLD FASHIONED MOLASSES PECAN PIE

3 eggs, slightly beaten
1/4 cup unsulphured molasses
1/4 cup light corn syrup
2 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
1/8 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 tablespoon flour
1 cup pecan halves
1 unbaked 8-inch pastry shell

Combine eggs, molasses, corn syrup, melted butter, salt and vanilla in mixing bowl. Make a paste of small amount of mixture and flour; stir into remaining mixture. Add pecans. Turn into unbaked pastry shell. Bake in 325 degree oven 1 hour, or until set. Yield: One 8-inch pie.

Franfare

by Fran Heckart

At a recent luncheon in Birmingham Ala., I had a chance to sample a dessert punch commonly known in the southern states as coffee punch.

The beverage has a coffee base with mocha, vanilla or chocolate ice cream floating on top. The result is a tan, frothy mixture that tastes delicious.

When I first tried the lunch it was served along with small tea cookies for dessert. However, since I receive the recipes from Ann McDuffie, food editor of the Tampa Tribune, I've decided that it makes an excellent summer dessert with or without cookies. I have also served it instead of hot coffee after dinner.

The following recipes are from the Tampa Junior League's Gasparilla Cookbook. Mrs. McDuffie added that Gasparilla (Jose Gaspar) was a pirate who headquartered in Tampa. What she didn't add was when or how he happened to have a cookbook named after him but the recipes are excellent.

The two following recipes are simply variations of the same type of punch. Once you become familiar with the proportions and your own taste preferences both can be easily adapted for quantity and flavor.

Other guests at the luncheon suggested adding brandy rum or Irish Whisky, however I suggest trying the recipe before attempting any major changes or additions.

MOCHA PUNCH

1 cup whipping cream
4 cups freshly made coffee (or instant)
1 quart chocolate ice cream
2 tablespoons rum or 1/2 teaspoon almond extract
1/8 teaspoon salt
Freshly ground nutmeg or grated sweet chocolate

Chill coffee. Whip cream until stiff. Pour chilled coffee into a large chilled bowl. Add 1/4 of the ice cream. Beat until ice cream is partially melted. Add extract and salt. Fold in remainder of ice cream and all but a cupful of whipped cream. Place punch in tall glasses. Garnish tops with reserved cream. Sprinkle with nutmeg or chocolate. Makes 12 servings.

COFFEE MOCHA

2 quarts strong coffee
(1/4 cup instant to 1 quart water)
2 cups simple syrup
(one cup water and one cup sugar boiled together)
1 quart homogenized milk
1 quart vanilla or coffee ice cream

Make coffee and simple syrup in advance and have cold. Mix all liquid ingredients in punch bowl. Spoon 1 quart ice cream on top. Serve immediately. Makes about 28 servings.

Mostly For Men

by Charles Flynn

Gas grills are growing in popularity as installations for patio and backyards. As a labor saver the grills are fine for the outdoor chef, clean and handy. Unfortunately, you can't take one on a picnic.

Before starting your first adventure be sure you understand the equipment. Invariably you should light the burner, turn control to high and preheat for 10 minutes. Now, you're ready.

Use of the hood normally depends upon whether you wish to smoke whatever you're cooking, although it also reduces cooking time since heat is held in and effect of wind is negligible.

In general chicken and pork are cooked over low to medium flame, fish and beef on medium to high, most vegetables in foil over medium heat with the hood down.

Here are some interesting dishes you might try on your gas grill or as readily on a charcoal grill. Start with brats in a crock. Soak 12 bratwurst sausages in water for 10 minutes. Drain and broil over medium flame 10 to 12 minutes turning often to brown evenly.

In a sauce pan heat 1 1/2 cups beer and 1/4 cup butter or margarine. Cut bratwurst into 1 1/2 inch pieces, place in the pan, cover and steam on low flame. Mix sauce of equal amounts of mayonnaise and horseradish. Serve bratwurst pieces on toothpicks with sauce available for dipping if guests desire. Enough for 6 to 8.

CANADIAN STYLE bacon is elegant cooked on a spit over a gas grill or other cooker. To serve 8 select a piece of Canadian bacon about 2 1/2 to 3 pounds. Score diagonally.

Make a baste of 1/4 cup pineapple juice, 1/4 cup brown sugar and 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard.

Put bacon on the spit and secure with prongs. Cook over low heat with cover down 45 minutes to an hour, basting frequently.

Here's an interesting vegetable dish which may or doesn't have to be prepared outdoors. Wipe clean and slice 8 fresh mushrooms. Sauté gently in 2 tablespoons butter or margarine. Dice 3 little green onions and add to mushrooms along with 1/2 teaspoon lemon juice.

Cook until onions are soft. Now add a No. 2 can of good quality green peas or a package of frozen peas cooked according to package directions. Heat through and serve to 4.

DuBrow On TV

by Rick DuBrow

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Criticism of television violence by government figures and citizens' groups has had little effect on the new fall schedules of the commercial video networks.

Despite polite head-nodding by the three major networks, they are showing their obvious disdain for such criticism by devoting roughly one-third of their prime-time programs to action-adventure series. Plus they all will be using movies and made-for-television movies in the action-adventure category.

CBS-TV is just about the only network of the big three not beefing up on its action-adventure series. And the only reason for that is that it had so many this past season it just couldn't allow its distain to show more flagrantly. Nonetheless, CBS-TV will still have representative number of violence-prone series on its schedule, all returning from this season: "Cannon," "Gunsmoke," "Mannix," "Mission: Impossible" and "Hawaii Five-O."

OVER AT ABC-TV, meanwhile, the action-adventure format is also in bloom, including, of course, such returning series as "The Mod Squad," "The FBI" and "Alias Smith and Jones." Another weekly returning show, "The Sixth Sense," which has dealt primarily with such matters as extrasensory perception, will, according to the network, be more action-oriented. Then there are the new ABC-TV series, among them:

—"The Streets of San Francisco," a traditional one-hour police show.

—"The Rookies," an hour program about young policemen with a contemporary outlook.

—"The Men," an hour trilogy in which two of the alternating shows are about special agents and the third concerns a police officer who specializes in finding missing persons.

—"Kung Fu," occasional hours about an Oriental hero in the old West.

At NBC-TV, where some spokesmen frankly felt the network had a "soft" ratings — vulnerable schedule this past season, there will be a beefing up of action-adventure shows come fall. Returning series in this category include "Ironside" and "Adam-12." "Rod Serling's Night Gallery" can also undoubtedly be listed here since Serling has complained the new version, cut from an hour to 30 minutes, will be more action-oriented.

IN ADDITION, there will be "NBC Sunday Mystery" formerly "NBC Mystery Movie," which offers alternating police shows starring Rock Hudson, Peter Falk and Dennis Weaver. In the new season, there will be a fourth alternating segment, "Hec Ramsey," a turn-of-the-century Western with Richard Boone as a fellow who uses new investigating devices to solve crimes.

—"Banyon," an hour about a 1930 private eye.

—"NBC Wednesday Mystery," a 90-minute entry of alternating segments with Richard Widmark as a police detective, George Peppard as an insurance investigator and James Farentino as another investigator.

—"People," an hour starring Hugh O'Brian as a crime-and-mystery solver for a worldwide organization, and with Doug McClure and Tony Franciosa working for the same organization and headlining occasional episodes.

It's all action-adventure, of course. Violence? Perish the thought.

Polish Lifestyles Are Changing In Warsaw

EDITOR'S NOTE: UPI's chief diplomatic correspondent K. C. Thaler is currently on tour of Eastern European capitals. In the following report he looks at the way Polish life styles are changing in Warsaw, the capital, now almost completely reconstructed after being destroyed by the Nazis in World War II.

by K. C. THALER

WARSAW (UPI) — Warsaw, flattened by the Nazis a generation ago, is busy filling in the remaining gaps to complete the city's impressive feat of reconstruction.

Skyscrapers have sprung up to replace what were vast areas of rubble a few years ago.

A Western-type shopping center graces the inner city with stores that look better and have more to offer than two or three years ago.

A super modern Inter-Continental Hotel is going up in one of the leading avenues, facing the much maligned "Palace of Culture," a personal post-war gift from Stalin who had it built in the ornate pseudo-cathedral style of Moscow's first skyscrapers.

The three-lane avenues are a Western motorists' dream, especially since there were still relatively few cars on the roads of the capital.

THE GENERAL PICTURE is less drab in the benign spring sun than in past years. Life is more colorful and the supply of food and consumer goods has become greater and the quality has improved. And though still materially a long way behind Western countries, for most people the improvements are clearly a welcome advance and relief after the hardships of the past.

With prices frozen for the past 18 months, increased wages and many doing two jobs or more there is more money to spend. In fact too much money is not chasing too few goods.

It still takes a month's wages or more to pay for a modest ready-made suit and more than a half-week's salary to buy a pair of shoes. It would take all of three years average wages to buy the cheapest of cars and more than that to acquire the Polish made Fiat car, though there is a smaller and cheaper one in preparation.

BUT RENTS ARE nominal and transport cheap.

Restaurants and coffee houses have become more common. Night clubs catering principally to tourists have "stooped" to the so-called imperialist decadence of Western Striptease.

Hippies are a rare sight and drug addicts and public hooliganism exceptional. But young people have evidently taken to Western style unconventional dress that causes no raised eyebrows any longer.

One of the greatest problems, despite the immense efforts made, is still the shortage of housing. More than one million apartments are needed immediately and more still in the future. The government is concentrating on this as one of the most urgent tasks, especially outside the capital.

An Elegant Brunch To Honor Dad

If you really want to make Dad feel like a king on Father's Day, serve him Nob Hill Brunch. Naturally, the man of the house will want to sleep a little later on Sunday so you'll have extra time to plan and prepare for a leisurely mid-morning meal.

Nob Hill Brunch is elegant, yet hearty enough for king-size appetites.

Asparagus, the aristocrat of vegetables, is combined with a seasoned bread stuffing to make a tasty bed for the poached egg which perches atop each serving. An easy shrimp over-sauce gives a touch of elegance and flavor excitement to the dish.

Menu mates could be fresh fruit compote and cinnamon rolls. Mugs of cranberry juice cocktail and steaming hot coffee complete the brunch.

NOB HILL BRUNCH

- 1 package (9-ounces) cut spears asparagus frozen in butter sauce
- 2 cups herb seasoned bread stuffing
- 1/4 cup butter, melted
- 4 poached eggs

Cook asparagus according to package directions. Combine asparagus in butter sauce with stuffing and melted butter. Spoon into individual shallow casseroles or onto serving plates. Top with eggs. Spoon shrimp sauce over eggs. Makes 4 servings.

SHRIMP SAUCE

- 1 can (10-ounces), frozen condensed cream of shrimp soup, defrosted
- 1/4 cup dairy sour cream

Combine soup and sour cream in small saucepan. Heat through; do not boil.

The Art Of

Identifying Bargains

(Fourth in a Series)

Not every food in the supermarket is a bargain, but a great many are. Identifying your best buys begins by knowing personal and family needs and choosing foods that suit them best.

With more women working and increasing community demands, time has become especially important to the family food shopper. Food products with built-in convenience can save many minutes and give a great deal of family satisfaction. A trip up one aisle and down the next will show you that ready-prepared and quick-to-fix foods exist in every supermarket section.

Their popularity stems from the knowledge that convenience foods involve little or no waste in comparison to do-it-yourself foods. One can easily tell how many servings each will provide and can buy accordingly. There is no running from store to store trying to find a specialty ingredient or an exotic spice. The manufacturer saves you this effort by assembling the same quality ingredients right in the package, which as a bonus conserves vital storage space. Even though in some cases you pay a little more, the time and energy you save with built-in convenience foods might well be worth the expense.

To get a totally accurate picture of savings, keep in mind the cost of ingredients that must be added to mixes such as milk, eggs, tomato sauce, etc., when comparing costs of packaged foods to raw ingredients.

Some, but by no means all, convenience foods are more expensive. Items such as frozen orange juice concentrate, instant coffee, cake and biscuit mixes are examples of convenience products that are often less expensive than their home-prepared counterparts.

The reliability of convenience foods and mixes is another reason why they have personal and family appeal. With a mix you know what the final results will be — and that they will please your family. This is important when there are young cooks in the family who are just developing meal preparation skills. Good results are positive reinforcement, and kitchen success with easy-to-use convenience products offers encouragement to continue culinary efforts.

(Next week: Supermarket Services — Today and Tomorrow)

Repair Leaky Faucets

One leaking faucet in the kitchen could be draining up to 15 gallons of water a day. This waste counts up when the water bills come in.

Don't buy appliances that are loaded with deluxe features you'll never use. To get your money's worth, learn how to use every feature that's already paid for, advises the Extension Service, the University of Nebraska.

Journey Through The Lab

'Pap' Smear — Saver Of Women's Lives

MICROSCOPIC INSPECTION reveals the great majority of slides to be Class 1, with no pre-cancerous cells present. In questionable cases, associate pathologist Dr. Rafael Yaniz, seated, compares his reading with that of chief pathologist Dr. Donald Fox before conferring with the individual doctor. Dr. Fox terms the Pap smear the most significant advance in cancer detection in the past 25 years.

by ELEANOR RIVES

When Dr. George N. Papanicolaou of Greece was studying hormonal changes in the vaginal smears of animals, he surely could not have anticipated the contribution he would make to medical science. Sometimes a well defined picture of medical advancement is not easy to see in the misty vapors of pure research.

His resulting "Pap" smear technique has been used by physicians for the past 25 years to detect in women any abnormal looking cells cast off by the cervix or uterus.

"Of all the advances in cancer detection in the last 25 years, this is the most significant," stated Dr. Donald Fox, chief pathologist and director of the laboratory at Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village.

IN 1930, UTERINE cancer was the No. 1 cause of cancer deaths in women. Steadily declining over the years, it will shortly reach fourth place. The two-thirds reduction in the death rate may well be attributed to early detection made possible by use of the Pap smear technique.

"I feel certain that with increased education of the public and easier availability of the Pap smears, uterine cancer could easily drop to eighth place — maybe ninth or 10th — as a cause of cancer deaths in women," said Dr. Fox. "In fact, in an educated suburban area such as ours, this is probably true right now."

The Pap smear is in reality two smears. In the doctor's office — in a simple, painless procedure — two slides are made for every patient. One is a sample of fluid from the vagina, the other consists of cells scraped from the surface of the cervix. Before they dry, the doctor sprays the slides with a fixative to prevent the cells from undergoing any changes. The frosted ends of the glass slides are identified with the patient's name and they are then sent to either a private or a hospital laboratory.

WHEN SMEARS arrive at Alexian Brothers Medical Center lab, they are listed and given a number. Each slide is then dipped into 15 consecutive liquids, three of which are staining dyes. The whole dipping process of staining, fixing the dyes and removing excess dyes takes about a half hour. It is carried out by a technologist. Its purpose is to facilitate the reading of changes in the cytoplasm and nucleus of the cell.

Detection of suspicious, pre-cancerous cells is only one use of the Pap smear. It is also possible to determine hormone balance in the cell, to describe the type of bacteria present, to identify yeast organisms which in turn may be a tipoff on diabetes, to determine if the parasitic organism, trichomonas, is present and to gain other information which may be helpful to the doctor.

FOLLOWING THE half hour dipping process, the smears are turned over to the pathologist for microscopic examination. At Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Dr. Fox is chief pathologist and Dr. Rafael Yaniz and Dr. Reuben Sanmiguel are associate pathologists. Dr. Yaniz is in charge of surgical pathology, which includes cytology, the study of cells.

"There are five classes when grading slides," said Dr. Fox. He explained that Class 1 is negative; Class 2 shows cellular changes due to infection; Class 3 is inconclusive or suspicious; Class 4 is positive and necessitates a biopsy; and Class 5 is conclusively positive.

"The vast majority of all the slides are negative," he emphasized.

Under the microscope, cells may be considered suspicious because of changes in the size and depth of the staining of the nuclei of the cervical cells. Irregular shapes and edges of the nuclei and changes in size relationship between nuclei and cytoplasm are also of great importance.

SOME SUSPICIOUS smears and all positive smears are followed up with a biopsy — taking a small cone-shaped bit of tissue from that area of the cervix where early cervical carcinomas are most likely to start — the junction of the exocervix and the endocervix. If the malignancy is limited to the outer layer of the cervix, it is called "carcinoma in situ." It has not yet invaded surrounding tissue or involved the blood vessels.

To catch the malignancy at this point — when it is a carcinoma in situ — is of utmost importance, for it is at this point that a complete cure can be effected by hysterectomy in a staggering 95 per cent of the cases.

Drs. Fox, Yaniz and Sanmiguel are deeply concerned over the well being of their "smear" subjects. They take a deep personal interest in each patient. They are dedicated to tracking down and curing cervical cancer.

THEY CHECK new smears against old smears. They follow up every suspicious case, checking with the individual doctors to make sure the patient returns for the biopsy. They check and recheck, carefully correlating the information from the biopsy with that of the smear. They keep all slides for one year and anything over a Class 1, indefinitely. They may call in the doctor, consult with each other, scrupulously weigh and compare opinions.

"But we can't do it by ourselves," said Dr. Fox. "Women must help themselves."

"There is no external evidence of early cervical malignancy. It can't just be 'seen' by a doctor. It is urgent that you go to your doctor at least once a year for a Pap smear. It is urgent that you get a Pap smear if there is any abnormal bleeding following intercourse, any bleeding after menopause, irregular menstrual bleeding or repeated spotting."

WHEN THE PAP smear was first used, it was taken mainly by gynecologists and obstetricians. Women themselves heard about it, questioned their doctors about it, promoted its use. Soon it was being done by internists and general practitioners as well.

Now it is automatically included in any gynecological checkup. It is often done as part of a gastro-intestinal examination. During pregnancy, women are given a Pap smear as a matter of routine.

Determined women can help stamp out uterine and cervical cancer as a cause of death. Determined women can make it possible to catch cervical malignancy when a complete cure is possible.

Child Labor Still Exists In World

by JOHN A. CALLOOTT

GENEVA (UPI) — A new international effort is finally under way to eradicate the evils of child labor.

Although the mass exploitation of small children in mines and factories is a thing of the past, many are still employed in dangerous jobs for little or no payment.

According to the International Labor Organization (ILO), there are presently some 43 million children aged less than 14 who are permanently employed. This involved 3.0 per cent of all male children in the world in this age group, and 2.7 per cent of female children.

New conventions to abolish child labor completely will be discussed at the ILO Assembly this month.

Countries of Southeast Asia will come under the greatest pressure because of the estimated 43 million small children now in full jobs, approximately 32 million are in this region of the world.

ILO INSPECTORS found the worst abuses to exist in Thailand where children, particularly girls, are employed in such industries as bottling, cigarette manufacture and seafood canning.

The average of these children was found to be 10, with many of the girls as young as 6.

They were working 8 to 14 hours a day, seven days a week, in what the ILO calls "overcrowded, poorly lit, badly ventilated and unsanitary premises." Wages were "derisory."

A common practice is for adult workers to hire children as assistants, giving them a fraction of their wages. Half of the children had never been to school.

ILO says that factory work done by children is usually light, but there are cases of extremely dangerous employment.

INSPECTORS FOUND cases where small children were engaged in producing fireworks, glass blowing, toxic dyes, and working in foundries near blast furnaces and in textile mills.

Child labor is found most frequently in the agricultural sector. In the developing countries, between 70 and 80 per cent of working children are employed as farmhands. The ILO took particular exception to the use in Brazil of children to plant and harvest cotton, rice, coffee and cocoa crops.

In the United Arab Republic, it said, children as young as 6 spend between one-third and one-half of their time on cotton picking.

But child labor in agriculture is not confined to the poorer countries, the ILO says. A "considerable amount of disquieting information" has been collected in the United States, according to the ILO report, which found that in 1967 about 300,000 children under 14 did farm work for wages in the United States.

OF THESE CHILDREN, 38,000 were migratory workers most of them working out of school hours in violation of federal law.

As drafted by the ILO, the new Convention to be discussed at its Assembly would set the minimum age for child employment at 14, whether for industry or agriculture.

There would also be an obligation for governments to apply a higher standard at a later date.

As an ideal objective, the draft text proposes a minimum age of 18 for employment in hazardous jobs and an even higher limit for extremely dangerous occupations.

ILO experts believe the Convention, if adopted, also would do a lot to improve the general standards of compulsory schooling around the world, but especially in the poorer communities.

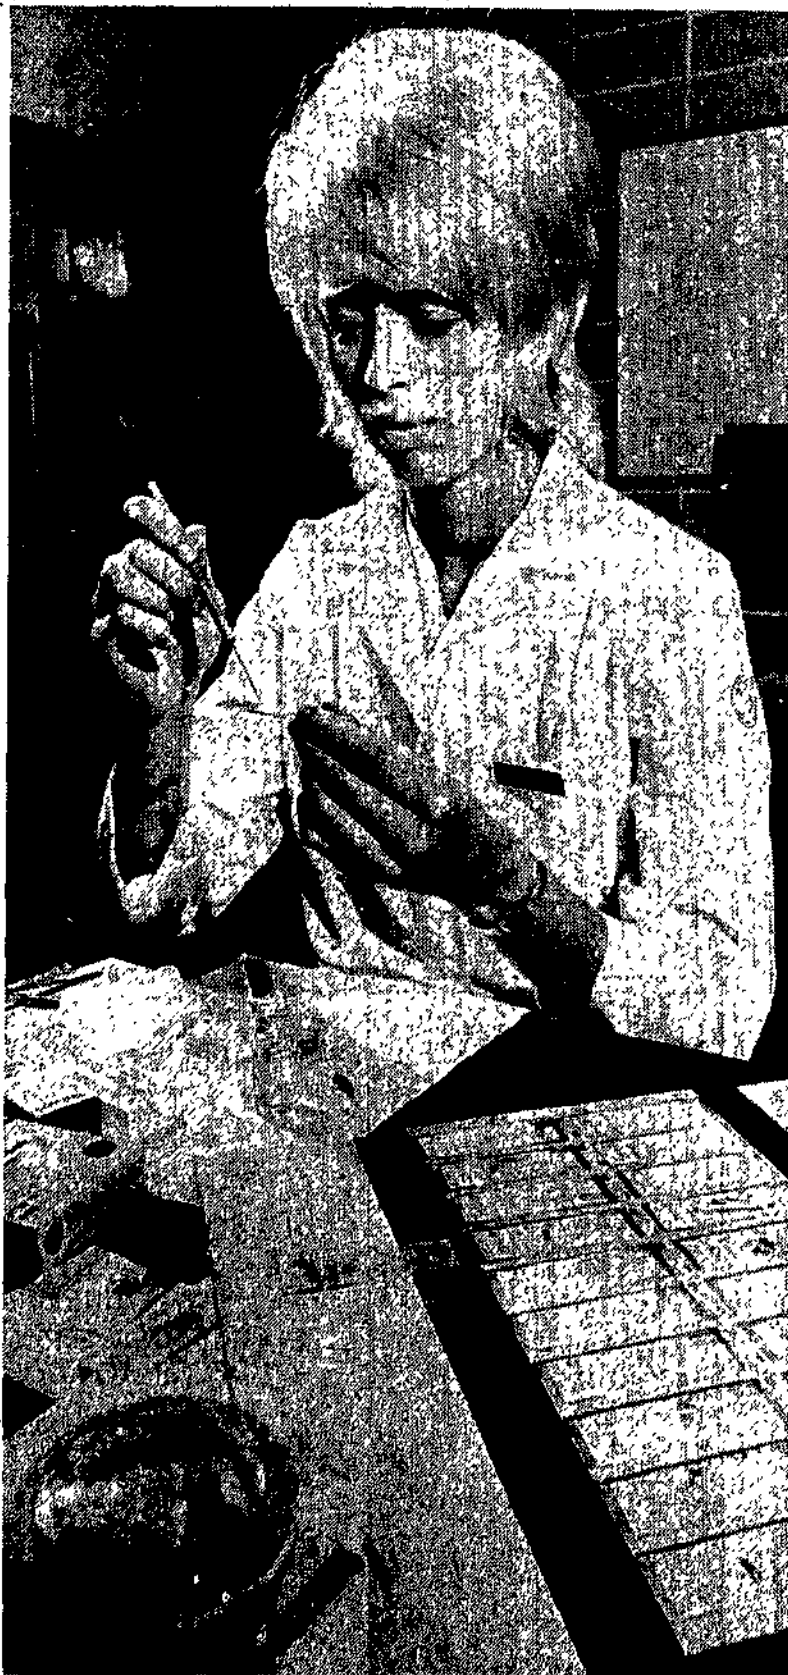

IN MOST OF the advanced nations, compulsory schooling laws to a large extent control admission to employment — usually making it all but impossible for children under 15 to get fulltime jobs.

If any such connection between school and employment exists in developing countries, it is mainly nominal.

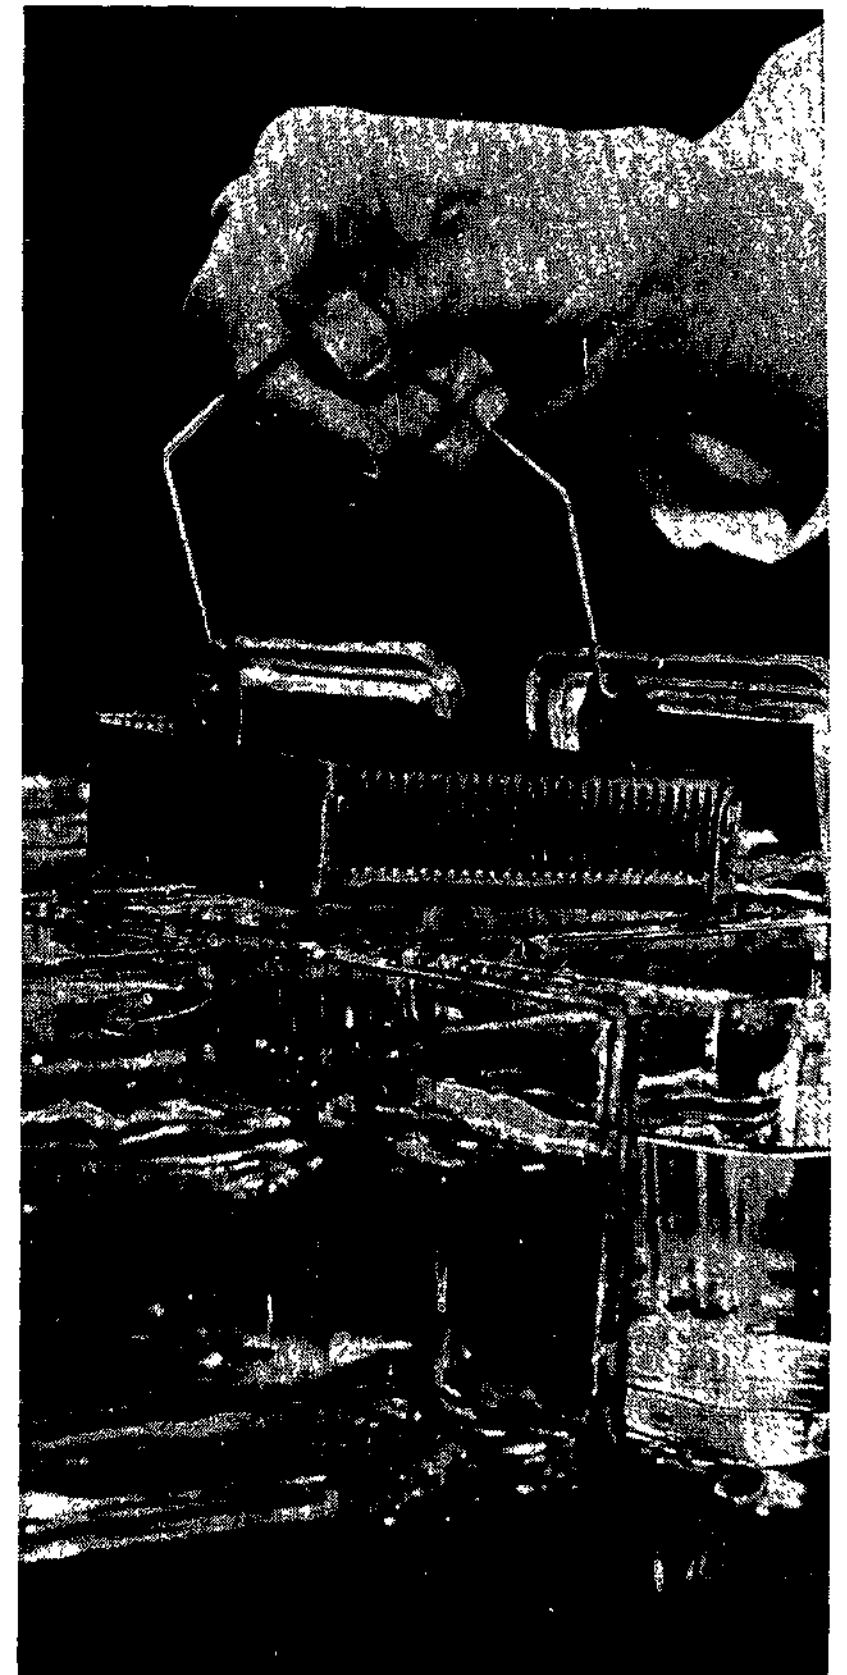

While most Latin American countries stipulate a minimum employment age of 14, for example, compulsory education is rarely more than 14 years and can end well before that age is reached.

Again, in most Latin American states, only about one-half of all children attend school.

In Africa the figure is about one-third. For Asia, the figure is one-half but even of these most children leave school before the age of 10. In some Asian countries, 80 per cent of all children no longer attend school after 11 years of age.

AFTER STAINING, the slides are cover-slipped with glass for protection. Specially trained lab work of this type is Alice Haase, cytology technician. Each woman patient has two slides: one a sample of vaginal fluid; the other, cells scraped from the surface of the cervix.

SECURE IN A slide holder, a number of Pap smears at Alexian Brothers Medical Center laboratory are dipped in 15 different liquids — three of them dyes — at precise intervals to obtain the exact degree of staining necessary to interpret them under the microscope.

Who Makes It In Modeling?

by GAY PAULEY
NEW YORK (UPI) — It's there at the end of the rainbow — the pot of gold for the successful model.

But those who find it are rare and along the way, for many of them, there's been the heartbreak of rejection, then starting out again and again making the agency rounds.

Models, though, are in big demand and agencies constantly are looking for tal- ent, says Mrs. Richard "Bernie" Lenz, of Las Vegas, Nev., a former John Robert Powers model who is president of the Modeling Association of America (MAA).

She discussed where the money is, some of the pitfalls, and model types currently popular in an interview while in town recently for the MAA's ninth an- nual convention.

The convention brought in 125 agency representatives, plus some of their mod- els, for seminars on everything from makeup to other careers to which mod- eling can lead (fashion design, interior decorating, acting).

"ONE OF THE first things the profes- sional must learn is to accept rejection," said Mrs. Lenz. "The girl may not be the type the client is looking for. She just has to pick herself up and smile. There nothing personal about rejections, but some girls just can't take them. They get out of the field."

The tall girl (five feet seven and up) currently is in greater demand, she said, "because fashion is longer, it's dropped the hemline. The little girls had the breaks with the very short skirts."

Clients (fashion houses, advertisers, retailers, photographers, television com- mercials) look today for an "all-Ameri- can girl type, wholesome looking. Good bone structure is an absolute must."

"She still has to be thin, but not emaciated. Remember that a camera auto- matically adds pounds."

In general, models' jobs fall into three categories — the fashion runway, pho- tography and television commercials, and some girls can do all three. Others spe- cialize in one or two.

TELEVISION IS the most profitable. The longest career span, though, is the fashion runway where there's no camera to catch the tiny lines that begin to form in the late 20s for most girls.

Fees vary city by city, Mrs. Lenz said. In some towns a girl may earn $20 to $50 for one fashion show. New York, the mecca, has the highest rates. The aver- age for fashion and photography here is $80 an hour.

But consider, she said, that the rangy, all-bone structure Naomi Sims gets no less than $75 an hour, Jean Shrimpton $125 an hour, and Wilhelmina on occa- sion can demand $1,000 a day.

Wilhelmina has the profession going for her two ways. She also runs an ag- ency in New York with branches in Paris and London.

Mrs. Lenz said if a girl can break into television, there's the real cash crop.

"AN 18-YEAR-old Miami girl who came to one of our conventions was spotted for that kiss-kiss toothpaste ad and made $15,000 plus residuals on it alone," she said. "I understand the first Dodge girl made $100,000 in one year."

Some girls make it without modeling school training, but Mrs. Lenz quite nat- urally is pro-school.

"We screen carefully before we enroll anyone," she said. "And the only thing we can guarantee her is that she will go out into the highly competitive world with more confidence, more poise. Many of our students don't even want to model. They really want the benefits of the fin- ishing school."

Here's How To Announce Engagement In The Herald

Paddock Suburban Living department is often called by those seeking infor- mation on submitting announcements for publication. We print the following for the reader's information and help.

The announcement of an engagement is always made by the parents of the engaged girl, who may either fill out an engagement form at our office or submit their own information along with a wallet sized picture of the bride-to-be.

If a wallet sized photograph is not available, a larger one can be used.

Bring or mail picture and copy to the Herald office in Arlington Heights or our Des Plaines office.

Parents not using one of our forms may either write or type the information. If the announcement is submitted in hand-writing we ask that all names be printed to avoid errors. We also request that a phone number accompany the sig- nature at the bottom of the announce- ment.

A glossy picture is preferable although a dull finish is acceptable. Color photos are used at the discretion of the editors depending on contrast and depth of color.

There is no charge for engagement pic- tures and announcements. Usually they will be printed within a week after reaching our office.

Back Doors Need Assist

Back doors, often bearing the family's major traffic, seldom receive any thought for improving convenience or eye appeal.

A back entry or mud room greatly adds to usefulness of this area. If entry is directly into a room, a closet for coats, umbrellas and overshoes, plus a chair and a shelf for packages or school books can be installed.

The area around a back door can be enhanced with a deck of western wood, easily swept or hosed off during muddy months. Combine storage with the deck, for outdoor tools and supplies, or to enclose garbage cans.

This is a natural and often-used outdoor living area, usually convenient to the kitchen for serving alfresco meals or refreshments. Build sturdy wood benches along rails, for use with tables.

For homes with driveways or walks that let visitors stray to the back door, a screen or low fence of western wood usually can redirect them, but if this isn't possible, dressing up the back entry is the answer.

Hobbyists who are looking for an exciting new way to make 3-dimension paintings that can add to the decor of homes and classrooms will enjoy trying a new idea.

This new technique of 3-D art is accomplished with Higgins colored inks and aluminum foil — so simple, easy and fun to do that you'll wonder why no one ever thought of it before. According to Jack Doyle, director of marketing for A. W. Faber-Castell, one of the world's largest manufacturers of drawing materials for draftsmen, artists and students, striking effects are achieved by painting on glass with the colored inks. Ordinary crumpled aluminum foil sandwiched in the frame behind the glass captures reflected light making the lively colors come ablaze. Light reflecting from the multi-faceted foil gives motion and depth to the painting. This is desirable as maximum effect is achieved by silhouetting this portion with an opaque background using Artone poster color.

Here is a "how-to" step-by-step outline for this interesting art procedure that should have wide appeal to teachers, scout and 4-H leaders:

1. Draw or trace the subject to fit the size of the glass you will be painting on. Do this in outline form.

2. Decide on your color scheme and color code your drawing by applying a dab of the ink you intend to use in those areas. By doing this before painting on the glass, you will have a guide to follow.

3. Position the tracing beneath the clean glass.

4. Brush on the Higgins ink, following the color guide on your tracing. If black outline is desired, use India Ink for maximum opacity.

5. When painting is completed and inks have dried, turn painted glass side down. As already mentioned, an opaque background surrounding the central area of your painting is desirable for obtaining the full dramatic effect of reflected light in controlled areas. The opaquing prevents the light from striking the foil in all areas except those chosen as the focal point of the painting.

The Artone opaque color may be sprayed on by masking out the area you wish to remain unpainted. The mask will adhere to the glass and allow easy removal after the paint has dried. The mask must be carefully positioned so as to cover its like image on the glass. If spraying is not possible, the opaquing may be applied by brush. Painting on the back of the glass will assure a flat streak-free job and prevent scratching.

6. A sheet of aluminum foil slightly larger than the glass is gently crumpled to create a surface for light reflection. Pat foil relatively flat, bearing in mind that you must have the crumpled look for best results.

7. Position the foil behind the glass and a piece of cardboard cut to the same size of the glass. The excess foil is trimmed to flush at top, bottom and sides. Mount as a unit in your frame, tacking or taping securely.

Now you have a painting that is distinctively different, is eye-catching and will cause comment from your friends.

So the next time you're thinking of clearing your attic of some old worn or soiled pictures, think of what you can do with the glass and frames in this newest of art crafts — 3-dimension painting with colored inks on glass.

Romance Begins In Korea

Mr. and Mrs. George N. Wuensch

A romance that began in Korea blossomed into marriage May 27 for Patricia Ann Treadwell and George N. Wuensch. Patricia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Duane A. Treadwell, 200 W. Hiawatha Trail, Mount Prospect, was employed by the American Red Cross, and George, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Wuensch, Chicago, was with the Army attached to the 6/37 Artillery at Camp Essayons.

The double ring wedding service took place at 11 a.m. in South Church Community Baptist in Mount Prospect with Patricia wearing a white organza gown with Venice lace daisy trim. The Empire bodice had a high lace neckline and the full, bishop sleeves were edged in the same lace. A cathedral train fell from the A-line skirt, and an illusion veil fell from her Venice lace cluster headpiece. White carnations and yellow roses completed her bridal ensemble.

NADINE BERRY, Weston, Mass., was Patricia's only attendant. She wore a yellow dotted Swiss gown bordered with appliqued daisies and she carried white and yellow daisies.

Dale Brux was George's best man, and ushers were Patricia's three brothers, Michael, Arcata, Calif., Gary A., Galveston, Texas, and Roger, Mount Prospect.

The bride studied at Coe College, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and was graduated from Hamline University in 1970 with a B.A. degree. She is now employed by Forest View High School, Mount Prospect.

The groom graduated from St. Ambrose College, Davenport, Iowa, with a B.S. degree in 1968. He is with Transport Indemnity Co., Hinsdale.

A luncheon reception was held in Old Orchard Country Club after which the newlyweds left on a Lake Geneva honeymoon. They are now making their home in Hinsdale.

They Met In Study Hall

Study halls are for studying, all manner of subjects, including the opposite sex, and it was while studying at Prospect High School that Connie DeGeorge met Vernon Newcomb. Connie was then a freshman and Vernon a sophomore, and on May 20 the pair became Mr. and Mrs.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth H. Wetendorf, Mount Prospect, Connie and Vernon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis A. Newcomb, also of Mount Prospect, were married in St. Raymond's Catholic Church, Mount Prospect. The 3:30 p.m., double ring service was followed by a reception for 160 guests in the Teakwood Room, Melrose Park.

CAROL HAUERBERG, Mount Prospect, was Connie's maid of honor, and Theresa Schall and Patti Bell, Mount Prospect, were bridesmaids. Junior bridesmaid was Connie's sister, Linda Wetendorf.

All wore flowered chiffon gowns over yellow taffeta accented with orange midribs. Their headpieces were orange Juliet hats with veils and they carried orange-tinted French carnations and straw flowers. Carol's straw flowers were in avocado, the others in orange.

Connie's 4-year-old sister Vickie was flower girl wearing a yellow dress. The groom's 3-year-old nephew, Stevie Newcomb, Elk Grove, was ring bearer, and Stevie's father, Gordon Newcomb, was best man. Ushers were Duane Martin and Bill Schmoldt of Mount Prospect, and the bride's brother Kenny Wetendorf was junior usher.

Connie, a '71 graduate of Prospect High, is employed at Bee Discount Beauty Supply, Mount Prospect, and Vernon, a '70 graduate, is with Newcomb's Car Care, also in Mount Prospect. The couple honeymooned for three days at Pheasant Run and are now making their home in Hanover Park.

For Summer Plant Identification

"Summer Plant Identification," is the topic of a program to be presented Tuesday by the Chicago Horticultural Society at the Botanic Garden, Edens Expressway between Dundee and Lake Cook Roads. Two programs will be presented by Garden Director Dr. Fran DeVos and Chief Horticulturist Glenn Park, one at 10 a.m. and the other at 1:30 p.m.

The workshop sessions will consist of walks through the home "Idea Gardens," the vegetable gardens, the Nature Trail, and the greenhouses. At these locales, visitors will learn how to correctly identify plants by blossom, foliage, aroma and conformation.

Reservations for the "Summer Plant Identification" workshop may be made by phoning Mrs. Wittin, 332-2868.

Decks Offer Fun For All

A deck of westernwood is part of the house, part of the garden, and part of the family's full range of activities.

It can be a place to entertain, either formally or with a casual barbecue party, or just enjoying a quiet cup of coffee with visitors.

For children, a deck can be an outdoor playroom where there are no walls to smudge and no mud to dirty their feet.

Teenagers find a deck useful for impromptu parties or rap sessions, especially if there's a swimming pool adjacent and a firepit or barbecue.

A good deck incorporates privacy screens and sunshades where needed. Deck furniture, a necessity, can be combined with railings as sturdy benches.

Whether part of the original house plan or added later, a deck should be designed to relate its appearance to the house and garden, and its functions to the needs of the family.

Now, Visual Pledge Goal

When the Alexian Brothers Medical Center Auxiliary membership approved their most recent pledge to the hospital, in November of 1970, it was just a rather frightening number, $300,000 to be raised in approximately six years, destined for some general purpose.

Now, however, Mrs. Theodore Staddler, president of the Auxiliary, announced at the May general meeting that a purpose and direction has been given to the pledge. The Auxiliary-raised funds will help refurbish the expanded outpatient department in the new addition under construction at the hospital.

AT A RECENT Auxiliary function, a check for $15,000 was given to Br. Ferdinand Leyva, hospital administrator. Coupled with previous recent contributions of $45,000, this "moves us one-fifth of the way on the new pledge," Mrs. Staddler noted. The Auxiliary's financial contribution to the hospital since its inception now totals $190,000.

When the Auxiliary was first founded in 1963 charter members pledged to outfit the Pediatric Department, the Day Nursery, and the fourth floor foyer of the new hospital. With the fulfillment of that commitment in 1967, the membership again responded with a pledge toward new equipment. "Now, with a visual goal in sight for the 1970 pledge," said Mrs. Staddler, "our members will be inspired to work even harder toward its fulfillment."

ABCs Of Bridge For Teenagers

Plans are now complete by the Mount Prospect Center of Infant Welfare for the teenage beginning bridge lessons this summer. "Let's include the young people in the Bridge Marathon," states Mrs. W. Donald Georgan, chairman for Center. "Summertime seems to be just ideal to start them off with the fundamentals, since more freedom from school studies and activities is available now rather than in the fall," reports Mrs. Georgan.

The pilot project will cover the period from July 5 through Aug. 9. Six lessons will be given beginning at 8 Wednesday evenings in the meeting room of St. Raymond's Rectory, Mount Prospect, and the cost to each student is $10. for the series.

All interested youths are urged to enroll. Further information is available at 259-3781 or 259-2046. Registration may also be made at these numbers.

The Tiny Tots Make Hot News

LUTHERAN GENERAL

Richard Michael Schultz, first child for Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Schultz, 2508 Algonquin Road, Rolling Meadows, was born May 21 weighing 8 pounds 9½ ounces. Mr. and Mrs. Michael Groven, Wheeling, and Ralph Schultz, Buffalo Grove, are the baby's grandparents. Mrs. Marcella Draper, Prairie View, is among his great-grandparents.

Rosy Forecast For Working Women

by PATRICIA MCCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Susan Davis expects things to look up for American women holding or looking for jobs.

For the last 12 months Ms. Davis has set up four major meetings concerned with equal opportunity for women. The conferences in San Francisco, Chicago and New York were attended by 1,000 leaders from industry, government and the women's movement — each paying from $85 to $125 tuition for the chance to learn how to advance women.

Ms. Davis is vice president and conference coordinator of Urban Research Corp., in Chicago, sponsor of the meetings aimed at the exchange of information about something called corporate affirmative action programs.

She explained that virtually all companies doing business with the federal government now are developing written affirmative action programs for women in accordance with a federal edict that went into effect April 2.

THE ORDER requires prime government contractors and subcontractors with 50 or more workers and government contracts of $50,000 or more to set goals and timetables for getting qualified women into all echelons of their employee ranks. If firms don't comply, federal contracts may be revoked.

The conference included workshops on such things as maternity leave, industry sponsored child care, how and where to find qualified women, blue collar jobs for women, establishing good relations with feminist groups.

"We go on the premise that one company will listen to another company," said Ms. Davis, a native of Pawtucket, R.I., who did graduate work in anthropology at Harvard University. She also is editor of "The Spokeswoman," an independent monthly newsletter of women's news.

AMONG COMPANIES telling representatives of other companies of their model plans for advancing and helping women were IBM, Control Data, General Electric. But the highlight of the fourth conference, the second held in New York, was the keynote address by David J. Mahoney.

"He is a captain of industry," Ms. Davis said, "and this is a real turning point. This is the first time a person of his stature has made a major policy statement about women and the women's movement."

Mahoney is president of Norton Simon Inc., a corporate umbrella whose operating companies include Hunt-Wesson Foods, Canada Dry Corp., McCall Printing Company (McCall's, Redbook, McCall's Patterns) and others.

"The women's movement has been good for America and will be good for business," Mahoney told the conference attendees. He said it like a man whose billion dollar consumer product and services company makes 85 per cent of its sales to women.

MAHONEY SAID his company is "committed to move well beyond compliance with existing laws" insofar as women's rights are concerned, and "is committed to the active and aggressive development of new employment and promotion practices to move women into positions of greater responsibility."

The head of the company that sells food, soft drinks, liquors, magazines, and patterns to America's women continued.

"Our combined products and services cut across the total lifestyle of every woman, child and man in America. But it is the women who do the greatest amount of buying from us. I would be crazy not to listen to women. Besides, I think we owe them something."

Mahoney stressed that he is not proposing tokenism but instead a concrete change in attitudes about the roles of women in business.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: We moved last year from one city to another and the most annoying thing has been the mistakes made in our monthly charges. While I occasionally saved the charge slips in the past I never realized how important it is now with the computer in charge. We now save every slip — for either charge or credit — until the monthly bill comes around. — Mrs. Lewis S.

You're wise. The computer is the most advanced way of doing business and inevitable, but it has to be fed by humans and therefore, is subject to human error. The wise homemaker does what you do — saves all bills — and canceled checks, too.

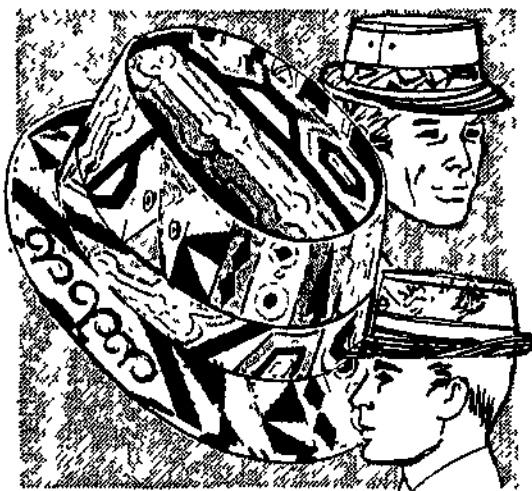

Dear Dorothy: Since I always save the plastic containers that certain ice cream comes in, I was glad to have one handy when I wanted to spread some grass seed. I punched holes in the lid (like a saltshaker top), put the seed in the container, put the lid on tight, then shook the container "saltshaker fashion" over the yard. I found the grass seed spreads pretty evenly — at least much more so than trying to do it by hand. — Mrs. Clifford Abraham.

It's always good to hear from other pack rats on how they use their treasures. Inasmuch as I like to make a big pot of vegetable soup when I get around to it, these plastic containers have proved ideal for freezing the soup. All one needs to do is leave an inch on top for expansion.

Dear Dorothy: When you have wine left over from dinner, can it be used in cooking at a later date? — Julia G.

Absolutely. While sherry keeps well almost indefinitely after being opened, other wines do not, so use them up as soon as possible.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to Dorothy Ritz in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Parents Advised To Take Time To Talk To Preteens About Sex

by GAY PAULEY
NEW YORK (UPI) — Take time to talk with your children when they ask questions about sex.

Keep the channels of communication between parents and children open; this makes it easier to discuss all personal matters.

An authority on child development and parent education, Sadie Hofstein, concedes this often is difficult — "We lead busy lives today and in some families there is not much time for being together."

"Few children ask, 'Where do babies come from?' as they run out the door. We need to provide more time for talking. We also have to use the opportunity to talk whenever it arises."

She gives one example. "What's rape?" asks a 10-year-old with his head in the newspaper. "A simple honest reply can be given and the discussion then refocused on healthy sexual relationships," says Mrs. Hofstein.

WHAT IF THE questions come up around the dinner table with smaller children present? "Answer questions simply and encourage more talk when you're alone with the questioner," she advises. "Of course, some questions may be perfectly appropriate for dinner talk for all ages. The younger ones will pick up what they can — the rest will go over their heads."

Mrs. Hofstein's views are given in "Talking to Preteens About Sex," a new publication from the Public Affairs Committee, a non-profit educational organization with headquarters in New York.

Mrs. Hofstein is a consultant to the Mental Health Association of Nassau County, New York, and to the Board of Cooperative Education Services of the same county. A lecturer on child development and parental education, she also is author of a book "The Human Story."

HER PUBLICATION, directed to parents of the 9 to 13-year-group, tells of the assorted stresses physiologically and emotionally that children go through in those years — the worries over how they look, their skin problems, their questions about sex, pregnancy, birth, heredity — "Why do I look like my father?"

Mrs. Hofstein emphasizes that information and misinformation are only one aspect of sex education. "More significant," she says, "are the attitudes consciously or unconsciously transmitted from parent to child."

Some parents may feel confused and embarrassed talking about sex to their offspring. This is not necessarily harmful, she says, for it can convey to the child that sex and love are very special.

CHILDREN SHOULD know that parents approve of their curiosity. But Mrs. Hofstein warns that "Many adolescents complain that every time they ask a question, they get a lecture. That's too much — if not in content, at least in style. More is learned when communication is a shared experience."

Parents also must realize, she says, that at each stage of development children have different questions and concerns about sex. They may forget quickly, or recall inaccurately, what has been taught them, but parents should be ready to reinterpret information over and over if necessary.

Mrs. Hofstein also thinks all teachers should be expected to participate in training programs prior to classroom instruction and continue to meet together in professional seminars. And a teacher should not take sides in controversial matters, such as contraception or abortion, but should help students with the facts and encourage them to state their own opinions.

The Potting Shed

Bad year for mosquitoes you say?

The mosquitoes at my house are so big they need a runway to take off. And it's pretty hard to garden when a person has to fight off an army of mosquitoes and plant the transplants at the same time.

Before I tell you how to get relief from what's bugging you, listen to what happened hereabouts last week:

I was having some difficulty sleeping three nights in a row. I kept waking up to the buzz of mosquitoes joining me in bed. I had more bumps than an Osage orange. The books says there are more than 2,000 kinds of mosquitoes, and 150 of them live in the United States. Correction: 150 kinds live in my neighborhood.

ON THE FOURTH day of combat, the mosquitoes became so unbearable I moved from room to room to do my work. When I finally holed up in a 2 x 2 back bathroom and they found me there too, I decided it was time to fight back. I found the site of their entrance into my house, through the chimney and vents on the roof. Then I opened the fireplace door and a big, black cloud of mosquitoes attacked.

I don't recommend chemicals, except in extreme emergencies — but this was it. I sprayed the bombardier with an aerosol, having selected one containing pyrethrin as the main ingredient, (sanctioned by the organic movement). Chlorodane, malathion, DDT — never would I use any of these — indoors or out. Pyrethrin is non-toxic to humans and pets. Even my parakeet was unaffected, although I did remove him to another room anyway. He had just about had it fighting off mosquitoes too.

AFTERWARD, I climbed the chimney and poured 1/2 cup of ammonia down it to fumigate any stragglers, then built a nice fire.

Remember Commie Gus Hall? He's Almost Respectable

by TOM TIEDE
NEW YORK — Remember Gus Hall? Remember the 1950s? Remember how that dandruff Commie agent strutted around the country spreading lies about the chained masses and all that other Russian garbage? Remember the FBI? Remember the Smith Act? Remember the day they finally put the no-good traitor behind bars and everybody said they hoped the miserable (censored) would never get out.

Well, a funny thing has happened in the generation since. Gus Hall, general secretary of the Communist Party, U.S.A., has become almost respectable. Time was the man couldn't walk on the streets without fear of attack. He was in jail so often he left a toothbrush in the cell. His phone was bugged for so long he tried to get Washington to share the bill. But now, hell. The fuss about Gus has ended. In a day when the average YMCA swim class is more revolutionary than the CPUSA, Gus Hall is decidedly in danger of becoming establishment.

He denies it, of course. So does J. Edgar Hoover. But the facts are plain. Hall still looks like a steelworker with a shave, but at 61 years that's his only solid link to the chained workers. He wears candystriped shirts, wide lapels and buckles on the shoes. He has recently written a booklet on ecology. He hardly ever raps about dialectical materialism any more. And, more than this, of all things, will wonders never cease, Gus Hall is running for president of the capital of capitalism.

AND SO here he is. Sitting alongside a dusty conference desk, in his dusty CPUSA headquarters, talking like Hubert Humphrey: "The times are very exciting. The opportunities are there. I seriously plan to go after 30 key states where..."

Ye Gods. Kissing babies and all the rest. Next he'll dye his hair.

Who would have thought it of Gus the Red, the prototype of the massmensch, the man of the masses. Born in the heart of Minnesota's Mesabi iron range, raised by a socialist father, there were days in Gus Hall's life when he didn't think anybody but monsters ran for president. Times were tough for him, and everybody else. Even now he remembers his father, a Finnish immigrant, fighting the system: "The iron company wanted to open the ground through our neighborhood. My father refused to move. The company went ahead anyway. And our house fell right into the pit."

Hall quit school at 14. At 15 he helped organize a worker strike in a lumber camp. At 16 he began studying Marxism. He joined the party a year later.

It has, since then, been an uphill life for Gus Hall. One that he can't be totally proud of. But also one that his country must share some shame for. The pips who cry about political prisoners today have mostly forgotten or have never known Hall, but he rather than they suffered the indignity most. He has spent nearly 10 years inside various prisons, for crimes that in 1972 are not crimes at all.

But never mind that. Gus Hall doesn't enjoy sympathy. It's part of the web of respectability which he denies. He'd rather talk about the chained masses:

"Oh how I remember the lumber camp I worked in. It was made of paper, three pieces of tarpaper, and no heat, no lavatory, no nothing. I remember we always went outside to take a leak. And in the winter that urine would freeze up into a yellow mountain. And stink, you wouldn't believe the smell. Then in the spring it would melt, and trickle right back into the shack where we slept."

That would be a good story for the stump. It might hit home with some lumberjacks even today. But, alas, it likely won't be told. Hall may or may not be mellowing with age, but he has not lost the Communist trait of being politically dull.

He'll tell the people in Ohio that "we must unite our ranks." He'll jull the folks in Pittsburgh with a speech about "historic breakthroughs." As for "propelling the capitalistic dinosaur into extinction," well, be ready for that in Flint, Mich.

And when I'm elected, he'll say, "And when I'm elected, the first day I'll end the war in Vietnam, close all the military bases around the world, and stop all the defense contracts. That'll save $100 billion. So then I'll drop taxes for all the workers. Then I'll pass a law against all racism. After that I'm going to..."

Sure, Gus, sure.

Promises, promises. Just like everybody else. He's even got a plank in his platform about Women's Lib ("The women of the nation are also on the march, advancing to newer and higher forms of struggle!"). Gus Hall against male chauvinism? It's all very discouraging for anybody who remembers the good old days when Communists were outlaws, not politicians. Remember Senator McCarthy? Remember Congressman Nixon? Remember how people use to get that funny look on their faces when the officer at the door asked them to open up their wallets?

Nixon's Services Set Good Example

by LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International
President Nixon says he instituted Sunday worship services in the White House because he wanted to "set a good example" of regular church attendance for Americans.

He offers this explanation in a foreword to a newly published book, entitled "White House Sermons" Harper & Row, which includes the texts of 24 sermons preached in the East Room during the first two years of Nixon's tenancy.

"I grew up in a home where religion was an important ingredient of our lives," Nixon says. "We went to church as a matter of course..."

"Americans still are basically a religious people, but under the pressures of modern life it often seems that religious observances are subordinated to other pursuits."

"WHEN I WAS elected to the highest office in the land, I decided that I wanted to do something to encourage attendance at services and to emphasize this country's basic faith in a Supreme Being."

"It seemed to me that one way of achieving this was to set a good example. What better example could there be than to bring the worship service, with all its solemn meaning, right into the White House?"

The President evidently feels this is a rhetorical question. But some clergymen will take issue with his implication that he has set the best possible example of church attendance.

They will note, for example, that White House worship services are held on an irregular and relatively infrequent schedule. So far in Nixon's presidency, they have been held, on the average, about once a month.

Since the Chief Executive very rarely attends services at any place other than the White House, his "example" to the nation can hardly be described as one of regular weekly church attendance.

Certainly he does not stack up in this regard with his three immediate predecessors in the White House. Lyndon B. Johnson went to church virtually every Sunday — and sometimes attended two or three services in the course of a Sabbath. John F. Kennedy was at Mass every Sunday morning. Dwight D. Eisenhower was rarely absent from his pew of the National Presbyterian Church.

BESIDES "SETTING a good example," Nixon says in his foreword, he has "another compelling reason" for holding services in the executive mansion.

"In my family, worship was always a very private matter. Whenever a President goes out to church, the news media — quite understandably — feel obligated to cover it, with the result that batteries of still and television news cameras follow him. This is not my idea of the atmosphere that should surround a worship service."

Yet the White House services, because of their setting, have attracted more publicity than previous presidents received when they went out to church. Reporters are regularly invited to White House services and cameramen are allowed to photograph Nixon with the visiting preacher after the service.

Nowhere in the foreword does Nixon mention the fact that security played a large and perhaps decisive role in the decision to hold worship services in the White House. The Secret Service may not have originated the idea, as some reports hold, but it certainly has welcomed it, because it's a lot easier to protect a president when he's in his own parlor than when he's sitting in a crowded church or entering or leaving it.

Nixon concludes his foreword with the declaration that "It is my intention to continue" White House services as long as he's President.

"I think they mean a great deal to many people," he says. "I know they do to me."

Teens Will Look For Violators Of Local Laws

A task force of 10 to 12 teenagers will be hired by Hoffman Estates to patrol the village as observers of ordinance violations.

To be financed with $5,000 approved this week by the village board the task force will spot check for vehicle sticker law violators and for spotting of dog licenses, driveway, fence and abandoned car violations, said Village Mgr. George Longmeyer, citing examples.

"They'll be our eyes and ears out in the streets," he added about the group for which hiring will begin soon.

The youths, to be 16 years of age and older, will not write any citations, but will make the responsible department heads aware of any ordinance violations they see.

They will also notify the proper departments of garbage, litter, or street repair problems they observe.

The task force, proposed by Trustee Edward Hennessy, will function 9 months a year, March through November. Those serving will earn $2 an hour, working assigned areas for four hours a week, with a proposed ceiling on earnings at about $320, said Longmeyer.

THE CRITERIA, and date of interview for hiring have not yet been set, but youths working the force will have to be "kids who show a certain amount of maturity and responsibility," said Longmeyer.

"They will not be out to put the bite on everybody," he added.

"The expenditure for the task force was approved on the logic that hiring the teens would be cheaper than hiring four or five full-time people needed to supplement the already busy village staff," said Longmeyer.

The new task force is a follow up to one organized last year to find cars in Hoffman Estates which did not have proper vehicle stickers.

Bake Sale Saturday

A bake sale Saturday will kick off a year of fund-raising for the Hoffman Hallmark Chorus.

Homebaked goodies and small jars of instant spiced tea will be on sale from 1 to 5 p.m. in front of Grant's at the Golf-Rose Shopping Center, Golf and Roselle roads in Hoffman Estates.

Ways and means chairman Beverly Stevenson says financing is needed for the chorus' winter and spring concerts and for a proposed European tour next summer.

Mrs. June Kessler Cowin, formerly with the American Conservatory of Music, is director.

THE NICKNAME "SARGE" doesn't worry sixth grade teacher Mrs. Felicia Cichy of Fairview Elementary School, Schaumburg. A traditional teacher who believes in the basics of education tempered with love and discipline, she admits to hollering sometimes. But she keeps the peanut brittle and compliments handy also.

Mrs. Cichy...Tough Like A Marshmallow

by JERRY THOMAS

Coughers in her class get a piece of hard candy to suck on but gum chewers end up squirming under her wagging finger.

Tough, that's what "Sarge" is. Ask any of the boys in her sixth grade class. They snicker as they talk about "Sarge," the name they gave their teacher, Mrs. Felicia Cichy.

"She's tough like a marshmallow," confided Paul Donovan and Dan O'Malley as they giggled in their seats on the last days of the school year.

Mrs. Cichy has taught at Fairview school in Schaumburg for 14 years. She is a "square" by self description. A visit to her class finds her mingling with her kids; alternately cajoling, hollering, praising, lecturing, laughing with and teaching, always teaching, he students.

"I'M NEW AT being a teacher," she said "I've only been at it for 14 years, all here at Fairview. I came to teach here when my own four children were grown. Today, the youngest is 20," she added.

Mrs. Cichy lives in Palatine Township with her husband, Walter, and four sons. It was not until her own children were grown that she felt she had the time for teaching. She earned her degree at Chicago Teachers College in 1962 and got her masters in 1969.

This is the last week of school, she said, and principal Maynard Thomas' edict is "keep 'em busy."

"That's not hard usually except that at this age and with the summer weather sneaking up, distraction is a part of our school day," she said with a laugh about her sixth graders.

Dist. 54 curriculum for sixth graders is followed by Mrs. Cichy. "But, although I basically teach the same thing other sixth grade teachers do, I suppose how I teach is different since I'm different and the kids I teach are also," she added.

"This is the last chance for these youngsters to absorb the experiences of a self-contained classroom and my chance to see that they grasp the basics of education," she said.

"SOME OF THEM have been fooling themselves and their parents and teachers for some time and I want to make sure when they get to junior high, they won't be lost," said Mrs. Cichy.

Like this math test, listen, she mentioned as she left to collect assignments.

Lynn Rainey, Jean Phillips, Carol Hickey and Jo Anne Sunde, sitting together, started handing in math assignments. Some of the boys decided to sneak in a few blank papers, but within a blink, Sarge saw and with a brisk "If you think you are fooling me, think again," the boys were hard at work at a new assignment.

Wendy Weiser said: "We work hard in this class and maybe when 'teach' hollers at us we grumble but you know, she is the best teacher in the school."

At recess time, two younger boys gave Sarge a snappy salute and whispered "We get you next year, Sarge."

SHE BLUSHED and said, "I don't know how that nickname started, but it's better than 'yellowtoes.' The story behind that name goes back to my early teaching days when I wore shoes that stained my toes yellow one day and then made the mistake of taking off my shoes in class."

They still talk about it," she said, laughing. It's a story this year's class heard from older brothers and sisters.

"I was trying to be comfortable and really I want my students to be comfortable but not so comfortable that they are not learning," said the teacher.

"I'm not too sure what some might think if they walked into this class and heard us during a discussion period but I believe that sharing a good book, story or experience with others who have not the reading ability, time or opportunity benefits each of us.

"Besides, if you can have fun while you're learning why not?" she asked.

Mrs. Cichy hates weekend homework assignments. "Youngsters learn from their parents too, and for most of them, this is the only time we get together," she added.

Miniskirts and revealing clothes earn a frown in Sarge's class. "Distracting" is how she describes brief clothes. Some of her students still wear short shorts to class but "Mrs. Cichy still hollers," said Wendy.

"SHE IS ALSO out on the playing field screaming out school pep cheers when its ballgame time," Wendy added. "Our teacher leads the cheerleading squad," the student bragged.

"Just like the boys say, Sarge is tough," the youngster concluded.

Four Arrested; 35 Pounds Of Marijuana Seized

'Raid Cuts Drug Flow Here'

Police believe the supply of illegal narcotics in the Northwest suburban area was severely cut with Tuesday's raid in Prospect Heights, which netted 35 pounds of marijuana.

According to Lt. Errol Levy of the Cook County Sheriff's Police, undercover investigators who made the raid said the house, at 505 W. Camp McDonald, was the headquarters for a major north suburban wholesale drug ring.

"Drugs will be harder to get in this area without a doubt," Levy said. He said police believe narcotics distributed by the ring were sold primarily to persons under 30 in Arlington Heights.

Mount Prospect, Des Plaines, Buffalo Grove and Wheeling.

There also were four arrests made by the agents of the Metropolitan Enforcement Group (MEG), a cooperative drug investigation force involving sheriff's police and about 20 north suburban police departments.

IN ADDITION TO the marijuana, Levy said the MEG agents also uncovered barbiturates, amphetamines, a hallucinogen called TITC and a small quantity of hashish. Agents entered the house about 9 p.m. with search warrants and, according to Levy, the four suspects were dividing bricks of marijuana and packaging it for sale.

Arrested were Jerry Timm, 24, of that address, William E. Orce, 24, and Claire L. Orce, 20, of 19 N. Dryden St., Arlington Heights; and Paul S. Gilman, 21, of 1216 Straford, Arlington Heights. All were charged with possession of marijuana.

Timm was also charged with possession of controlled substances (amphetamines and barbiturates) and Orce, who police said had a .25-caliber automatic pistol, was charged with unlawful use of a weapon.

Levy said of the raid, in which $25,000 worth of drugs were seized: "We have just gotten one cog. They (MEG officers) have been tracing the thing right down the line."

HE ADDED that drugs will still be available in the area but he said "one of the major sources" has been shut down with the raid.

It is believed that MEG agents had the house under surveillance for some time, but Levy said details of the raid were being held to preserve MEG's effectiveness as an undercover force.

Jaycees Planning 'Cook's Day Off'

"Cook's Day Off" is a Jaycee project to provide residents of Hoffman Estates with barbecued chicken dinners delivered to their doorsteps.

On that day the Jaycees urge cooks to take a break from their cooking chores and let the Jaycees provide the food while the family stays home in cool comfort.

The Jaycees will release further information about the chicken fry as plans are finalized.

Proceeds from the activity are used to finance the various programs sponsored by the Jaycees. These include such events as the speed skating contest, Easter egg hunt, junior sports jamborees,

Village Board Opposes Property Tax Freeze

The Schaumburg Village Board of Trustees Tuesday turned thumbs down on a piece of pending state legislation that would freeze property taxes for the next two years.

Acting on the recommendation of Village Atty. Jack Siegel, the trustees unanimously approved a resolution opposing H. B. 4680 submitted by State Rep. C. L. McCormick, R-Vienna. The local action came in spite of Schaumburg's practice to date of levying no local tax.

The bill, currently undergoing a second reading, in the Illinois House of Representatives, proposes to limit property taxes extended in 1973 and 1974 to the amount extended this year.

The legislation would "handcuff" the village board and the amount of taxes it could levy in the next two years," Siegel said.

With inflation and the rising cost of services, the village can ill afford a fixed property tax levy, Siegel added.

IN TAKING the action, the Schaumburg trustees agreed with statements made Monday night by Hoffman Estates mayor Fred Downey. Downey said he intended to write letters of protest to state legislators opposing the proposed legislation.

In effect, the bill, if passed by the General Assembly, would tell local governing bodies that they "can't raise taxes for the next two years," Siegel said, except when approved by referendum.

"The school districts would be hurt the most," he added, noting local districts derive most of their property taxes. If nothing else, municipalities do "have alternate forms of income," Siegel said.

If passed in its present form, the bill would freeze property taxes for the period from Dec. 31, 1972 to Jan. 1, 1975, Siegel said.

Atcher Chairman Of United Party

At the first caucus of the Schaumburg United Party held recently, Village Pres. Robert O. Atcher was elected chairman by a unanimous vote.

Included on the agenda was the selection of members for positions on the platform, nominating and credentials committees. There are still openings on some of the committees, a spokesman reported.

In preparation for the November convention, chairmen and alternates were elected for each precinct delegation. The convention will be styled along the lines of the national conventions and will slate SUP candidates for seats on the village board.

Pay Talks Get To 'Nitty-Gritty' Stage

Teachers' salary negotiations in High School Dist. 211 are just now beginning to get into "nitty-gritty" bargaining even though the two teams have been meeting for months, representatives of both sides said yesterday.

The representatives of the board of education and the Dist. 211 Education Association finished reviewing each other's contract proposals in detail Tuesday night and have scheduled their next meeting for June 28.

"We are no closer to agreement than we were the day we gave the teachers' team our proposal in February," board member Robert Seger, chief of the board's bargaining team, said.

In spite of the length of the talks, both sides indicated that bargaining thus far has been friendly.

THE BOARD and teachers made their initial contract proposals public in March.

The two proposals differed widely on salary adjustments. In addition, the teachers asked that bargaining be widened to include non-monetary issues. They said they want greater voice in district policy on items such as class size.

Seger said although in the past the board has refused to discuss non-monetary issues, "we took a different approach this year." The teachers said they are very concerned about things besides salary, so "we decided to listen to them and get some understanding of their concerns." This, he said, has prolonged the negotiations.

OK Liquor License For New Restaurant

The Hoffman Estates Village Board increased the amount of liquor licenses to allow a service bar in the proposed Moon Garden Restaurant under construction at 717 Golf Rd., Hoffman Estates.

Tom Goon, of Hoffman Estates and a former partner in the Ho Luck carry-out Chinese restaurant in the Golf Rose Shopping Center appeared before the board members to petition for the license.

Good said he plans to open a Chinese-American restaurant with a dining room approximately 1,600 square feet that can accommodate about 60 patrons.

Good is negotiating now for a 10-year lease of a portion of the building under construction next to the Eagle store and added he will work in partnership with Woody Lee of Chicago.

The corporation has applied for the restaurant license but made the request for the liquor license so that construction plans may be completed.

Avery added he did not believe impasse procedures would be necessary immediately.

Seger said he believes the talks so far have gone well. "We have had some spirited exchanges, but I think we have reasonable people on both sides of the table. I'm optimistic."

Last year, Dist. 211 was the first in the Northwest suburban area to reach a teachers' salary settlement. The negotiations ended in May, after four months of bargaining.

Mrs. Joyce Kroll To Head Township Youth Committee

Mrs. Joyce Kroll, Hoffman Estates mother of three, was elected chairman of the Schaumburg Township Committee on Youth at the board's regular monthly meeting Monday.

Mrs. Kroll, 173 Ashly Rd., will serve for one year. In that time, she hopes the committee will draw up a master plan which can be used to apply for federal grants for long range programs for youth in this area.

"We need to look at what our needs are and how they can best be met with the funds we might be able to get," she said.

A member of the youth committee for one year, Mrs. Kroll is also 16th precinct committeewoman for the Republican Party, a member of the League of Women Voters, an election judge and a former scout leader.

She has also been a volunteer at "The Bridge" a drop-in center and hotline service in Palatine.

THE INTRODUCTION of three prospective members also took place after a 45-minute delay while Larry Walker, new director, tried to get a quorum for the committee's meeting. Business included approval of the bills and a report by Walker after his first week at work.

Richard Utrey, Bob Hessel and Mrs. Barbara Arnold of Schaumburg were introduced by Township Supervisor Vern Laubenstein. They will attend several meetings before deciding whether or not to seek membership on the board.

Walker, who will work at "The Bridge" one day a week, reported that about 27% of the calls recently have been from Schaumburg residents. Though the number is available to all Schaumburg township residents, Walker said he hopes to make his own contacts with the referral resources in order to improve the services out of his office.

The 23-year-old George Williams College graduate also reported on his visit to Project Intercept, the $100,000 youth services operation in Belvidere, Ill. Some projects initiated there, like Big Brother programs, juvenile advocates and computerized case studies of each youth in trouble, he said could be modified for use here.

Walker was most impressed with the detailed "total outlook" reports on each youth, which he said allowed the seven professional workers there to keep up to date on fifty cases apiece. The Belvidere center has worked with 250 youths on a steady basis in its first eight months.

The Schaumburg township youth committee meets the second Monday of the month at 7:30 p.m. in its office at The Buttery, 105 S. Roselle Rd., Schaumburg.

A new acting police chief and a new school Dist. 21 liaison officer have been appointed for the Wheeling Police Department.

Peter P. Guttella, a former Cook County Sheriff's policeman who lives in Glenview, will serve as acting chief in the department while Police Chief M. O. Horcher remains on leave from the village.

The new School Dist. 21 liaison officer will be Patrolman Clarence Trausch, 31, who served as the Wheeling High School liaison officer for a year.

The two appointments were announced yesterday.

Roger Stricker, director of public safety, said Guttella, 55, will join the department with the rank of appointed captain and the job of acting chief. Stricker noted that the rank will be an appointed one and not issued by the village fire and police commission.

GUTTELLA SERVED under four Cook County Sheriffs from 1947 to 1963. He was in charge of personnel and was an aide to the commanding officer of Dist. 1. He had the rank of Detective Sergeant, Stricker said.

From 1963 to 1967 Guttella was assigned by the sheriff's department as an investigator for the office of the Cook County board president.

In that post he was responsible for investigations concerning citizen's complaints against the sheriff's department or other Cook County agencies, Stricker said. Recently he has been working for the division of highways for the State of Illinois.

Guttella was appointed to the post by Village Mgr. George Passolt after a series of interviews with various applicants, Stricker said. Applicants from Michigan, Indiana, Ohio and several surrounding communities sought the acting chief post.

Guttella will begin the job Friday at an annual salary of $18,000.

STRICKER SAID that is the same salary Horcher will receive if he is able to return. He said if Horcher comes back Guttella would probably become an assistant to the chief.

Horcher is on sick leave after suffering a stroke earlier this year.

Stricker said Guttella is a strong advocate of training for policemen.

Guttella also wrote the first draft of a major disaster plan for Cook County.

TRAUSCH, WHO has been with the Wheeling Police Department since 1967, will assume the Dist. 21 liaison officer duties in the fall.

A Lake Zurich resident, Trausch currently holds the post of assistant shift commander and has an associate of arts degree from Harper College.

In addition to his experience as Wheeling High School liaison officer in 1969 and 1970, Trausch worked with young people at seminars and retreats when he was in training to become a Divine Word missionary brother at St. Mary's Seminary in Techy. After leaving the seminary, Trausch worked for the U. S. Post Office and Milburn Bros. Inc. in Mount Prospect before joining the Wheeling police force.

Dist. 21 has been without a police liaison officer for a year as a result of school district budget cuts.

TRAUSCH WILL reinstate the program in the junior high schools and elementary schools of the village, Stricker said.

Stricker explained the village will pay Trausch's salary under the new arrangement and the school district will pay for his schooling, fringe benefits and meetings he attends.

Under the old agreement the school district paid the liaison officer's salary, but the district now cannot resume the program and pay the salary without hiring back all the teachers it cut in the budget trimming, Stricker explained.

He said the village is willing to pay the salary because of the good results the village has had from the program in the past. He said policemen have noticed a marked difference in the attitudes of students this year since the program has been dropped.

The position of Wheeling High School liaison officer is not yet filled, Stricker said. He said school Dist. 21 officials will interview two patrolmen — Gary Holveck and Bill Sharpe for the post. Holveck served as the liaison officer during the past school year.

DEMOCRATIC STATE senate candidate Ann Matasar. She stopped at Wheeling High School Wednesday, before continuing her campaign in Buffalo Grove, to exhibit her riding style.

Ann Matasar Campaigns On Bicycle

Ann Matasar has adopted the bicycle as a method for meeting voters in her campaign for a state Senate seat in the new 1st district.

The democratic candidate from Evanston visited Buffalo Grove voters yesterday as she walked and rode her bicycle through the village. She also plans to visit Wheeling and the other villages in the district during her campaign.

She began the bicycle tours in Wilmette, where, she says, "The reception has been very pleasant. People seem genuinely pleased to see a candidate come to the door. It's a casual approach."

Animal Control Warden Begins Job

A new animal control warden has begun his job with the Village of Wheeling.

Richard Herdus, 25, of Wheeling is beginning patrol duties after completing two weeks of training. He is the second man to hold the animal warden's post in the village.

He received a week of training at Lincoln Park Zoo and was trained in village ordinance enforcement and ticket-writing procedures.

Herdus is currently checking village dog license tags against lists of animals in the village. The lists are provided by the Cook County Rabies Control office.

Stricker said residents who do not have licenses for their dogs will receive warning tickets from the new warden. A violator will have 10 days in which to purchase a license or will be given a citation with a fine.

Resident Celebrates Her 103rd Birthday

Matilda Byrne celebrated her 103rd birthday yesterday with two parties at the Addolorata Village Home in Wheeling.

Miss Byrne, who has resided at the villa since 1967, was born June 14, 1869 in New York. She was a teacher in her younger years.

Miss Byrne blew out a candle on a birthday cake at the first of the two parties in her honor.

Shooting Case Delay; Victim Now 'Very Good'

The case against a 14-year-old Buffalo Grove youth, accused of shooting his brother last week, has been continued in juvenile court. Officials for the state's attorney's juvenile division were not certain of the date for the next hearing.

Melvin Conn, 15, of 765 Grove Dr., victim of the shooting, was reported in "very good" condition yesterday at Northwest Community Hospital. Hospital officials said the youth is "walking around and improving every day."

Conn was reportedly shot by his brother during a family dispute.

'Most Bottles' Will Win Cub Tickets

Old bottles and jars could turn into a pair of box-seat tickets to a Chicago Cubs game for a lucky Wheeling youth.

Wheeling Jaycees are sponsoring a special glass recycling drive June 24, and the child who brings in the most bottles and jars on that date will receive the tickets.

Jaycees will collect and count the bottles at the recycling center behind the Wheeling municipal building. The center is open each Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Money from the recycling project will be used for community improvement.

Dunhurst Site Proposed

Zoners OK New Sears Outlet

The Wheeling Zoning Board of Appeals Tuesday approved a plan to build a new 32,000-square-foot Sears catalog surplus store in the Dunhurst Shopping Center.

The store plan must now receive approval from the village plan commission and the village board before construction can begin.

The new store would be southwest of the National Food Store in the shopping center. There would be an entrance to the store parking lot from Jenkins Court as well as from Dundee Road.

Sears Roebuck and Co. currently operates a catalog surplus outlet from a store already in the center. The new building will provide larger facilities for the surplus sales.

THE STORE HAS frequently drawn large crowds of shoppers for middle-of-the-night special sales on merchandise which is surplus from the catalog departments of regular Sears stores.

Shopping center developer Henry Lin-sky told the zoning board Thursday there are also plans to build two other retail stores on property west of the shopping center up to the School Dist. 21 administration center and Jack London Junior High School.

Plans for the two buildings include one 20,900 square foot building and one 41,875 square foot structure.

Parking for the new Sears store will be adjacent to the Wheeling Public Library District land on Jenkins Court.

PLANS FOR THE Sears store in the village had been announced last year, but at that time no final agreement had been reached with Sears Roebuck and Co.

The Sears proposal will be considered by the village plan commission next Thursday.

Linsky told the zoning board he would remove the two old houses standing on the property west of the shopping center now. An abandoned barn on the property was recently destroyed by vandals who set it afire.

Linsky told the zoning board that truck trailers would not be parked outside the new Sears facility.

The village has repeatedly complained about Sears trailers parked in the shopping center at the present store.

LINSKY SAID he hopes to start construction of the new catalog surplus store before winter.

In other action Tuesday the zoning board unanimously denied a request from "Your Pie House" at 335 S. Milwaukee Ave. to move the restaurant sign closer to the street. The new restaurant, which has not opened, currently has a sign 25 feet back from the street.

The zoning board refused a request to move the sign forward and place it on traffic visibility problems and the possibility that Milwaukee Avenue might be realigned and straightened in that area as reasons for the refusal.

Time Inc. Clarifies Magazine Sales Pitch 'Mixup'

A spokesman for Dialogue Marketing of Oak Park said yesterday he hopes Wheeling residents will not confuse his firm's magazine salesmen with those who reportedly promised residents that subscriptions would help build a Wheeling ice rink.

William Simms said salesmen for his firm, a telephone sales division of Time Inc., are raising money for an Olympic-speed-skating ice complex in Northbrook.

Simms said the firm is donating $1.25 out of each $10 subscription to be used for the nonprofit campaign to build the Northbrook facilities in Olympic Park.

Already, more than $800 has been raised for the fund through magazine subscriptions sold in the telephone sales campaign, he said.

Simms explained that the Northbrook complex will include public recreational skating as well as hockey facilities. The facility will be dedicated to the Northbrook residents who participated in the Winter Olympics in Sapporo, Japan, two of whom won gold medals.

The Time Inc. subsidiary is phoning residents throughout the suburban area to sell the subscriptions, he explained, because the Northbrook facility will be available for all area residents.

SEVERAL WHEELING residents had complained to the Herald earlier this week about solicitors who allegedly said buying subscriptions to Life magazine would help bring a proposed ice rink sports complex to Wheeling.

Metro Sports Inc., a firm studying a possible twin ice rink and sports complex in Wheeling, had denied any connection with the magazine sales offers, however.

Simms said yesterday he hoped Wheeling residents were not mistaking the proposed Northbrook complex for the one Metro Sports is studying in Wheeling.

He said his firm will answer any questions Wheeling residents have about the campaign to raise funds for the Northbrook complex.

SIMMS CALLED the Herald yesterday about the confusion over the magazine campaign as the result of a call from Time Inc. offices in New York.

The Herald had contacted Time Inc. offices in Chicago Tuesday in hopes of clarifying the magazine sales offer and its relation to the proposed Wheeling sports complex. A representative said Tuesday he had no knowledge of such a program, but a subsequent call to the New York office of the firm by the local office revealed the mixup.

Four Arrested; 35 Pounds Of Marijuana Seized

'Raid Cuts Drug Flow Here'

Police believe the supply of illegal narcotics in the Northwest suburban area was severely cut with Tuesday's raid in Prospect Heights, which netted 35 pounds of marijuana.

According to Lt. Errol Levy of the Cook County Sheriff's Police, undercover investigators who made the raid said the house, at 505 W. Camp McDonald, was the headquarters for a major north suburban wholesale drug ring.

"Drugs will be harder to get in this area without a doubt," Levy said. He said police believe narcotics distributed by the ring were sold primarily to persons under 30 in Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Des Plaines, Buffalo

Grove and Wheeling.

There also were four arrests made by the agents of the Metropolitan Enforcement Group (MEG), a cooperative drug investigation force involving sheriff's police and about 20 north suburban police departments.

IN ADDITION TO the marijuana, Levy said the MEG agents also uncovered barbiturates, amphetamines, a hallucinogen called THC and a small quantity of hashish. Agents entered the house about 9 p.m. with search warrants and, according to Levy, the four suspects were dividing bricks of marijuana and packaging it for sale.

Arrested were Jerry Timm, 24, of that address; William E. Orce, 24, and Claire L. Orce, 20, of 19 N. Dryden St., Arlington Heights; and Paul S. Gilman, 21, of 1216 Stratford, Arlington Heights. All were charged with possession of marijuana.

Timm was also charged with possession of controlled substances (amphetamines and barbiturates) and Orce, who police said had a .25-caliber automatic pistol, was charged with unlawful use of a weapon.

Levy said of the raid, in which $25,000 worth of drugs were seized: "We have just gotten one cog (Timm) off the line." HE ADDED that drugs will still be available in the area but he said "one of the major sources" has been shut down with the raid.

It is believed that MEG agents had the house under surveillance for some time, but Levy said details of the raid were being held to preserve MEG's effectiveness as an undercover force.

A Niles police sergeant said Gilman is a student, Orce is an auto mechanic and his wife, a waitress. It is unknown if Timm was employed. The men were released on $5,000 bond and the woman on $1,000 bond yesterday.

Faculty Council May Give Talks Another Chance

The Wheeling Faculty Council negotiating team met Tuesday and Wednesday to decide whether it should return to the bargaining table with the Dist. 21 Board of Education.

The WFC called an impasse in the talks last week but reportedly may try to give the negotiations another chance. It was not known Wednesday afternoon what the teachers decided.

Kenneth Gill, Dist. 21 superintendent, said yesterday he plans to present a written statement to all the teachers in his district today. He said the statement responds to statements made by Larry Halter which appeared in the Herald Tuesday morning, as well as his impression of negotiations in general.

HALTER, WHO is the Illinois Education Association (IEA) consultant to the WFC, is also the spokesman for that group. Since the impasse was called last week, he and Gill have accused each other of causing the stalemate.

The WFC and the Dist. 21 board have had 12 negotiating sessions since February. They have not reached agreement on any part of a new contract. The current contract runs out June 30.

If the WFC decides to return to the bargaining table it is not known when the two teams will meet. If the WFC decides to stay with the impasse, it is possible, according to board officials, that the board may seek a court decision before accepting the impasse.

The WFC is expected to release its decision this afternoon.

Lightning Kills Worker, Injures Another At Site

One man was killed and another seriously injured when they were struck by lightning while working on a construction site in Palatine yesterday afternoon.

Pronounced dead on arrival at North-west Community Hospital in Arlington Heights was Willie Smith, 501 Lake Forest Rd., Highwood.

Listed in serious condition was Gary Bellamy, 23, of 300 W. 60th St., Westmont. He was treated for shock and multiple injuries.

Palatine police said the two employees of Ben Pakin Co., Palatine, were working in a hole at the Baybrook apartment construction site on E. Palatine Road when they were hit by the lightning at 3:20 p.m.

Smith's body was taken to the Cook County Morgue.

THE TRAGEDY occurred during a turbulent thunderstorm that swept the area, triggering both power failures and localized flooding in traditional storm trouble spots.

The storm knocked out electrical power, in some cases for several hours, in at least six area towns.

Blackouts ranging from 45 minutes to several hours were reported in parts of Rolling Meadows, Palatine, Arlington Heights, Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates and Mount Prospect, according to Jack Stephens, a Commonwealth Edison Co. spokesman.

The northwest portion of Rolling Meadows and the west central section of Arlington Heights were knocked out by what Stephens called a "feeder lockout." He said lightning hit a power line and tripped a fuse-like safety device in an Arlington Heights power substation, shorting out the line serving those areas.

Power lines were reported down in several towns, including three in Palatine, four in Hoffman Estates and two in Schaumburg.

MOST OF the service interruption occurred in two main power corridors, one through southwest Palatine, Hoffman Estates, Rolling Meadows and central Arlington Heights.

The other main area of disruption followed a path through southern Schaumburg and southwest Mount Prospect.

Most of the power interruptions occurred between 3:45 and 5:15 p.m., according to Stephens. He said an estimated 3,000 customers scattered around the area had electrical service interrupted by the storm.

The storm also contributed to a seven-car accident on Rte. 53 between Northwest Highway and Euclid Street. Early police reports indicated there were no serious injuries.

Jaycees Start Relief Fund For Rapid City

A statewide campaign to raise $250,000 for relief in Rapid City, S.D., will be coordinated by the Hoffman Estates Jaycees.

A trust fund has been set up at the Suburban Bank of Hoffman Estates, Bob Brenner of the board of directors announced Tuesday. Checks should be made payable to Rapid City Jaycee Relief Fund, in care of the bank and all monies collected will be forwarded to the South Dakota Jaycees for the flood victims of the area.

The Hoffman Jaycees will cover expenses of the project, including contacting every Jaycee organization in the state for help. They hope to be able to send a sizable contribution to Rapid City July 4.

Rolls Royce Misplaced?

In these days of large shopping centers and enormous, crowded parking lots, it's not unusual for shoppers to forget where they parked their cars.

It is unusual when the car is a Rolls Royce, though.

Monday, Mount Prospect police received a call about 5 p.m. from a Glenview man who said his brown Rolls Royce had been stolen from the Randhurst Shopping Center parking lot.

A few minutes later the man called back the car wasn't stolen; he had merely been looking for it on the wrong part of the parking lot.

Board To Meet Early

The park board will meet at 7 p.m., but is expected to discuss land acquisition in executive session for a good portion of the meeting.

The board meets in the district's Heritage Park facility at 222 S. Wolf Rd.

Meadowbrook Discussion Not 'Battle'

Discussions last Thursday over ditch widening and tree removal in the Meadowbrook West area of Wheeling were not a "battle" or a "fight" between residents and the village board, village trustee William Hein asserted Monday evening.

Hein said the plan to widen the ditch and remove the trees in the subdivision had never been given final approval by the board.

The trustee made his comments Monday in disagreement with the use of the word "battle" in the Herald to describe the Meadowbrook West residents' request to save trees in their subdivision.

"I thought it was handled very nicely. People were courteous to each other and when there was a disagreement there was open discussion to reach an agreement," Hein said.

The trustee said he wanted to point out the discrepancy because he had received telephone calls Monday asking him why the trustees were "fighting" with village residents.

"We weren't fighting with the residents or we wouldn't have had the meeting," Hein said.

The board dropped a plan for the ditch widening after the meeting with the residents Thursday.

Dundee Rd. Work Contract May Be Let Next Month

Area residents may soon have to cope with yet another detour. State highway division officials are indicating the contract for the widening of Dundee Road from Elmhurst Road to Rte. 53 may be let in July.

Al Sifrer, project engineer, told the Herald Wednesday. "The project has high priority and there's a good chance we can let the contract next month."

Sifrer said progress on the $5 million road widening project depends on whether there is enough money left over after June bids are let. The question will be answered June 30. If funds are not available next month, the project may be considered in July and definitely by September.

Jim Pitz, regional monitor, said if the bid were let in July, the earliest construction could begin is late August.

WHEN COMPLETED, Dundee Road will extend as four lanes from Elmhurst Road through Buffalo Grove. The project, which will take two years, will also include the realignment of Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights roads.

Currently, Dundee Road is four-lanes through Wheeling from east of Milwaukee Avenue to Elmhurst Road.

The initial work on the road, once it begins, will be sewer construction, a former stumbling block to progress on the project.

Buffalo Grove refused to approve plans for the project because the state was going to channel the water runoff from the road into the White Pines Strip.

The village agreed to the plans after the state promised to construct an over-size drain pipe to divert water from the road to a retention basin to be built on the Arlington Country Club golf course.

The village and the sanitary district will pay a portion of the costs for the $300,000 retention basin.

Village engineer Arnold Seaberg said the Illinois Division of Waterways has asked the state legislature for $80,000 for the retention project. The Metropolitan Sanitary District has appropriated $70,000 and the village will contribute $60,000, mostly to cover engineering costs and storm sewer improvements.

"Providing the state legislature approves the division of waterways request, we hope to start construction the first of November after the golfing season is over," Seaberg said.

DEMOCRATIC STATE senate candidate Ann Matasar of Evanston is pedaling her way through the suburbs in the new 1st district to meet voters on an informal basis.

She stopped at Wheeling High School Wednesday, before continuing her campaign in Buffalo Grove, to exhibit her riding style.

Ann Matasar Campaigns On Bicycle

Ann Matasar has adopted the bicycle as a method for meeting voters in her campaign for a state Senate seat in the new 1st district.

The democratic candidate from Evanston visited Buffalo Grove voters yesterday as she walked and rode her bicycle through the village. She also plans to visit Wheeling and the other villages in the district during her campaign.

She began the bicycle tours in Wilmette, where, she says, "The reception has been very pleasant. People seem genuinely pleased to see a candidate come to the door. It's a casual approach."

Repairs Close Arlington Road

Arlington Heights Road between Dundee and Lake-Cook roads has now been closed for repair work and construction. Village officials said the work by Milburn Bros. is expected to take about two months, during which time motorists will have to seek alternate routes.

Suggested routes are: Bernard Drive to Raupp Boulevard or Buffalo Grove Road; Lake-Cook Road to Raupp Boulevard or Buffalo Grove Road; and Lake-Cook Road to Arlington Heights Road (north of the construction), north on Arlington Heights Road to Checker Road, west on Checker Road to Schaffer Road, south on Schaffer Road to Nichols Road, and west on Nichols Road to the Rte. 53 frontage road.

Barriades will block all traffic on the portion of the road under construction, except access will be kept open to Henry Wadsworth Longfellow School.

Resident Celebrates Her 103rd Birthday

Matilda Byrne celebrated her 103rd birthday yesterday with two parties at the Addolorata Village Home in Wheeling.

Miss Byrne, who has resided at the villa since 1967, was born June 14, 1869 in New York. She was a teacher in her younger years.

Miss Byrne blew out a candle on a birthday cake at the first of the two parties in her honor.

Shooting Case Delay; Victim Now 'Very Good'

The case against a 14-year-old Buffalo Grove youth, accused of shooting his brother last week, has been continued in juvenile court. Officials for the state's attorney's juvenile division were not certain of the date for the next hearing.

Melvin Conn, 15, of 765 Grove Dr., victim of the shooting, was reported in "very good" condition yesterday at Northwest Community Hospital. Hospital officials said the youth is "walking around and improving every day."

Conn was reportedly shot by his brother during a family dispute.

Park District To Meet Tonight

The Buffalo Grove Park District will have a special meeting at 8 tonight at the Emmerich Park office.

The commissioners will formally open bids for construction at Joyce Kilmer School. Improvements will include a football field, basketball court, tot lot, ice skating rink and recreation areas.

The treasurer's report for the 1971-72 fiscal year will also be discussed and approved.

School Board OKs Abridged Budget

The Dist. 96 school board tentatively approved the budget for the 1972-73 fiscal year Monday night after the finance committee made several cuts from the educational fund section of the budget.

This was the second time the budget was brought before the board. The first time, May 8, it was ordered back to the drawing board to see where the cuts could be made.

The finance committee balanced the educational fund and came out with a profit of $670. Thus, the entire budget will have an estimated balance on hand at the end of June, 1973, of more than $107,000.

THERE WILL BE a public meeting at 8 p.m. Monday, July 10, to formally approve the new budget. Meanwhile, residents of the district can review the entire budget at Kildeer Countryside School.

The board also approved a plan for students to rent school-owned musical instruments if the students are in music classes.

The plan is:

—All instruments, except percussion, will rent for $20. Percussion instruments will rent for $10.

—All rental fees will be non-refundable and will be put into the general fund. The money will be used toward the upkeep of school-owned instruments and the purchase of new instruments.

—All parents will sign contracts for the rental and students will sign the same contracts, stating they will take care of the rented instruments.

—ANY SCHOOL-owned instrument damaged by a student will be repaired from rental fee funds. Any cost over the rental fee will be paid by the student.

—Each student will be responsible for the loss of his or her instrument.

THE RENTING of the instruments will be handled through one musical agency chosen by Mrs. Gitana Folkes, music teacher in Dist. 96.

The board also approved the employment of seven new teachers for next year as well as approving a comparability report of the Title I program for the state.

Board members tabled one set of bids and disapproved another set during their monthly meeting.

The first set of bids was for blacktopping the parking lot at Willow Grove School. The board took no positive action on these bids, since it believes the Buffalo Grove Park District should be responsible for 50 per cent of the costs.

ONE BOARD member said since the area to be blacktopped is part of park district land, and since the park will probably use the area for its own recreational activities, it should pay half the costs.

The board tabled the Willow Grove bids until next month's meeting in hopes the park district will act on the situation.

The second set of bids, for air conditioning administrative offices at Willow Grove school and the superintendent's office at Kildeer school, were completely dropped by the board.

The bids, ranging in price from $13,600 to $21,535 at Willow Grove and from $13,200 to $17,600 at Kildeer, were replaced authorization to purchase window air conditioners at a total cost of not more than $500.

The board then went into executive session to discuss the purchase of future school sites.

Lightning Kills Worker, Injures Another At Site

One man was killed and another seriously injured when they were struck by lightning while working on a construction site in Palatine yesterday afternoon.

Pronounced dead on arrival at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights was Willie Smith, 501 Lake Forest Rd., Highwood.

Listed in serious condition was Gary Bellamy, 23, of 309 W. 69th St., Westmont. He was treated for shock and multiple injuries.

Palatine police said the two employees of Ben Pekin Co., Palatine, were working in a hole at the Baybrook apartment construction site on E. Palatine Road when they were hit by the lightning at 3:20 p.m.

Smith's body was taken to the Cook County Morgue.

THE TRAGEDY occurred during a turbulent thunderstorm that swept the area, triggering both power failures and localized flooding in traditional storm trouble spots.

The storm knocked out electrical power, in some cases for several hours, in at least six area towns.

Blackouts ranging from 45 minutes to several hours were reported in parts of Rolling Meadows, Palatine, Arlington Heights, Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates and Mount Prospect, according to Jack Stephens, a Commonwealth Edison Co. spokesman.

The northwest portion of Rolling Meadows and the west central section of Arlington Heights were knocked out by what Stephens called a "feeder lockout." He said lightning hit a power line and tripped a fuse-like safety device in an Arlington Heights power substation, shorting out the line serving those areas.

Power lines were reported down in several towns, including three in Palatine, four in Hoffman Estates and two in Schaumburg.

MOST OF the service interruption occurred in two main power corridors, one through southwest Palatine, Hoffman Estates, Rolling Meadows and central Arlington Heights.

The other main area of disruption followed a path through southern Schaumburg and southwest Mount Prospect.

Most of the power interruptions occurred between 3:45 and 5:15 p.m., according to Stephens. He said an estimated 3,000 customers scattered around the area had electrical service interrupted by the storm.

The storm also contributed to a seven-car accident on Rte. 53 between Northwest Highway and Euclid Street. Early police reports indicated there were no serious injuries.

$20 Million Hotel Complex Proposed

by KEN KOZAK

A proposal to build a $20 million Hilton-managed hotel and adjacent office complex on Algonquin Road near the Holiday Inn was revealed to the Rolling Meadows City Council Tuesday.

Kenneth Tucker, president of Kenroy developers, told the council his firm wants to build a 300-room motor hotel and three high-rise office buildings on the 10.7 acre site formerly known as the Royal Coach property.

NOT EVERYBODY thought the downpour and flooding that swept the area yesterday afternoon was just a "rain in the neck." Many of the young-er generation took to the flooded highways and by-ways which became instant splashing pools where the only hazards were semi-drowned cars.

No Longer 'Temporary' Administrative Librarian

Mrs. Grove Named To Library Post

Donna Grove, who has served temporarily in the position since December, last night was named administrative librarian of the Palatine Public Library.

Mrs. Grove, 44, of Barrington, was selected from among 25 applicants for the post by the library's board of trustees.

The administrative librarian, formerly referred to as the director, is the top full-time employee of the library, overseeing personnel, budget preparation and day-to-day operation of the library. The administrative librarian is responsible to the library board.

ONE OF MRS. Grove's first tasks will be to fill her former position of technical services librarian.

She held the post for 2½ years before being named acting director of the library when Ida A. Bullen resigned last fall. Mrs. Grove had been hired by Mrs. Bullen.

Mrs. Grove said yesterday her primary concern as administrative librarian will be "service to the community."

A key item facing the Palatine library board which is expected to require much of her time is the selection of a site for a new facility. The library board hopes to purchase land by the end of the summer, then to plan and hold a referendum to raise funds to build the library.

Mrs. Grove received her bachelor's degree in English from DePaul University in Chicago in 1950 and her master's in library science from Rosary College in River Forest in 1968.

Before coming to the Palatine library, she served as head of administrative services at Gail Borden Public Library in Elgin for a year.

She also was a consultant at a library in Cairo, Egypt, for a year; part-time employee of the Barrington Library for a year; and volunteer worker in Barrington school libraries. Mrs. Grove also has served as reference librarian at the Field Museum of Natural History in Chicago.

She is a member of the American and Illinois library associations.

Pay Talks Get To 'Nitty-Gritty' Stage

Teachers' salary negotiations in High School Dist. 211 are just now beginning to get into "nitty-gritty" bargaining even though the two teams have been meeting for months, representatives of both sides said yesterday.

The representatives of the board of education and the Dist. 211 Education Association finished reviewing each other's contract proposals in detail Tuesday night and have scheduled their next meeting for June 26.

"We are no closer to agreement than we were the day we gave the teachers' team our proposal in February," board member Robert Seger, chief of the board's bargaining team, said.

In spite of the length of the talks, both sides indicated that bargaining thus far has been friendly.

THE BOARD and teachers made their initial contract proposals public in March.

The two proposals differed widely on salary adjustments. In addition, the teachers asked that bargaining be widened to include non-monetary issues. They said they want greater voice in district policy on items such as class size.

Seger said although in the past the board has refused to discuss non-mone-itary issues, "we took a different approach this year." The teachers said they are very concerned about things besides salary, so "we decided to listen to them and get some understanding of their concerns." This, he said, has prolonged the negotiations.

Ron Avery, chairman of the teachers' team, said he was pleased with the hearing the board had given the teacher's proposal, although he added, "There is always the possibility they are just being nice before they say no."

THE SALARY talks are taking place under the terms of a negotiations agreement which spells out ground rules and impasse procedures. Avery said the teachers' main concern is that the agreement expires on June 30 and the board has not agreed yet to extend it.

The impasse procedures provide for calling in an outside mediator or fact-finding team to conduct non-binding mediation. Avery said the teachers were concerned that the procedures would not be available later this summer if the negotiations agreement is allowed to expire.

"We felt when we negotiated the procedure that it was a sensible way to handle problems," he said. "Now it appears to us that negotiations are going to take all summer so we want the board to extend the agreement."

Avery added he did not believe impasse procedures would be necessary immediately.

Seger said he believes the talks so far have gone well. "We have had some spirited exchanges, but I think we have reasonable people on both sides of the table. I'm optimistic."

Last year, Dist. 211 was the first in the Northwest suburban area to reach a teachers' salary settlement. The negotiations ended in May, after four months of bargaining.

Paramedic Bill To Get Second Reading Today

The bill enabling specially trained firemen and ambulance attendants to render emergency treatment is expected to come before the Illinois House today for a second reading.

The bill, handled by Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, and Rep. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect, was introduced into the House on Tuesday. It was passed last week by the Illinois Senate.

Schlickman said yesterday the bill ordinarily would have been assigned to the House Public Welfare Committee, but was not because the committee has no more hearings scheduled in this session of the General Assembly.

Instead, he said he will move today to advance the bill to a second reading on the floor without a committee hearing.

Suspension of the House rules allowing a second reading without committee hearings would require 89 votes, the same number necessary to pass a bill.

IF THE second reading is permitted, the third reading and voting on the bill would take place at a later date.

The bill has the support of Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie.

It is designed to allow paramedics to administer drugs and certain treatment under the supervision of a physician without fear of liability.

A network to provide this emergency care is being set up at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights to serve surrounding communities.

First School Census Figures Are In

The census forms are in but actual facts and figures from the first school census in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 are not expected until early fall.

The census takers, more than 500 in all, mainly from the 19 PTA's, contacted all the residents in the district last month. The census forms have been turned into the administration office where they will be alphabetized and then sent to High School Dist. 211 to be key-punched and run through the computer.

Mrs. Lorita Langley, director of pupil personnel services, said the results of the census are not expected until early fall because of the Dist. 211 material that has to be run through the computer before it can be used for the census.

When the information is compiled, the district plans to use it in their long range planning. It is hoped the information will give some indication of how many children the district can expect in the future and the areas the children will be coming from. From this the district will have a better idea of where it should look for land to build new schools, if in fact new schools will be needed.

SINCE THE census information will probably have to be updated periodically, district officials met with the census takers this month to hear suggestions they might have for future censuses.

The main suggestion was to make the census form simpler and use either an all numeric or all alpha coding system but not a combination of both as was done for this census.

The census takers also reported some residents were hesitant to answer some of the questions on the form. The greatest reluctance to answer was experienced on the question of how many bedrooms there were in the house or apartment. Apparently the people felt this information might end up in the hands of an assessor and result in higher taxes, said Mrs. Langley. She explained the purpose of the question was to determine how many children the district can expect if the house should be sold in the future based on statistics on how many children come from apartments and houses with various numbers of bedrooms.

People also questioned the necessity of information on children's birth dates and physically and mentally retarded children. This is necessary for future planning, said Mrs. Langley.

Despite some of their concern, very few people refused to answer the census takers questions, according to Mrs. Langley.

Stop Signs Scheduled

Four-way stop signs are to be installed at two Palatine intersections and two-way stop signs at three other intersections. All are in subdivisions.

The intersections of Carpenter and Stark drives in Banbury Lane, and of Ventura, and Mill Valley drives in the Reseda subdivision are to become four-way stops.

Previously, both intersections were regulated by yield right-of-way signs.

Other changes authorized by the Palatine Village Board this week will have traffic on Monterey Drive stop for Stark Drive, in the Reseda subdivision; and Glenn Drive stop for Sayles Drive, and Belle Avenue stop for Joyce Avenue, both in the Winston Park subdivision.

The charges were made following studies of the intersections by Palatine police, coupled with recommendations of residents, according to Trustee Fred H. Zajonc.

The ordinance authorizing the stop signs is to be reviewed by the trustees' public safety committee, which Zajonc heads.

Streets Flood During Downpour

A torrential downpour yesterday afternoon flooded streets throughout Palatine causing motorists to take alternate routes.

The heaviest flooding occurred at Northwest Highway and Hicks Road where village cleanup crews worked to clear streets yesterday evening. Barricades were placed at the intersection before the streets became passable.

The area near Lincoln Street also was flooded as water rose over the curb of the road.

'Good Hotels Needed Here'

In making his presentation to the Rolling Meadows city council Tuesday regarding his firm's proposed hotel development at Algonquin Road and Rte. 53, Kenroy president Ken Tucker stressed what he called a growing need for travel accommodations in this area.

"Studies regarding the demand (for hotel facilities) in this area say that we should have built this a year ago," Tucker told the aldermen. "There is a tremendous demand for good hotel facilities in this area."

"The area is now served primarily by four major motor hotels: Holiday Inns in Rolling Meadows and Elk Grove Village, Howard Johnson's in Palatine and the Arlington Park Towers in Arlington Heights.

A market analysis compiled last year by the firm of Laventhol, Krekstein, Horwath and Horwath says that these four facilities have 963 rooms available for rental.

KENROY PLANS to build a 300-room hotel to be managed by the Hilton chain. The plans also include the possibility of future expansion to 500 rooms.

The Kenroy project, plus a proposed Sheraton Inn in Schaumburg and a Holiday Inn in Itasca, give the area a predictable base of 1,628 rooms.

The four major motor hotels are now operating at 73 per cent capacity combined. All but the Arlington Park Towers are, on the average, 80 per cent full. The Towers, according to the survey, averages 60 per cent of capacity.

Because of the low occupancy there and what Tucker called a very high break-even point, he predicted that the Towers would never be a good hotel venture.

THE RESEARCH firm's statistical model predicts that a Rolling Meadows Hilton could operate at a 94 per cent capacity by 1976. True occupancy figures would probably be lower, according to the survey, because of fluctuating occupancy trends during the week, expected new competition and other unpredictable economic factors.

Tollway to the south, Rte. 53 to the west, Algonquin Road to the north and the Holiday Inn to the east.

Tucker told the council he hopes to have financing for the project arranged in 60 days, and working architectural drawings ready by September or October.

IF THIS SCHEDULE is maintained, he said "the hotel could break ground this year and open within 13 months."

Tucker and several associates, including architects and engineers, outlined a three-phase program for development, beginning with the bi-level motel and one 10-story office building, followed by the second 10-story building in phase two, and concluding with the third office building, which is planned to be 20 stories high, but could be smaller, according to Tucker.

The three office structures will contain a total of 600,000 square feet of space, according to existing plans. They will be arranged in what Tucker called a tripod configuration, and connected by a two-story rotunda that will serve as a main entryway and may house a restaurant, and will be part of phase one.

The hotel will be built in different levels. The main tower will be nine stories high and will contain 260 rooms. A wing will be built in a two-story, lani style, and will house special guest rooms and suites.

AN INDOOR-OUTDOOR swimming pool, recreational area and restaurant and meeting facilities are also planned. The hotel will be connected to one of the office towers by a walkway.

The office building lobbies will be recessed below the upper part of the towers. The lobbies of the concrete structures will be enclosed in bronze-color reflecting glass and the upper stories will be enclosed in gold-color reflecting glass.

The appearance of the hotel will be similar, Tucker said.

Tucker said Kenroy has already negotiated a management agreement with the Hilton chain that provides for them to assume complete operation of the hotel and its facilities.

The agreement, however, is subject to certain conditions, he said. Those conditions are acceptance of the project by the city, and acceptance of the development plans by Hilton.

THE SITE of the development is the old Royal Coach Inn property that was abandoned last year when the previous developers went bankrupt.

Beck and Associates of Dallas, Tex., had planned a 1,000-room hotel but went bankrupt. The property was taken over by the Downtowner Motor Lodge Co. in October 1970, and subsequently sold to Kenroy about a year ago.

The property has been called the most valuable piece of land in the city because the Royal Coach Inn developers had put $250,000 worth of utilities in on the tract.

Kenroy plans to use those water and storm and sanitation sewer utilities and improve on them where necessary.

THE PROPERTY is already zoned for hotel or motel use, but Kenroy will have to receive a variation from the city's zoning code in order to build high-rise structures.

The presentation to the city council Tuesday was unusual because the developers have not yet appeared before the city plan commission, the normal first step in seeking approval for a planned unit development. Kenroy representatives had been meeting privately with Mayor Roland Meyer and fire and building officials to determine some of the problem areas in meeting city fire and building codes.

Meyer said the special appearance Tuesday was "unusual, but I felt it was something that should come to the council for aldermen's questions before it goes to the plan commission."

No opposition to the project was registered Tuesday by councilmen. A hearing before the plan commission may be held July 5.

Dundee Road Work Contract Near

Area residents may soon have to cope with yet another detour. State highway division officials are indicating the contract for the widening of Dundee Road from Elmhurst Road to Rte. 53 may be let in July.

Al Siffr, project engineer, told the Herald Wednesday, "The project has high priority and there's a good chance we can let the contract next month."

Siffr said progress on the $6 million road widening project depends on whether there is enough money left over after June bids are let. The question will be answered June 30. If funds are not available next month, the project may be considered in July and definitely by September.

Jim Pitz, regional monitor, said if the bid were let in July, the earliest construction could begin is late August.

WHEN COMPLETED, Dundee Road will extend as four lanes from Elmhurst Road through Buffalo Grove. The project, which will take two years, will also include the realignment of Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights roads.

Currently, Dundee Road is four-lanes through Wheeling from east of Milwaukee Avenue to Elmhurst Road.

The initial work on the road, once it begins, will be sewer construction, a former stumbling block to progress on the project.

Buffalo Grove refused to approve plans for the project because the state was going to channel the water runoff from the road into the White Pines Strip.

The village agreed to the plans after the state promised to construct an over-size drain pipe to divert water from the road to a retention basin to be built on the Arlington Country Club golf course.

The village and the sanitary district will pay a portion of the costs for the $300,000 retention basin.

Village engineer Arnold Seaberg said the Illinois Division of Waterways has asked the state legislature for $80,000 for the retention project. The Metropolitan Sanitary District has appropriated $70,000 and the village will contribute $60,000, mostly to cover engineering costs and storm sewer improvements.

"Providing the state legislature approves the division of waterways request, we hope to start construction the first of November after the golfing season is over," Seaberg said.

Four Arrested: 35 Pounds Of Marijuana Seized

'Raid Cuts Drug Flow Here'

Police believe the supply of illegal narcotics in the Northwest suburban area was severely cut with Tuesday's raid in Prospect Heights, which netted 35 pounds of marijuana.

According to Lt. Errol Levy of the Cook County Sheriff's Police, undercover investigators who made the raid said the house, at 505 W. Camp McDonald, was the headquarters for a major north suburban wholesale drug ring.

"Drugs will be harder to get in this area without a doubt," Levy said. He said police believe narcotics distributed by the ring were sold primarily to persons under 30 in Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Des Plaines, Buffalo Grove and Wheeling.

There also were four arrests made by the agents of the Metropolitan Enforcement Group (MEG), a cooperative drug investigation force involving sheriff's police and about 20 north suburban police departments.

IN ADDITION TO the marijuana, Levy said the MEG agents also uncovered barbiturates, amphetamines, a hallucinogen called THC and a small quantity of hashish. Agents entered the house about 9 p.m. with search warrants and, according to Levy, the four suspects were dividing bricks of marijuana and packaging it for sale.

Arrested were Jerry Timm, 24, of that address; William E. Orce, 24, and Claire L. Orce, 20, of 19 N. Dryden St., Arlington Heights; and Paul S. Gilman, 21, of 1216 Stratford, Arlington Heights. All were charged with possession of marijuana.

Timm was also charged with possession of controlled substances (amphetamines and barbiturates) and Orce, who police said had a .25-caliber automatic pistol, was charged with unlawful use of a weapon.

Levy said of the raid, in which $25,000 worth of drugs were seized, "We have just gotten one cog. They (MEG officers) have been tracing the thing right down the line."

HE ADDED that drugs will still be available in the area but he said "one of the major sources" has been shut down with the raid.

It is believed that MEG agents had the house under surveillance for some time, but Levy said details of the raid were being held to preserve MEG's effectiveness as an undercover force.

A Niles police sergeant said Gilman is a student, Orce is an auto mechanic and his wife, a waitress. It is unknown if Timm was employed. The men were released on $5,000 bond and the woman on $1,000 bond yesterday.

Man Charged 2 Years Ago Is Apprehended

A man sought by Palatine police for more than two years on charges of contributing to the delinquency of a minor was apprehended Monday.

James Garza, 23, of West Chicago, was turned over to Palatine police on a warrant after he was arrested in East Dundee on numerous traffic charges.

Garza had been identified May 9, 1970, as having given whisky and two 30-gram nembul pills to two 13- and 14-year-old girls from unincorporated Palatine Township.

He had been living in Palatine at the time of the alleged incident, but had not been seen after the parents of the two girls reported the incident to police.

Another man identified by the girls, Tom Evans, formerly of Palatine, was arrested by Palatine police a week after the incident and was placed on a six-month supervision.

Garza was being held Monday on $2,000 bond. He is to appear in court on July 27.

$20 Million Hilton Motel-Office Complex Planned

by KEN KOZAK

A proposal to build a $20 million Hilton-managed motel and adjacent office complex on Algonquin Road near the Holiday Inn was revealed to the Rolling Meadows City Council Tuesday.

Kenneth Tucker, president of Kenroy developers, told the council his firm wants to build a 300-room motel hotel and three high-rise office buildings on the 19.7-acre site formerly known as the Royal Coach property.

The land is bordered by the Northwest Tollway to the south, Rte. 53 to the west, Algonquin Road to the north and the Holiday Inn to the east.

Tucker told the council he hopes to have financing for the project arranged in 60 days, and working architectural drawings ready by September or October.

IF THIS SCHEDULE is maintained, he said "the hotel could break ground this year and open within 13 months."

Tucker and several associates, including architects and engineers, outlined a three-phase program for development, beginning with the bi-level motel and one 10-story office building, followed by the second 10-story building in phase two, and concluding with the third office building, which is planned to be 20 stories high, but could be smaller, according to Tucker.

The three office structures will contain a total of 600,000 square feet of space, according to existing plans. They will be arranged in what Tucker called a tripod configuration, and connected by a two-story rotunda that will serve as a main entryway and may house a restaurant, and will be part of phase one.

The hotel will be built in different levels. The main tower will be nine stories high and will contain 280 rooms. A wing will be built in a two-story, inn style, and will house special guest rooms and suites.

AN INDOOR-OUTDOOR swimming pool, recreational area and restaurant and meeting facilities are also planned. The hotel will be connected to one of the office towers by a walkway.

The office building lobbies will be recessed below the upper part of the towers. The lobbies of the concrete structures will be enclosed in bronze-color reflecting glass and the upper stories will be enclosed in gold-color reflecting glass.

The appearance of the hotel will be similar, Tucker said.

Tucker said Kenroy has already negotiated a management agreement with the Hilton chain that provides for them to assume complete operation of the hotel and its facilities.

The agreement, however, is subject to certain conditions, he said. Those conditions are acceptance of the project by the city, and acceptance of the development plans by Hilton.

THE SITE of the development is the old Royal Coach Inn property that was abandoned last year when the previous developers went bankrupt.

Beck and Associates of Dallas, Tex., had planned a 1,000-room hotel but went bankrupt. The property was taken over by the Downtowner Motor Lodge Co. in October, 1970, and subsequently sold to Kenroy about a year ago.

The property has been called the most valuable piece of land in the city because the Royal Coach Inn developers had put $250,000 worth of utilities in on the tract.

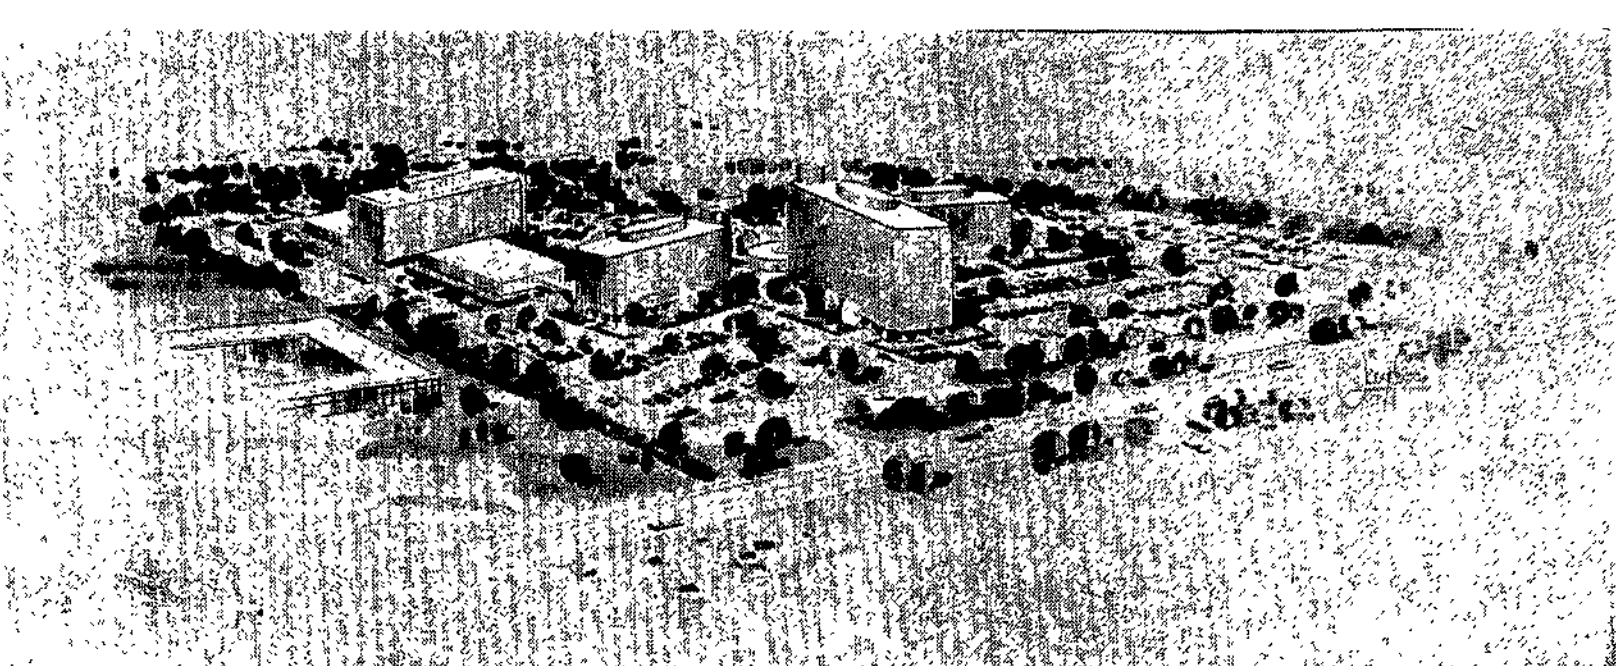

Kenroy plans to use those water and storm and sanitation sewer utilities and improve on them where necessary.

THE PROPERTY is already zoned for hotel or motel use, but Kenroy will have to receive a variation from the city's zoning code in order to build high-rise structures.

The presentation to the city council Tuesday was unusual because the developers have not yet appeared before the city plan commission, the normal first step in seeking approval for a planned unit development. Kenroy representatives had been meeting privately with Mayor Roland Meyer and fire and building officials to determine some of the problem areas in meeting city fire and building codes.

Meyer said the special appearance Tuesday was "unusual, but I felt it was something that should come to the council for aldermen's questions before it goes to the plan commission."

No opposition to the project was registered Tuesday by councilmen. A hearing before the plan commission may be held July 5.

Good Hotels Needed Here: Kenroy

In making his presentation to the Rolling Meadows city council Tuesday regarding his firm's proposed hotel development at Algonquin Road and Rte. 53, Kenroy president Ken Tucker stressed what he called a growing need for travel accommodations in this area.

"Studies regarding the demand (for hotel facilities) in this area say that we should have built this a year ago," Tucker told the aldermen. "There is a tremendous demand for good hotel facilities in this area."

The area is now served primarily by four major motor hotels: Holiday Inns in Rolling Meadows and Elk Grove Village, Howard Johnson's in Palatine and the Arlington Park Towers in Arlington Heights.

A market analysis compiled last year by the firm of Lavenhol, Krekstein, Horwath and Horwath says that these four facilities have 963 rooms available for rental.

KENROY PLANS to build a 300-room hotel to be managed by the Hilton chain. The plans also include the possibility of future expansion to 500 rooms.

The Kenroy project, plus a proposed Sheraton Inn in Schaumburg and a Holiday Inn in Itasca, give the area a predictable base of 1,828 rooms.

The four major motor hotels are now operating at 73 per cent capacity combined. All but the Arlington Park Towers are, on the average, 80 per cent full. The Towers, according to the survey, averages 60 per cent of capacity.

Because of the low occupancy there and what Tucker called a very high break-even point, he predicted that the Towers would never be a good hotel venture.

THE RESEARCH firm's statistical model predicts that a Rolling Meadows Hilton could operate at a 94 per cent capacity by 1976. True occupancy figures would probably be lower, according to the survey, because of fluctuating occupancy trends during the week, expected new competition and other unpredictable economic factors.

Approximately 85 per cent of the business for the new hotel is expected to come from traveling businessmen. The proposed three-building office complex on the same site as the hotel is expected to provide a considerable part of the draw for those businessmen.

Little Interest In Diabetes Program Here

The response to the city's pilot diabetes screening program has been disappointing, according to City Sanitarian Donald Schindler.

On May 29 and 27, city board of health members distributed 2,000 self-administerable tests for diabetes in a door-to-door canvas of selected city areas.

Residents who received the strips were instructed how to use them and asked to return them to Schindler for processing after they had completed the simple test for urine sugar that is supposed to be a simple, reasonably effective screening test for diabetes.

To date Schindler has received only about 25 per cent return on the distribution.

Schindler had said several weeks ago that if the response was at least 50 per cent the city would offer the free test to all residents.

"We had planned to do the city-wide distribution by mail," he said, "but if we only get a 25 per cent return on the door-to-door distribution, a mail campaign probably wouldn't succeed."

He requested yesterday that people who have the test strips return them to city hall in the preaddressed envelopes provided, by June 26.

Lightning Kills Worker, Injures Another At Site

One man was killed and another seriously injured when they were struck by lightning while working on a construction site in Palatine yesterday afternoon.

Pronounced dead on arrival at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights was Willie Smith, 501 Lake Forest Rd., Highwood.

Listed in serious condition was Gary Bellamy, 23, of 300 W. 60th St., Westmont. He was treated for shock and multiple injuries.

Palatine police said the two employees of Ben Pekin Co., Palatine, were working in a hole at the Baybrook apartment construction site on E. Palatine Road when they were hit by the lightning at 3:20 p.m.

Smith's body was taken to the Cook County Morgue.

THE TRAGEDY occurred during a turbulent thunderstorm that swept the area, triggering both power failures and localized flooding in traditional storm trouble spots.

The storm knocked out electrical power, in some cases for several hours, in at least six area towns.

Blackouts ranging from 45 minutes to several hours were reported in parts of Rolling Meadows, Palatine, Arlington Heights, Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates and Mount Prospect, according to Jack Stephens, a Commonwealth Edison Co. spokesman.

The northwest portion of Rolling Meadows and the west central section of Arlington Heights were knocked out by what Stephens called a "feeder lockout." He said lightning hit a power line and tripped a fuse-like safety device in an Arlington Heights power substation, shorting out the line serving those areas.

Power lines were reported down in several towns, including three in Palatine, four in Hoffman Estates and two in Schaumburg.

MOST OF the service interruption occurred in two main power corridors, one through southwest Palatine, Hoffman Estates, Rolling Meadows and central Arlington Heights.

The other main area of disruption followed a path through southern Schaumburg and southwest Mount Prospect.

Most of the power interruptions occurred between 3:45 and 5:15 p.m., according to Stephens. He said an estimated 3,000 customers scattered around the area had electrical service interrupted by the storm.

The storm also contributed to a seven-car accident on Rte. 53 between Northwest Highway and Euclid Street. Early police reports indicated there were no serious injuries.

Water Main Extension OKd

The Rolling Meadows City Council Tuesday approved a $76,000 expenditure to extend a water main along Golf Road to tie the city system into the proposed sixth water well and the J. C. Penney property at Golf and Algonquin roads.

The council awarded the construction bid to Eltschold Plumbing of Des Plaines, low bidder for the project.

Work is expected to be completed by the end of July or beginning of August. The new water well should be operative by the end of the year.

In a related appropriation, the council also voted to spend $3,200 to hire a research firm to study the future needs and problems of the city's water system.

The study will provide a mathematical model of the system and will predict where future problem areas might develop. A computer service will also provide emergency trouble-shooting information if problems develop in the system.

The council also voted to reduce the licensing fees paid by companies that operate vending machines in the city.

NOT EVERYBODY thought the downpour and flooding that swept the area yesterday afternoon was just a "rain in the neck." Many of the young-er generation took to the flooded highways and by-ways which became instant splashing pools where the only hazards were semi-drowned cars.

First School Census Figures Are In

The census forms are in but actual facts and figures from the first school census in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 are not expected until early fall.

The census takers, more than 500 in all, mainly from the 19 PTA's, contacted all the residents in the district last month. The census forms have been turned into the administration office where they will be alphabetized and then sent to High School Dist. 211 to be key-punched and run through the computer.

Mrs. Lorita Langley, director of pupil personnel services, said the results of the census are not expected until early fall because of the Dist. 211 material that has to be run through the computer before it can be used for the census.

When the information is compiled, the district plans to use it in their long range planning. It is hoped the information will give some indication of how many children the district can expect in the future and the areas the children will be coming from. From this the district will have a better idea of where it should look for land to build new schools, if in fact new schools will be needed.

SINCE THE census information will probably have to be updated periodically, district officials met with the census takers this month to hear suggestions they might have for future censuses.

The main suggestion was to make the census form simpler and use either an all numeric or all alpha coding system but not a combination of both as was done for this census.

The census takers also reported some residents were hesitant to answer some of the questions on the form. The greatest reluctance to answer was experienced on the question of how many bedrooms there were in the house or apartment. Apparently the people felt this information might end up in the hands of an assessor and result in higher taxes, said Mrs. Langley. She explained the purpose of the question was to determine how many children the district can expect if the house should be sold in the future based on statistics on how many children come from apartments and houses with various numbers of bedrooms.

People also questioned the necessity of information on children's birth dates and physically and mentally retarded children. This is necessary for future planning, said Mrs. Langley. Despite some of their concern, very few people refused to answer the census takers questions, according to Mrs. Langley.

Plan To Renegotiate For Detention Basin Contract

Officials from Arlington Heights and the Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD) agreed yesterday to renegotiate the contract for the Wilke-Kirchoff detention basin after bids for that project came in $300,000 over original estimates.

Under the original agreement between the village and MSD, Arlington Heights paid the cost of acquiring the basin site, drafting the plans and constructing the incoming storm sewers.

The sanitary district, in turn, agreed to put up $353,000 to cover the cost of constructing the basin.

But when bids were opened last month, it was found that the lowest construction cost would be $671,156. That left the village to pick up a difference of $318,156 and at its June 5 meeting the village board authorized the expenditure.

Yesterday, however, Village Pres. John Woods and Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson met with MSD trustees in Chicago who agreed to renegotiate the original contract.

The renegotiation is likely to reduce or eliminate the village's share of the construction costs.

ACCORDING TO Hanson, the $300,000 cost over original estimates is a reflection of a 12 to 15 per cent annual increase in construction cost that was incurred while the village went through court hearings to acquire the basin site.

It took nearly two years for the village to get control of the 10-acre site through court condemnation proceedings.

Another additional cost, according to Hanson, is that of hauling and disposing of nearly 158,000 cubic yards of earth that will be excavated from the site. Hauling and disposal bids came in $100,000 over original estimates.

Woods said he expected the renegotiated contract would be ready to present to the MSD trustees, who must ratify it in one or two months.

He said the renegotiation will delay construction of the detention facility which is expected to take about 290 days. But he said he did not expect the delay would be significant.

The Wilke-Kirchoff basin has been designed to relieve flooding in southwest Arlington Heights, 244 acres in eastern Rolling Meadows and about 350 acres of neighboring unincorporated land.

RMHS Marching Band Appears At Meet

The Rolling Meadows High School marching band made their first appearance outside of Rolling Meadows last weekend at the International Prep Invitational track meet at Prospect High School.

The band was invited to lead the "Parade of Champions" which opened the meet by the meet's sponsors, according to Band Dir. Larry King. It was the only band to participate in the meet.

The Rolling Meadows band, now completing its first year, has 80 members, King said. Next year the band will expand to 100 members, he said.

Break-In Reported At News Agency

Burglars broke into the Palatine News Agency early Tuesday, but left apparently without taking anything when an alarm was sounded.

Palatine police said the burglars attempted to enter the building at 50 E. Palatine Rd. by knocking a hole through a back wall with a sledgehammer.

A steel cabinet, however, blocked entrance, so the burglars broke a rear window to get into the building, according to police.

When police arrived at the scene at 1:57 a.m., the burglars were gone, but nothing was reported missing.

Streets Flood During Downpour

A torrential downpour yesterday afternoon flooded streets throughout Palatine causing motorists to take alternate routes.

The heaviest flooding occurred at Northwest Highway and Hicks Road where village cleanup crews worked to clear streets yesterday evening. Barri-cades were placed at the intersection before the streets became passable.

The area near Lincoln Street also was flooded as water rose over the curb of the road.

City-Wide Flooding Reported By Police

City-wide flooding was reported yesterday in Rolling Meadows as a result of the storm that battered the area in the afternoon, according to police.

A patrolman said streets throughout the city flooded, with Wilson Avenue and Dove Street listed as two of the worst hit areas.

Early last evening, the storm and flooding had not caused any serious accidents in the city, police said.

Burglary Reported At Country Club

An estimated $35 worth of candy, beer and cigarettes was reported taken sometime Sunday night from the Inverness Golf Club.

Club officials told Palatine police the items were taken from a "halfway house" on the golf course. Entry was gained by breaking a rear window on the building.

Reported missing were three boxes of Mars and Clark candy bars, two cases of Budweiser and Schlitz beer and three packages of cigarettes.

Paramedic Bill To Get Second Reading Today

The bill enabling specially trained firemen and ambulance attendants to render emergency treatment is expected to come before the Illinois House today for a second reading.

The bill, handled by Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, and Rep. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect, was introduced into the House on Tuesday. It was passed last week by the Illinois Senate.

Schlickman said yesterday the bill ordinarily would have been assigned to the House Public Welfare Committee, but was not because the committee has no more hearings scheduled in this session of the General Assembly.

Instead, he said he will move today to advance the bill to a second reading on the floor without a committee hearing.

Suspension of the House rules allowing a second reading without committee hearings would require 89 votes, the same number necessary to pass a bill.

IF THE second reading is permitted, the third reading and voting on the bill would take place at a later date.

The bill has the support of Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie.

It is designed to allow paramedics to administer drugs and certain treatment under the supervision of a physician without fear of liability.

A network to provide this emergency care is being set up at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights to serve surrounding communities.

Raid Cuts Drug Flow, Police Say; 4 Are Arrested

Police believe the supply of illegal narcotics in the Northwest suburban area was severely cut with Tuesday's raid in Prospect Heights, which netted 35 pounds of marijuana.

According to Lt. Errol Levy of the Cook County Sheriff's Police, undercover investigators who made the raid said the house, at 505 W. Camp McDonald, was the headquarters for a major north suburban wholesale drug ring.

"Drugs will be harder to get in this area without a doubt," Levy said. He said police believe narcotics distributed by the ring were sold primarily to persons under 30 in Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Des Plaines, Buffalo Grove and Wheeling.

There also were four arrests made by the agents of the Metropolitan Enforcement Group (MEG), a cooperative drug investigation force involving sheriff's police and about 20 north suburban police departments.

IN ADDITION TO the marijuana, Levy said the MEG agents also uncovered barbiturates, amphetamines, a hallucinogen called THC and a small quantity of hashish. Agents entered the house about 9 p.m. with search warrants and, according to Levy, the four suspects were dividing bricks of marijuana and packaging it for sale.

Arrested were Jerry Timm, 24, of that address; William E. Orce, 24, and Claire L. Orce, 20, of 19 N. Dryden St., Arlington Heights; and Paul S. Gilman, 21, of 1215 Stratford, Arlington Heights. All were charged with possession of marijuana.

Timm was also charged with possession of controlled substances (amphetamines and barbiturates) and Orce, who police said had a .25-caliber automatic pistol, was charged with unlawful use of a weapon.

Levy said of the raid, in which $25,000 worth of drugs were seized; "We have just gotten one cog. They (MEG officers) have been tracing the thing right down the line."

HE ADDED that drugs will still be available in the area but he said "one of the major sources" has been shut down with the raid.

It is believed that MEG agents had the house under surveillance for some time, but Levy said details of the raid were being held to preserve MEG's effectiveness as an undercover force.

A Niles police sergeant said Gilman is a student, Orce is an auto mechanic and his wife, a waitress. It is unknown if Timm was employed. The men were released on $5,000 bond and the woman on $1,000 bond yesterday.

Police Eye Operation Identification

Police departments in Mount Prospect, Elk Grove Village and Arlington Heights have applied for a grant from the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission to institute "Operation Identification" next September.

The program, designed to inhibit burglaries, involves etching a permanent identification number on valuable household items, from cameras and appliances to jewelry and bicycles.

Mount Prospect Police Chief Bert Giddens, the project's director for the three towns, said yesterday the total first-year cost of the program is estimated at $4,350. Of this, $2,133 will go for salaries and be paid by the communities. The remainder is for materials and will hopefully be covered by the grant, Giddens said.

The three departments hope to get 141 etching pens, at $5.10 each, which will then be made available to communities by organizations, such as the Jaycees and the Rotary Club. Giddens said the Jaycees in all three towns have already pledged their support.

TH PENS can be used to mark any material from soft plastic to hard steel. Des Plaines has been using the system since last month.

Giddens said it has not yet been determined whether residents will be asked to use their driver's license or social security card numbers. Either number can be easily traced so that when stolen items are recovered the owner can be found without much difficulty.

Another part of the program is the window decals that signify a particular household is a participant in the program. For the three-town area, 151,200 decals and 37,800 bumper stickers are planned for distribution.

The marking program originated in Monterey, Calif. in 1963. Police there, report that of the 4,000 families participating between 1963 and 1970, only three were burglarized. Of the 7,000 non-participating families, more than 1,800 were burglarized.

According to an article in a national police magazine, the project is a crime deterrent because thieves are apprehensive about possessing inscribed goods.

In the three-town area, there are an estimated 141,200 residents, 37,800 households and 2,088 businesses. The three communities' police departments are also cooperating on a central radio dispatch situation which is expected to begin operation next month.

NOT EVERYBODY thought the downpour and was just a "rain in the neck." Many of the young- by-ways which became instant splashing pools flooding that swept the area yesterday afternoon or generation took to the flooded highways and where the only hazards were semi-drowned cars.

Lightning Kills Man, Injures 2nd

One man was killed and another seriously injured when they were struck by lightning while working on a construction site in Palatine yesterday afternoon.

Pronounced dead on arrival at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights was Willie Smith, 501 Lake Forest Rd., Highland.

Listed in serious condition was Gary Bellamy, 23, of 300 W. 60th St., Westmont. He was treated for shock and multiple injuries.

Palatine police said the two employees of Ben Pekin Co., Palatine, were working in a hole at the Baybrook apartment construction site on E. Palatine Road when they were hit by the lightning at 3:20 p.m.

Smith's body was taken to the Cook County Morgue.

THE TRAGEDY occurred during a turbulent thunderstorm that swept the area, triggering both power failures and localized flooding in traditional storm trouble spots.

The storm knocked out electrical power, in some cases for several hours, in at least six area towns.

Blackouts ranging from 45 minutes to several hours were reported in parts of Rolling Meadows, Palatine, Arlington Heights, Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates and Mount Prospect, according to Jack Stephens, a Commonwealth Edison Co. spokesman.

The northwest portion of Rolling Meadows and the west central section of Arlington Heights were knocked out by what Stephens called a "feeder lockout." He said lightning hit a power line and tripped a fuse-like safety device in an Arlington Heights power substation, shorting out the line serving those areas.

Power lines were reported down in several towns, including three in Palatine, four in Hoffman Estates and two in Schaumburg.

MOST OF the service interruption occurred in two main power corridors, one through southwest Palatine, Hoffman Estates, Rolling Meadows and central Arlington Heights.

The other main area of disruption followed a path through southern Schaumburg and southwest Mount Prospect.

Most of the power interruptions occurred between 3:45 and 5:15 p.m., according to Stephens. He said an estimated 3,000 customers scattered around the area had electrical service interrupted by the storm.

The storm also contributed to a seven-car accident on Rte. 53 between Northwest Highway and Euclid Street. Early police reports indicated there were no serious injuries.

Rolls Royce Misplaced?

In these days of large shopping centers and enormous, crowded parking lots, it's not unusual for shoppers to forget where they parked their cars.

It is unusual when the car is a Rolls Royce, though.

Monday, Mount Prospect police received a call about 5 p.m. from a Glenview man who said his brown Rolls Royce had been stolen from the Randhurst Shopping Center parking lot.

A few minutes later the man called back: the car wasn't stolen; he had merely been looking for it on the wrong part of the parking lot.

Parents Rally To Principal's Support

The proposed reassignment of a River Trails Dist. 26 principal has caused an uproar among parents in the Feenhanville School area.

Bea Amundson, Dist. 26 principal for seven years, said yesterday that Supt. Thomas Warden has asked her to resign or accept a teaching position. She said he listed complaints of her performance as Feenhanville principal, including being too friendly with teachers, as reasons for the reassignment.

Warden said he will make an official recommendation for her reassignment at a school board meeting Tuesday. He said he would not make the reasons for the reassignment public.

James Burke, organizer of a parent protest against the reassignment, said he expects several hundred persons to attend the meeting in support of Miss Amundson. The meeting, which will begin at 7:30 p.m., has been moved to the gym at Parkview School, 805 N. Burning Bush Ln.

"We wholeheartedly endorse Bea Amundson. This is not a popularity contest. What is important is the level of education our children get. She does a good job as principal," Burke said.

HE SAID parents want her to continue as principal at Feenhanville. He said a petition with nearly 200 names of parents of children at the school was turned in to the board at a closed board meeting last Tuesday night.

If Warden insists on the reassignment, Burke said, parents first want the school board to conduct an investigation into the matter.

Miss Amundson said she has requested a hearing on the issue. Board Pres. Clarke Robinson said yesterday the board is still considering Miss Amundson's request, and he did not know when a decision would be reached. He would not comment further.

Teachers are also in support of Miss Amundson, according to Jan White, of the River Trails Education Association (RTEA). However, she said the RTEA has not yet taken an official stand on the matter.

$20 Million Motel-Office Planned

by KEN KOZAK

A proposal to build a $20 million Hilton-managed motel and adjacent office complex on Algonquin Road near the Holiday Inn was revealed to the Rolling Meadows City Council Tuesday.

Kenneth Tucker, president of Kenroy developers, told the council his firm wants to build a 300-room motor hotel and three high-rise office buildings on the 19.7 acre site formerly known as the Royal Coach property.

The land is bordered by the Northwest Tollway to the south, Rte. 53 to the west, Algonquin Road to the north and the Holiday Inn to the east.

Tucker told the council he hopes to have financing for the project arranged in 60 days, and working architectural drawings ready by September or October.

IF THIS SCHEDULE is maintained, he said "the hotel could break ground this year and open within 13 months."

Tucker and several associates, including architects and engineers, outlined a three-phase program for development, beginning with the bi-level motel and one 10-story office building, followed by the second 10-story building in phase two, and concluding with the third office building, which is planned to be 20 stories high, but could be smaller, according to Tucker.

The three office structures will contain a total of 600,000 square feet of space, according to existing plans. They will be arranged in what Tucker called a tripod configuration, and connected by a two-story rotunda that will serve as a main entryway and may house a restaurant, and will be part of phase one.

The hotel will be built in different levels. The main tower will be nine stories high and will contain 260 rooms. A wing will be built in a two-story, inn style, and will house special guest rooms and suites.

AN INDOOR-OUTDOOR swimming pool, recreational area and restaurant and meeting facilities are also planned. The hotel will be connected to one of the office towers by a walkway.

The office building lobbies will be recessed below the upper part of the towers. The lobbies of the concrete structures will be enclosed in bronze-color reflecting glass and the upper stories will be enclosed in gold-color reflecting glass.

The appearance of the hotel will be similar, Tucker said.

Tucker said Kenroy has already negotiated a management agreement with the Hilton chain that provides for them to assume complete operation of the hotel and its facilities.

The agreement, however, is subject to certain conditions, he said. Those conditions are acceptance of the project by the city, and acceptance of the development plans by Hilton.

THE SITE of the development is the old Royal Coach Inn property that was abandoned last year when the previous developers went bankrupt.

Beck and Associates of Dallas, Tex., had planned a 1,000-room hotel but went bankrupt. The property was taken over by the Downtowner Motor Lodge Co. in October, 1970, and subsequently sold to Kenroy about a year ago.

The property has been called the most valuable piece of land in the city because the Royal Coach Inn developers had put $250,000 worth of utilities in on the tract.

Kenroy plans to use those water and storm and sanitation sewer utilities and improve on them where necessary.

THE PROPERTY is already zoned for hotel or motel use, but Kenroy will have to receive a variation from the city's zoning code in order to build high-rise structures.

The presentation to the city council Tuesday was unusual because the developers have not yet appeared before the city plan commission, the normal first step in seeking approval for a planned unit development. Kenroy representatives had been meeting privately with Mayor Roland Meyer and fire and building officials to determine some of the problem areas in meeting city fire and building codes.

Meyer said the special appearance Tuesday was "unusual, but I felt it was something that should come to the council for aldermen's questions before it goes to the plan commission."

No opposition to the project was registered Tuesday by councilmen. A hearing before the plan commission may be held July 5.

'Good Hotels Needed Here'

In making his presentation to the Rolling Meadows city council Tuesday regarding his firm's proposed hotel development at Algonquin Road and Rte. 53, Kenroy president Ken Tucker stressed what he called a growing need for travel accommodations in this area.

"Studies regarding the demand (for hotel facilities) in this area say that we should have built this a year ago," Tucker told the aldermen. "There is a tremendous demand for good hotel facilities in this area."

The area is now served primarily by four major motor hotels: Holiday Inns in Rolling Meadows and Elk Grove Village, Howard Johnson's in Palatine and the Arlington Park Towers in Arlington Heights.

A market analysis compiled last year by the firm of Laventhol, Krekstein, Horwath and Horwath says that these four facilities have 963 rooms available for rental.

KENROY PLANS to build a 300-room hotel to be managed by the Hilton chain. The plans also include the possibility of future expansion to 500 rooms.

The Kenroy project, plus a proposed Sheraton Inn in Schaumburg and a Holiday Inn in Itasca, give the area a predictable base of 1,628 rooms.

The four major motor hotels are now operating at 73 per cent capacity combined. All but the Arlington Park Towers are, on the average, 80 per cent full. The Towers, according to the survey, averages 60 per cent of capacity.

Because of the low occupancy there and what Tucker called a very high break-even point, he predicted that the Towers would never be a good hotel venture.

THE RESEARCH firm's statistical model predicts that a Rolling Meadows Hilton could operate at a 94 per cent capacity by 1976. True occupancy figures would probably be lower, according to the survey, because of fluctuating occupancy trends during the week, expected new competition and other unpredictable economic factors.

Approximately 85 per cent of the business for the new hotel is expected to come from traveling businessmen. The proposed three-building office complex on the same site as the hotel is expected to provide a considerable part of the draw for those businessmen.

100 Attend Dinner For Sahlberg

More than 100 people attended a dinner Tuesday night to honor Mount Prospect Dist. 57 Supt. Eric Sahlberg, who last month announced his resignation.

Sahlberg, Dist. 57 superintendent for the past seven years, is leaving to become superintendent in Des Plaines Dist. 62. He will remain as a consultant to Dist. 57 until September. Richard Percy, currently assistant superintendent, will become superintendent on July 1.

Teachers, principals, secretaries, current and former school board members and residents watched as Board Pres. Robert Novy presented a certificate of service to Sahlberg.

"Many milestones have been passed in the years he has been here. It's been challenging and difficult at times. We appreciate the effort he has given to make this an excellent educational system," Novy said.

Sahlberg, in his remarks, complimented the Dist. 57 staff. "We've always had a very fine staff," he said. "They've always tried to do the best for the district at the right time." Sahlberg has indicated previously he will make his official parting remarks at his last board meeting next Monday.

Certificates of service were also presented to past board members Alex Casper, Leo Floros and Harrison Hanson. Casper, after serving three years, was defeated in a reelection bid last April. Floros chose not to run for the board again after serving four years. Hanson, on the board for five years and past board president, resigned from the board last month because he is moving out of the district.

Continue Zenith Land Rezoning Issue

The court battle over the rezoning of Zenith Radio Corp. property at Central and Mount Prospect roads in Mount Prospect has been continued to July 5.

In their lawsuit against the village, both Zenith and the Dominion Development Co. have asked the court to allow construction of a neighborhood convenience center at that location.

The property is zoned for single-family use at present and an attempt last November to get the property rezoned for the shopping center failed. The village board voted to deny the change, saying the property, on which two radio towers and a transmission building stand, is on a residential block and should stay zoned for residential use.

The village has also maintained, as did some neighbors who objected to the plan, that the proposed center would just make worse an "almost nightmare" traffic problem. To back this contention, the village recently approved a $1,000 traffic study of the intersection, which is very close to the intersection of Central and Rand roads.

The center, if given court approval, would contain a White Hen Pantry store and other small shops, such as a florist and a laundry-cleaning business. This is what the plans showed at last fall's plan commission hearing. Between 25 and 35 neighborhood residents were present as objectors at these hearings.

River Trails Close To Contract

School board and teacher bargaining teams in River Trails Dist. 20 came one step closer to a contract settlement Tuesday, although monetary items have not yet been negotiated.

The two sides reached some agreement on items in the procedural negotiations part of the contract, according to Jan

White, chairman of the River Trails Education Association (RTEA) bargaining team. That part of the contract includes provisions on rights and responsibilities, grievance procedure and negotiable items.

"But there wasn't really anything discussed Tuesday that couldn't have been discussed before," said Mrs. White, referring to a nearly month-long postponement of bargaining.

Richard Zwieback, professional negotiator, had refused teachers' requests to meet because, he said, the board did not have enough financial information. He indicated Monday the school board was ready to discuss money items. However, according to both sides, money was not discussed Tuesday.

"He (Zwieback) asked us how low we were willing to go for a salary increase," said Mrs. White. "He gave us no indication on what the board was willing to give."

MRS. WHITE said teachers expect a raise that includes the increment and at least the cost of living. The increment, based on an increase in experience and/or education, is an average 4 per cent, according to Mrs. White. The two sides have not agreed on what a cost-of-living figure would be, she said.

Teachers originally asked for a 6.5 per cent hike plus the increment. In turn, the board had indicated a salary freeze in their contract proposal.

James Retzlaff, assistant superintendent, said yesterday the board is now ready to talk money items. He said "things were clarified" at a meeting of the board team and school board members Tuesday night following the bargaining session.

The two teams are scheduled to meet again Monday at 7 p.m.

"We're looking forward to the meeting and expect we can come pretty close to a settlement at that time," Retzlaff said.

Teachers Vote To End Pact Dispute

Prospect Heights Dist. 23 teachers have decided to end their professional negotiations (PN) contract dispute with Dist. 23 school board by reversing a previous Tuesday night impasse.

In meetings held at the individual district schools yesterday morning, PHEA members voted 47-11 for immediate settlement of the PN agreement and for salary negotiations to begin as soon as possible.

Disagreement over the PN contract has caused a month-long stalemate in PHEA-school board negotiations. The contract outlines items to be negotiated by the two sides along with bargaining methods and methods for grievance procedures.

The impasse occurred Tuesday when board negotiators balked at a PHEA demand that educational programs be made negotiable items and that binding arbitration be made part of grievance procedures.

The board's decision to reject these proposals was reached in a closed session Monday night.

The PHEA later proposed changing binding arbitration to advisory arbitration. This the board also refused to do.

At Tuesday's bargaining session, the ninth since negotiations opened, PHEA spokesman Larry Halter said he saw no progress in next year's contract over this year's and that there was nothing new in it. Board spokesman Henry Vallely then asked Halter why there must be so many new items in each year's contract.

After the impasse was declared both sides resumed previous plans to bring in an American Arbitration Association mediator to resolve the dispute.

The two teams originally decided on AAA mediation after a May 23 impasse but discontinued the plans and tried to resume negotiations without it.

The board is expected to meet with the PHEA to set a date for the exchange of salary and benefit proposals.

Bob Atterbury, PHEA member, said the meeting may occur early in July.

Village Planning To Renegotiate Basin Contract

Officials from Arlington Heights and the Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD) agreed yesterday to renegotiate the contract for the Wilke-Kirchoff detention basin after bids for that project came in $300,000 over original estimates.

Under the original agreement between the village and MSD, Arlington Heights paid the cost of acquiring the basin site, drafting the plans and constructing the incoming storm sewers.

The sanitary district, in turn, agreed to put up $553,000 to cover the cost of constructing the basin.

But when bids were opened last month, it was found that the lowest construction cost would be $871,156. That left the village to pick up a difference of $318,156 and at its June 5 meeting the village board authorized the expenditure.

Yesterday, however, Village Pres. John Woods and Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson met with MSD trustees in Chicago who agreed to renegotiate the original contract.

The renegotiation is likely to reduce or eliminate the village's share of the construction costs.

ACCORDING TO Hanson, the $300,000 cost over original estimates is a reflection of a 12 to 15 per cent annual increase in construction cost that was incurred while the village went through court hearings to acquire the basin site.

It took nearly two years for the village to get control of the 10-acre site through court condemnation proceedings.

Another additional cost, according to Hanson, is that of hauling and disposing of nearly 156,000 cubic yards of earth that will be excavated from the site. Hauling and disposal bids came in $100,000 over original estimates.

Woods said he expected the renegotiated contract would be ready to present to the MSD trustees, who must ratify it in one or two months.

He said the renegotiation will delay construction of the detention facility which is expected to take about 290 days.

But he said he did not expect the delay would be significant.

The Wilke-Kirchoff basin has been designed to relieve flooding in southwest Arlington Heights, 244 acres in eastern Rolling Meadows and about 350 acres of neighboring unincorporated land.

SURREY RIDGE WEST, one of the subdivisions in southwest Arlington Heights that will benefit from the Wilke-Kirchoff detention basin, had some of its intersections awash during yesterday's heavy rain. But the puddles that slowed this car to a crawl were nothing but a curiosity to a young boy in front of his home. Flooding problems also were reported yesterday afternoon along Northwest Highway and on Rte. 53 between the Northwest Tollway and Rte. 14.

Lightning Kills Worker, Injures Another At Site

One man was killed and another seriously injured when they were struck by lightning while working on a construction site in Palatine yesterday afternoon.

Pronounced dead on arrival at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights was Willie Smith, 501 Lake Forest Rd., Highland.

Listed in serious condition was Gary Bellamy, 23, of 300 W. 80th St., Westmont. He was treated for shock and multiple injuries.

Palatine police said the two employees of Ben Pekin Co., Palatine, were working in a hole at the Baybrook apartment construction site on E. Palatine Road when they were hit by the lightning at 3:20 p.m.

Smith's body was taken to the Cook County Morgue.

THE TRAGEDY occurred during a turbulent thunderstorm that swept the area, triggering both power failures and localized flooding in traditional storm trouble spots.

The storm knocked out electrical power, in some cases for several hours, in at least six area towns.

Blackouts ranging from 45 minutes to several hours were reported in parts of Rolling Meadows, Palatine, Arlington Heights, Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates and Mount Prospect, according to Jack Stephens, a Commonwealth Edison Co. spokesman.

The northwest portion of Rolling Meadows and the west central section of Arlington Heights were knocked out by what Stephens called a "feeder knockout." He said lightning hit a power line and tripped a fuse-like safety device in an Arlington Heights power substation, shorting out the line serving those areas.

Power lines were reported down in several towns, including three in Palatine, four in Hoffman Estates and two in Schaumburg.

MOST OF the service interruption occurred in two main power corridors, one through southwest Palatine, Hoffman Estates, Rolling Meadows and central Arlington Heights.

The other main area of disruption followed a path through southern Schaumburg and southwest Mount Prospect.

Most of the power interruptions occurred between 3:45 and 5:15 p.m., according to Stephens. He said an estimated 3,000 customers scattered around the area had electrical service interrupted by the storm.

The storm also contributed to a seven-car accident on Rte. 53 between Northwest Highway and Euclid Street. Early police reports indicated there were no serious injuries.

$20 Million Motel-Office Planned

by KEN KOZAK

A proposal to build a $20 million Hilton-managed motel and adjacent office complex on Algonquin Road near the Holiday Inn was revealed to the Rolling Meadows City Council Tuesday.

Kenneth Tucker, president of Kenroy developers, told the council his firm wants to build a 300-room motor hotel and three high-rise office buildings on the 19.7 acre site formerly known as the Royal Coach property.

The land is bordered by the Northwest Tollway to the south, Rte. 53 to the west, Algonquin Road to the north and the Holiday Inn to the east.

Tucker told the council he hopes to have financing for the project arranged in 60 days, and working architectural drawings ready by September or October.

Tucker and several associates, including architects and engineers, outlined a three-phase program for development, beginning with the bi-leveled motel and one 10-story office building, followed by the second 10-story building in phase two, and concluding with the third office building, which is planned to be 20 stories high, but could be smaller, according to Tucker.

The three office structures will contain a total of 600,000 square feet of space, according to existing plans. They will be arranged in what Tucker called a tripod configuration, and connected by a two-story rotunda that will serve as a main entryway and may house a restaurant, and will be part of phase one.

The hotel will be built in different levels. (Continued on page 3)

'Raid Cuts Drug Flow Here'

Police believe the supply of illegal narcotics in the Northwest suburban area was severely cut with Tuesday's raid in Prospect Heights, which netted 35 pounds of marijuana.

According to Lt. Errol Levy of the Cook County Sheriff's Police, undercover investigators who made the raid said the house, at 505 W. Camp McDonald, was the headquarters for a major north suburban wholesale drug ring.

"Drugs will be harder to get in this area without a doubt," Levy said. He said police believe narcotics distributed by the ring were sold primarily to persons under 30 in Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Des Plaines, Buffalo Grove and Wheeling.

There also were four arrests made by the agents of the Metropolitan Enforcement Group (MEG), a cooperative drug investigation force involving sheriff's police and about 20 north suburban police departments.

IN ADDITION TO the marijuana, Levy said the MEG agents also uncovered bar-biturates, amphetamines, a hallucinogen called THC and a small quantity of hashish. Agents entered the house about 9 p.m. with search warrants and, according to Levy, the four suspects were dividing bricks of marijuana and packaging it for sale.

Arrested were Jerry Timm, 24, of that address; William E. Orce, 24, and Claire L. Orce, 20, of 19 N. Dryden St., Arlington Heights; and Paul S. Gilman, 21, of 1216 Stratford, Arlington Heights. All

AN ARTIST'S DRAWING gives an overview of the planned Kenroy development proposed for a 20-acre tract east of Rte. 53 on Algonquin Road in els. The main tower will be nine stories high and will contain 280 rooms. A wing will be built in a two-story, tan style, and will house special guest rooms and suites.

AN INDOOR-OUTDOOR swimming pool, recreational area and restaurant and meeting facilities are also planned. The hotel will be connected to one of the office towers by a walkway.

The office building lobbies will be recessed below the upper part of the towers. The lobbies of the concrete structures will be enclosed in bronze-color reflecting glass and the upper stories will be enclosed in gold-color reflecting glass. The appearance of the hotel will be similar, Tucker said.

Tucker said Kenroy has already negotiated a management agreement with the Hilton chain that provides for them to assume complete operation of the hotel and its facilities.

The agreement, however, is subject to certain conditions, he said. Those conditions are acceptance of the project by the city, and acceptance of the development plans by Hilton.

THE SITE of the development is the old Royal Coach Inn property that was abandoned last year when the previous developers went bankrupt.

Beck and Associates of Dallas, Tex., had planned a 1,000-room hotel but went bankrupt. The property was taken over by the Downtowner Motor Lodge Co. in October, 1970, and subsequently sold to Kenroy about a year ago.

The property has been called the most valuable piece of land in the city because the Royal Coach Inn developers had put $250,000 worth of utilities in on the tract.

Kenroy plans to use those water and storm and sanitation sewer utilities and improve on them where necessary.

THE PROPERTY is already zoned for hotel or motel use, but Kenroy will have to receive a variation from the city's zoning code in order to build high-rise structures.

The presentation to the city council Tuesday was unusual because the developers have not yet appeared before the city plan commission, the normal first step in seeking approval for a planned unit development. Kenroy representatives had been meeting privately with Mayor Roland Meyer and fire and building officials to determine some of the problem areas in meeting city fire and building codes.

Meyer said the special appearance Tuesday was "unusual, but I felt it was something that should come to the council for aldermen's questions before it goes to the plan commission."

'Good Hotels Needed Here'

In making his presentation to the Rolling Meadows city council Tuesday regarding his firm's proposed hotel development at Algonquin Road and Rte. 53, Kenroy president Ken Tucker stressed what he called a growing need for travel accommodations in this area.

"Studies regarding the demand (for hotel facilities) in this area say that we should have built this a year ago," Tucker told the aldermen. "There is a tremendous demand for good hotel facilities in this area."

The area is now served primarily by four major motor hotels: Holiday Inns in Rolling Meadows and Elk Grove Village, Howard Johnson's in Palatine and the Arlington Park Towers in Arlington Heights.

A market analysis compiled last year by the firm of Lavenhol, Kerkstein, Horwath and Horwath says that these four facilities have 963 rooms available for rental.

KENROY PLANS to build a 300-room hotel to be managed by the Hilton chain. The plans also include the possibility of future expansion to 500 rooms.

The Kenroy project, plus a proposed Sheraton Inn in Schaumburg and a Holiday Inn in Itasca, give the area a predictable base of 1,628 rooms.

The four major motor hotels are now operating at 73 per cent capacity combined. All but the Arlington Park Towers are, on the average, 80 per cent full. The Towers, according to the survey, averages 80 per cent of capacity.

Because of the low occupancy there and what Tucker called a very high break-even point, he predicted that the Towers would never be a good hotel venture.

THE RESEARCH firm's statistical model predicts that a Rolling Meadows Hilton could operate at a 94 per cent capacity by 1976. True occupancy figures would probably be lower, according to the survey, because of fluctuating occupancy trends during the week, expected new competition and other unpredictable economic factors.

Approximately 85 per cent of the business for the new hotel is expected to come from traveling businessmen. The proposed three-building office complex on the same site as the hotel is expected to provide a considerable part of the draw for those businessmen.

1,000 8th Graders

Graduate Tonight

Over 1,000 eighth grade students of Arlington Heights School Dist. 25 students will graduate tonight from the four district junior high schools.

The ceremonies will include student speakers, short comments by a school board member and Superintendent Donald V. Strong, and the presentation of diplomas.

Of the 1,165 graduates, 308 are from South, 330 are from Miner, 325 are from Thomas and 202 are from Rand junior high schools.

Today's 11:30 a.m. school bell signals the start of summer vacation for all 9,760 students in the district.

Library Expansion Plan To Get Under Way Soon

The planning committee of the Arlington Heights Memorial Library Board will meet during the coming month to start serious planning for a library expansion program.

"Even according to our 10-year book purchasing program, which I consider to be quite conservative, we will need more room by 1975," said Charles Edwards, chairman of the planning committee, at Tuesday night's meeting.

The board also approved a hike of 2.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation to mirror a $165,555 increase in the 1973-74 levy budget. The library tax rate, which is now .173, will be increased to an estimated .1984.

"Most of the increase will be used to buy books," said Treas. Roland Ley. "Our book fund, which will contribute $55,000 worth of books this year, will run out."

The cash budget this year was $65,000 worth of books. Next year, the levy budget shows $135,000 for books.

ANOTHER ITEM which raises the total levy budget is $30,000 for a proposed bookmobile.

A bookmobile is the start of a library expansion program, which could include expansion of the present facilities, or the construction of a branch library.

In preliminary discussion Tuesday night, some board members felt that a satellite library or even extensive use of a bookmobile would dilute the collection of the library.

"Dividing up the book collection could be detrimental to the library," said Charles Edwards. "We would probably have to duplicate some fairly expensive collections."

ROLAND LEY called for setting out needs of the library then hiring a professional consultant to look further into expansion possibilities.

Nicol and Nicol, Inc., architects and engineers, which designed the present building said "preliminary investigation indicates that expansion could most easily be accomplished by extending the building to the west, over the present parking area."

A study by Nicol and Nicol, Inc. will cost between $2,500 and $3,500, according to the firm's preliminary estimates.

According to Harold Ard, executive librarian, evidences of the lack of space already show in that:

—PRESCHOOL storytelling sessions must be divided into two groups.

—There is a lack of seating available for patrons on some evenings and Sunday afternoons.

—The audio-visual department is at near capacity for records and films.

—The use of bottom shelves was started June, 1971, and the use of top shelves in the adult department was started in June, 1972.

—There is no available space for additional shelving without the removal of much-needed tables and chairs.

THE $1.4 MILLION building which was completed in 1968, was designed to hold 150,000 books, and have facilities to accommodate a population of 80,000. At the present time there are 137,000 books in the library.

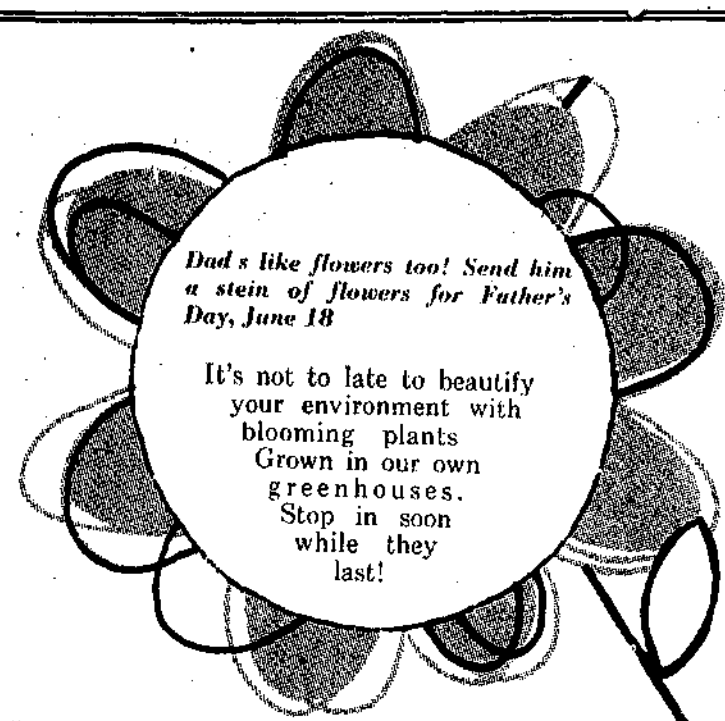

The library board also voted to increase vacation time for department heads and professional librarians to three instead of two weeks, after one year of service.

New carpeting in the Dunton Room and kitchen will be installed on June 28.

Olympic Park pool in Arlington Heights will be closed for public swimming Friday night.

The pool will be used that night for an orientation program for life guards and other park district personnel who will be taking new jobs when the pools open Saturday.

Paramedic Bill To Get Second Reading Today

The bill enabling specially trained firemen and ambulance attendants to render emergency treatment is expected to come before the Illinois House today for a second reading.

The bill, handled by Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, and Rep. David J. Rogner, R-Mount Prospect, was introduced into the House on Tuesday. It was passed last week by the Illinois Senate.

Schlickman said yesterday the bill ordinarily would have been assigned to the House Public Welfare Committee, but was not because the committee has no more hearings scheduled in this session of the General Assembly.

Instead, he said he will move today to advance the bill to a second reading on the floor without a committee hearing.

Suspension of the House rules allowing a second reading without committee hearings would require 89 votes, the same number necessary to pass a bill.

IF THE second reading is permitted, the third reading and voting on the bill would take place at a later date.

The bill has the support of Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie.

It is designed to allow paramedics to administer drugs and certain treatment under the supervision of a physician without fear of liability.

A network to provide this emergency care is being set up at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights to serve surrounding communities.

Expected to participate in the network are Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Hoffman Estates, Inverness, Mount Prospect, Palatine, Rolling Meadows and Schaumburg.

clean in Arlington Heights and plans to look into possible air pollution from private incinerators, and check the feasibility of setting up an automotive check center.

The subcommittee would also like to sample village air to find out how clean it really is.

"An antipollute-mobile for air testing has been developed by the Clean Air Coordinating Committee of the TB Institute, and we've asked that it take tests of the village air," Mrs. Hanson said.

Program Slated On Pool Maintenance

The village health department will host a special evening program on swimming pool maintenance beginning at 8 p.m. June 21.

Roy Drzywoski of the Cook County Health Department's swimming pool program and Gerre Gottschalk, owner of the Recreation Supply Co. will give short talks on swimming pool management.

A movie will give pool owners tips on swimming pool maintenance and health safety. A question and answer period is also part of the evening program.

Residents with backyard swimming pools or professional pool operators are invited to attend the program which will be held in the health department offices in the basement of the Municipal Building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

Air Pollution Seen Of Little Concern

According to a citizen turnout at an air pollution hearing held Tuesday, pollution of air in Arlington Heights is far from a major concern to residents.

Only four people turned out at the hearing, held by the air pollution subcommittee of the Environmental Control Commission. All of them attended out of curiosity and to lend support, not to complain.

Citizens attending the meeting were Ann Slauka, president of the Chamber of Commerce; Rodney Houck of the Berkeley Square Civic Assn.; John Strack, ecology teacher at Arlington High School; and Virginia McDonald, Republican candidate for the 3rd congressional district.

"I had hoped more citizens would turn out," said Jean Hanlon, chairman of the subcommittee, who sent out about 50 invitations to the meeting. "I guess there's no visual reason to be concerned about air pollution here, and our village is relatively free of air pollution compared to some areas of Chicago."

The subcommittee aims to keep air were charged with possession of marijuana.

Timin was also charged with possession of controlled substances (amphetamines and barbiturates) and Orce, who police said had a .25-caliber automatic pistol, was charged with unlawful use of a weapon.

Levy said of the raid, in which $25,000 worth of drugs were seized: "We have just gotten one cog. They (MEG officers) have been tracing the thing right down the line."

HE ADDED that drugs will still be available in the area but he said "one of the major sources" has been shut down with the raid.

Teachers Accept Pay Pact

by CAROL RIIYNE

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 teachers have accepted a new contract for next year which would mean an average 6.8 per cent pay hike for the more than 525 teachers in the district.

Neither side would comment officially on the exact amount, but the salary raise reportedly included a 2.8 per cent increase in the base pay plus a 4 per cent increment based on education and years of experience. This would mean starting teacher pay with no experience would be about $8,047 with top scale pay at $16,942.

Members of the Teacher's Council overwhelmingly accepted the proposed contract with 290 teachers voting to approve the tentative agreement, six voting no and one abstaining.

In a joint statement the Teachers' Council and the Board of Education said the package allowed for a cost-of-living increase and other changes in working conditions but declined to elaborate until the school board had given its approval. Board approval is expected during their regular meeting on Monday.

OTHER PROVISIONS of the new contract reportedly allowed for a duty-free lunch period and changes in maternity and insurance benefits.

Tom Dresser, chief negotiator for the teachers, said the settlement was reasonable but he was not overjoyed: "Considering the economic times, I'm pleased with it (contract)," Dresser said. "The non-money portion of the agreement is very good to excellent. Concerning the money, it is difficult to expect much more considering the financial difficulties of the district."

Site Of Girl's Injury

Algonquin-Seymour Site For Traffic Lights OKd

The City of Des Plaines has received permission from the Illinois Division of Highways to install traffic control signals at Algonquin Road and Seymour Avenue, near the scene of a recent auto accident which injured a 14-year-old Des Plaines girl.

In announcing the state decision yesterday, Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel said the signal lights would be installed soon after the June 19 city council meeting, if aldermen approve use of motor fuel tax funds for the project.

He also announced that, as a temporary measure, the city will supply crossing guards at the intersection of Algonquin and Seymour, to protect children using Friendship Park, at Janis and Algonquin, and St. Zachary's School, 567 Algonquin Road.

CROSSING GUARDS will work from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. weekdays and from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturdays, the mayor said.

Behrel also indicated, in a letter to aldermen, that state permission to install the lights had been prompted by city protests following the injury of the teenager last Thursday.

However, state officials told the Herald yesterday that the agency had already conducted several traffic surveys and had decided to permit installation of the lights before the accident. Only negotiations over who should pay for the lights had remained before public announcements were to be made, the officials said.

In his letter, Behrel wrote the city has "tried very diligently to convince the Highway Division of the State of Illinois to permit the installation. . . Repeatedly, we were turned down; either traffic count or pedestrian crossing movements did not warrant installation of the signals."

"On Thursday evening, June 8th at approximately 7:47 p.m. a 14-year-old girl was struck in the proximity of the intersection and seriously injured."

Mary Ellen Jakubec, 950 Horne Terrace was hit by an auto on the 400 block of Algonquin. She was taken to Holy Family Hospital with a broken arm and fractured pelvis. She was listed in good condition yesterday.

Behrel said he and State Rep. David Regner, R-Mount Prospect, "immediately" began to contact highway division officials in Chicago and Springfield.

"I AM HAPPY to report, that, by approximately 2 p.m. Friday afternoon, June 9, we had received verbal approval from the Highway Division for the installation of the traffic control signals by the City of Des Plaines out of our allocation of motor fuel taxes," the mayor said.

Behrel then ordered City Engineer Robert Bowen to begin planning for the traffic signal installation, and instructed the police department to provide crossing guards.

Sigmund Ziejewski, Chicago regional transportation engineer for the state highway division, said that final traffic surveys had been made either "last Thursday, Friday, or Monday," and that the division had decided signals are needed.

According to George Richter, north area operations engineer, for the state division, the decision to allow traffic signals on the state road had been reached before the accident, but funds for the installation were not available in the present year's budget.

When the city agreed to pay for the installation, the state approved it, he indicated.

Ald. Alan Abrams (8th) said yesterday that traffic on Algonquin has become "bumper to bumper" since May when Dempster-Thacker Street was closed for widening. Another alternate east-west route, the Northwest Tollway, is being repaved and Oakton Street is also closed west of Mount Prospect Road.

The danger to children has increased, and will become even worse, because of the creation of Friendship Park and the opening of Friendship Junior High, an Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 school, scheduled for 1973, according to Abrams.

THREE SIXTH GRADERS from North School in Des Plaines took one of six national awards for their tape recording, "The Week That Changed the World, or, How I learned to Love the Chinese," satirizing President Nixon and his recent trip to China. The winners, from left, Neal Steinkin, Barry Sopkin and Brian Cox, were given award certificates and the school will receive a new tape recorder in their honor.

Dr. Middleton Contends The War Not Yet Lost

by ROGER CAPETTINI

Despite receiving a major setback in the Criminal Court Tuesday, Des Plaines physician James G. Middleton said yesterday, "The war is not lost — not by a long way."

The "war" the doctor refers to is his attempt to have his conviction on charges of aggravated battery and deviate sexual assault overturned.

An eight-man, four-woman jury found him guilty Feb. 3 of drugging one of his former woman patients and then committing a deviate sexual act to her. On Feb. 25 Judge Robert J. Downing sentenced the doctor to 5 to 10 years in prison. Dr. Middleton, 46, of 939 S. Elmhurst Rd., Des Plaines, has been allowed to remain free on $25,000 bond.

The doctor's latest attempt to win his freedom failed Tuesday when Judge Downing denied a defense motion which charged the prosecutor in the case, James Kavanaugh, knew some of the evidence used against the doctor was false.

In an exclusive interview with the Herald yesterday, Dr. Middleton said he and his lawyer, Sam Adam, are investigating the possibility of having the case changed to a different jurisdiction.

DR. MIDDLETON said Tuesday night he was "surprised" with the judge's finding that there is no evidence of any premeditation, nor any indication there has been a conspiracy working against the doctor.

Referring to that ruling, Dr. Middleton said yesterday, "That confirms my opinion this matter is being handled in a manner so biased it is impossible to obtain an unbiased judicial examination." He said for that reason, he will seek to have the case switched to a court outside Cook County.

The former CIA agent said he feels there may be some kind of political pressure on Judge Downing that may have "warped" his judicial judgment. The doctor said if that is the case it might be difficult to find any judge in Cook County who would not be subject to the same kind of pressure.

The doctor's request for a new trial was based on a late-evening or early-morning telephone call he received from Kavanaugh within hours of the sentencing. Dr. Middleton charged that during the conversation Kavanaugh admitted he knew Lynn Nelson, the state's key witness, had lied under oath. Kavanaugh also said, according to the doctor, that

by KATHERINE BOYCE

"Sayonara, President Nixon. It's been nice having you. I'm glad you didn't bring Agnew. By, bye, Dick."

So goes the song in a prize-winning satirical tape-recording made by sixth graders at North School in Des Plaines. Brian Cox, Barry Sopkin and Neal Steinkin, all from Des Plaines, won one of six national awards from "K-8" magazine for their tape-recorded satire, "The Week That Changed the World, or, How I learned to Love the Chinese."

The tape was written, performed and produced by the trio and the award included a new tape recorder for the school and certificates for the boys. The magazine, an educational journal published in Philadelphia, plans to make a phonograph record of the prize winning tape for its subscribers.

It all started as part of a social studies project for the sixth grade class taught by Peter Salaban. Instead of submitting an outline from the social studies chapter on China, the three boys decided to put on a play depicting China, its people, culture and history.

WHEN MRS. ROSALIND Goodman, school librarian, heard about the play, she suggested that the boys make a tape of it and enter it in the magazine's "Sound Festival" contest.

The script was rewritten adapting its visual humor to an audio format. "We used old radio programs like the Green Hornet as a pattern," said Salaban.

The tape starts with a newscaster announcing the arrival of Nixon's jet to Peking airport. After patiently waiting for China's leader at the Grand Palace, Nixon says, "I've been waiting for Mao for half an hour now, where the chop suey is he?" Finally a rumble is heard in the distance and Nixon exclaims, "A thousand rickshaws! It must be the Chinese rush hour!"

The tape goes on to report a ping pong match between President Nixon and Chairman Mao. "Mao has lost Tibet and the Yellow River. On the other hand, Nixon has lost California, New Jersey, New Hampshire and Spiro Agnew. They really don't know what they're getting do they?"

"How dare you bring me to this inferior piece of rock," says Nixon upon seeing the Great Wall, "The John Hancock is newer than this."

"Yes," replies Mao, "but nobody falls out of the window."

EUGENE WASCO, principal of North School, gave the boys a taste of their own medicine when he told them about the award. He walked into their classroom and gruffly announced that he wanted to see them out in the hall on the double. The boys stood, hands clenched behind their backs, as they lined up in the corridor. Every face in the classroom was turned toward the doorway.

When Wasco told the boys the FBI was there to investigate their criticism of Nixon and Agnew, "We thought we were in for it," said Brian. "I was laughing, Neal was almost in tears and Barry was somewhere in between."

Wasco didn't let them suffer long, though. He announced the award to the school that afternoon.

"Social studies can be a very dull subject," said Salaban. "We like to get away from the routine whenever we can," he said. "I think youngsters are by nature creative. It's amazing what they can do when you give them a chance."

Middleton: War Not Lost--Not By A Long Ways

ne knew there are no drugs which could have produced the effects Mrs. Nelson and other women described.

TESTIFYING TUESDAY. Kavanaugh admitted he made the call but insisted he never made the admissions the doctor alleged. Kavanaugh said he called the doctor because he was afraid the doctor would harm him or his family and therefore wanted to convince Dr. Middleton that he played no part in any such conspiracy.

Under questioning by Asst. State's Atty. Nicholas Motherway, Kavanaugh said he never had any knowledge or belief that the doctor was not guilty of the crimes, that there was any perjury or that the doctor's office had ever been "bugged."

Kavanaugh admitted he told Dr. Middleton he would meet with the doctor anywhere if the doctor would "admit his complicity and take the first step toward mental health."

While being cross-examined by Adam, Kavanaugh repeatedly said he tried, during the conversation, to convince the doctor he was guilty and get him to admit he was guilty.

Kavanaugh also told Judge Downing he learned during the first few minutes of the approximate three-hour conversation that the doctor did not consider Kavanaugh a member of the alleged conspiracy. The judge then asked, "Why then did you continue to talk for so long?" Kavanaugh answered he wanted to convince the doctor of his guilt.

ADAM SAID, in his closing arguments, "This case just ain't right." Reviewing the entire series of events from the doctor's arrest through Tuesday, Adam said, "Any rational being might very well conclude a conspiracy is working against him. This is more than just coincidence. There's more to this than meets the eye."

The defense attorney labeled Kavanaugh's story "inane," and asked why, if Kavanaugh was so fearful of his life, didn't he go to the judge to have the doctor's bond revoked.

Adam charged that Kavanaugh really made the call because he knew the entire case was faulty and wanted to get an admission of guilt to get himself off the hook for prosecuting the case.

"He picked his time," Adam said, "when Dr. Middleton was at the worst moment in his life — when he had just been sentenced to 10 years in prison — in the dead of the night — when he would be most vulnerable to appeal and plead guilty to get himself a lighter sentence."

In closing, Motherway said, "I see everything pointing to the fact this man (Dr. Middleton) is mentally ill. He is a dangerous character. He is a man to be reckoned with and feared."

Motherway said Kavanaugh may have been ill-advised and indiscreet in placing the call, but added, "His only sin was being human and falling victim to his fears."

ADDRESSING HIS remarks to the doctor's allegations, Motherway said, "I'm not sure James Middleton is capable of giving truthful testimony. I'm not sure he didn't hear what he wanted to hear."

Before he ruled against the doctor Judge Downing called Kavanaugh's actions, "highly unusual procedure. It does not establish, per se, any grounds for legal relief, but it does establish improper, unprofessional conduct which brings the adversary system into disrepute."

Yesterday Dr. Middleton criticized Kavanaugh's testimony, saying he felt it impossible for Kavanaugh to claim on one hand he made the call out of fear for his family and on the other hand offer to meet with the doctor anywhere.

"It is equally incompatible to fear me and then continue to provoke me by trying to convince me of my guilt for several hours," the doctor said.

Although he was unhappy with the judge's ruling, Dr. Middleton said he believes Kavanaugh's testimony will benefit the doctor's case in the long run. "Yesterday gave us more ammunition for a reversal," he said. "Kavanaugh is now committed to the transcript of his testimony which makes him either a fool or a liar, and gives greater weight to our position."

The doctor said he still is confident he ultimately will be cleared of all charges against him.

Four Arrested; 35 Pounds Of Marijuana Seized

'Raid Cuts Drug Flow Here'

Police believe the supply of illegal narcotics in the Northwest suburban area was severely cut with Tuesday's raid in Prospect Heights, which netted 35 pounds of marijuana.

According to Lt. Errol Levy of the Cook County Sheriff's Police, undercover investigators who made the raid said the house, at 505 W. Camp McDonald, was the headquarters for a major north suburban wholesale drug ring.

"Drugs will be harder to get in this area without a doubt," Levy said. He said police believe narcotics distributed by the ring were sold primarily to persons under 30 in Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Des Plaines, Buffalo Grove and Wheeling.

There also were four arrests made by the agents of the Metropolitan Enforcement Group (MEG), a cooperative drug investigation force involving sheriff's police and about 20 north suburban police departments.

IN ADDITION TO the marijuana, Levy said the MEG agents also uncovered barbiturates, amphetamines, a hallucinogen called THC and a small quantity of hashish. Agents entered the house about 9 p.m. with search warrants and, according to Levy, the four suspects were dividing bricks of marijuana and packaging it for sale.

Arrested were Jerry Timm, 24, of that address; William E. Orce, 24, and Claire L. Orce, 20, of 19 N. Dryden St., Arlington Heights; and Paul S. Gilman, 21, of 1215 Stratford, Arlington Heights. All were charged with possession of marijuana.

Timm was also charged with possession of controlled substances (amphetamines and barbiturates) and Orce, who police said had a .25-caliber automatic pistol, was charged with unlawful use of a weapon.

Levy said of the raid, in which $25,000 worth of drugs were seized; "We have just gotten one cog. They (MEG officers) have been tracing the thing right down the line."

HE ADDED that drugs will still be available in the area but he said "one of the major sources" has been shut down with the raid.

It is believed that MEG agents had the house under surveillance for some time, but Levy said details of the raid were being held to preserve MEG's effectiveness as an undercover force.

A Niles police sergeant said Gilman is a student, Orce is an auto mechanic and his wife, a waitress. It is unknown if Timm was employed. The men were released on $5,000 bond and the woman on $1,000 bond yesterday.

Lloyds of London is ready to insure my right wrists; my 8 year old has taken the role of my trainer; the 4 year old sits on the back of my bike during exercise time to make sure my rhythm is right; a number of readers are offering their favorite 'how to get in shape' tips.

Place for People volleyball marathon, here I come.

By this time next week I plan to have played a minimum of 8 hours and will be at my desk working again and preparing to go back to the courts at 5 p.m.

This volleyball thing is getting more complex as the time grows near. I keep hoping if I don't think about it everything will go smoothly. Sandwiched in between my hours on the court will be two eight-hour work days, a Des Plaines Herald anniversary party, the goings and coming of three babysitters and a birthday party.

SOMETHING HAS got to be eliminated and it can't be the volleyball. My pledges continue mounting thanks to the generosity of readers and tolerance of friends. As of this writing, the moment I step on the court I will have made $88 (these are outright donations from people who have pledged a set amount no matter how many hours I play). Not counting the $86, my hourly pledges amount to $11.43.

If I don't get another pledge and play my goal of 40 hours, my total dollar value will be $543.20. I won't play less than 20 hours (she said firmly) and at that will make $314.60. And it's all for what I feel is a worthy — super worthy — cause.

The people who deserve the most thanks are you — my sponsors. I hope others will join you before June 21 at 5 p.m. when the first ball is thrown over the net at Immanuel Lutheran School, 832 Lee St. I hope you will come out and watch the fun any time during the 72 hours the ball is in the air.

THANK YOU TO the large and small pledges from the following beautiful people: Joan Rennau, Hank Rennau,

GOT A LITTLE feedback from the "brainless, braless, broad" column on the Equal Rights Amendment. Rep. Thomas Hanahan, D-McHenry, who originated the above phrase to describe any and every female who favored the ERA, replied to my column and a note I sent him with a short handwritten message describing me as a "moroness."

I must, once again, call the illustrious representative on his way with words. There is no such word as "moroness" and even with the passage of the ERA the dictionary would not be changed to include it. The Constitutional Amendment would not change things already equal: i.e. A moron is a moron be he/she male/female.

Also heard from Rep. Robert Juckett, R-Park Ridge, who felt he was unjustly attacked in the column. I assured him that should he desire to explain his position and actions to me I would give him full coverage in this column. When he does, I will.

Deny Parental Pressure Led To Coach's Firing

by LARRY MLYNCZAK

School district officials this week denied that pressure from parents had anything to do with the dismissal of a Maine West High School swimming coach who had led his team to its most successful season ever.

Both William Wuehrmann, Dist. 207 school board president, and Richard Short, school superintendent, said that a letter writing campaign by a small group of parents had nothing to do with the firing of Kent Howenstine, head swimming coach at Maine West.

Wuehrmann, however, admitted the school board gave more weight to letters opposing Howenstine than it did to letters written in his favor, despite the larger number of letters supporting the coach. Board thought the positive letters were "solicited," he said.

Short, who maintained that "parental pressure had nothing to do with this case," acknowledged that letters from parents "pointed towards needs of further reviews of the case." Those reviews resulted in a negative recommendation from Short's administration that led the board to fire Howenstine and later allow him to resign.

THE COACH, whose 1971-72 varsity team posted its best record since Maine West opened in 1959, then accepted the offer to resign and has been hired as swimming coach at a high school in Michigan.

"A majority of the letters were in support of Howenstine," Wuehrmann said. "But those letters did not carry as much weight since, as I understand it, those letters were solicited. The negative letters contributed to Howenstine's evaluation. The school board did not solicit any letters and, besides, we're not running a popularity contest."

Last August, a group of parents who had children in a Des Plaines Park District swimming program taught by Howenstine pressured the park administration in an attempt to get Howenstine fired.

Four parents came before the park board and submitted what they said was a survey of parents whose children were in the program. The survey, which contained negative comments about the coach, did not have any signatures and were discarded, according to Robert Kunkel, director of parks and recreation.

"AT NO TIME did the park board discuss dismissing Howenstine," Kunkel said. "In my opinion, it would have been absolutely wrong for us to fire a man because four people had complaints about him."

In October, Steven Loska, whose wife was one of the parents who came before the park board with complaints about Howenstine, asked in a letter to appear before an executive session of the Dist. 207 School Board, according to Short. The Herald learned that Loska asked to present complaints about Howenstine, who also taught health classes at Maine West.

Short said he met with Loska and they had "a thorough review of the situation." Loska did not meet with the school board in an executive session, Short said. Loska, a member of the Oakton Community College Board of Trustees, has declined to comment on the matter.

Wuehrmann and Short would not divulge information regarding the recommendation made by the administration to deny Howenstine tenure at the school district and in effect fire him.

"THAT INFORMATION is private and I am legally bound not to release it," Wuehrmann said.

Wuehrmann did say that, "human relations problems within (Howenstine's) department was a contributing factor in not granting him tenure." Wuehrmann said other Maine West teachers were asked to evaluate Howenstine as a teacher. "We highly regard the opinions of a teacher's peers," he said.

Wuehrmann said it is standard procedure for co-teachers to evaluate those teachers up for tenure, but Short denied this. "Some teachers may volunteer information, though," Short said.

Asked if Howenstine's co-teachers made evaluations about Howenstine,

Short replied, "That is privileged information."

SHORT said the recommendations are based on evaluations made by the teacher's department chairman, the school's administration and the district's administration.

Ken Olson, Maine West's athletic director and Howenstine's department chairman, has said he supported the coach in meetings with the school's administration.

The school board voted to deny tenure to Howenstine on April 10 in effect firing him. "We didn't want to take the vote. But since we were getting near the deadline, the vote had to be taken. If we have not denied tenure by a certain date, the teacher is given tenure by default," Wuehrmann said.

DARRELL "SKIP" Green is expected to be named head swimming coach for Maine West at the school board meeting Monday. Green has been hired as swimming coach and instructor for the Des Plaines Park District by the park district board. Howenstine was not rehired by the park district since he is moving to Michigan.

"Howenstine is going to make somebody a very, very good swimming coach. There's no quarrel that he is a good coach. To me, the only coach to have is a winning coach. He also has the potential of making a good career for himself as an instructor," said Wuehrmann.

"You will never get the full story because we won't give it to you. The only thing you'll get out of it is sensationalism," the school board president told the Herald.

Lightning Kills Man, Injures 2nd

One man was killed and another seriously injured when they were struck by lightning while working on a construction site in Palatine yesterday afternoon.

Pronounced dead on arrival at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights was Willie Smith, 501 Lake Forest Rd., Highland.

Listed in serious condition was Gary Bellamy, 23, of 300 W. 60th St., Westmont. He was treated for shock and multiple injuries.

Palatine police said the two employees of Ben Pekin Co., Palatine, were working in a hole at the Baybrook apartment construction site on E. Palatine Road when they were hit by the lightning at 3:20 p.m.

Smith's body was taken to the Cook County Morgue.

THE TRAGEDY occurred during a turbulent thunderstorm that swept the area, triggering both power failures and localized flooding in traditional storm trouble spots.

The storm knocked out electrical power, in some cases for several hours, in at least six area towns.

Blackouts ranging from 45 minutes to several hours were reported in parts of Rolling Meadows, Palatine, Arlington Heights, Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates and Mount Prospect, according to Jack Stephens, a Commonwealth Edison Co. spokesman.

The northwest portion of Rolling Meadows and the west central section of Arlington Heights were knocked out by what Stephens called a "feeder lockout." He said lightning hit a power line and tripped a fuse-like safety device in an Arlington Heights power substation, shorting out the line serving those areas.

Power lines were reported down in several towns, including three in Palatine, four in Hoffman Estates and two in Schaumburg.

MOST OF the service interruption occurred in two main power corridors, one through southwest Palatine, Hoffman Estates, Rolling Meadows and central Arlington Heights.

The other main area of disruption followed a path through southern Schaumburg and southwest Mount Prospect.

Most of the power interruptions occurred between 3:45 and 5:15 p.m., according to Stephens. He said an estimated 3,000 customers scattered around the area had electrical service interrupted by the storm.

The storm also contributed to a seven-car accident on Rte. 53 between Northwest Highway and Euclid Street. Early police reports indicated there were no serious injuries.

Bank Fete To Turn Clock Back To '13

The First National Bank of Des Plaines will stage a huge 1913-style free Fun Fair Saturday July 8, to celebrate the bank's 60th year in business.

According to Arthur Weiss, bank president, the celebration, open free to everyone, will be held from 12:30 p.m. to 5 p.m. at the southwest corner of Graceland and Prairie avenues in downtown Des Plaines.

Visitors will enjoy a variety of entertainment, highlighted by TV personality Chief White Eagle, and including Les Marshall's Punch and Judy Show; Bill Sweeney, the clown-ventriloquist and his pal Cornelius; plus Jimmy Gross and his Dixieland band, Weiss said.

A circus tent will be set up on the bank parking lot at Prairie and Graceland and visitors will receive free pop corn, soft drinks, cotton candy and balloons made to order in the shape of animals by Doodles, the strolling clown.

AN OLD-FASHIONED hand-pump fire wagon will also be on display under the supervision of the Des Plaines Fire Department.

Chief White Eagle, who will autograph pictures and discuss past and present Indian culture, has performed in numerous television programs and is well known for his previous role as Indian Chief in the ABC series "The Americans," according to the bank.

Weiss said the celebration is being staged "in appreciation to the many residents and business establishments in the Des Plaines area who have helped, over the past 60 years to make First National a banking leader in the Northwest suburban community."

Famous Fairways Fall To Industry

Golf Greens Turn To Truck Tracks

by DOUG RAY

It's called the Tam O'Shanter Industrial Parkway, at least in name, a remembrance of the world famous golf course that once hosted the finest players in the world.

Today trucks rumble over the formerly manicured fairways and concrete parking lots replace the acres of green.

The late George May's Tam O'Shanter Golf Course in Niles now is an industrial park.

That golf course isn't the only one which has disappeared from the suburban landscape. Several others, although none as famous as Tam O'Shanter, vanish from the suburbs every year, some supplanted by industries and others with housing developments.

—Palatine's Pebble Creek Golf Course is the site for high rise apartment buildings.

—About half of the Old Orchard Country Club Golf Course in Mount Prospect will be developed with townhouses.

—The former Mohawk Country Club in Bensenville is a massive industrial park.

—A housing development will occupy part of the Mission Hills Golf Course east of Wheeling in unincorporated Cook County.

THE LIST OF other abandoned suburban golf courses is lengthy, and developers predict that more will be sold in the future. Their demise is an economic fact of life as land values continue to soar and speculators purchase available sites for future projects.

Land is more scarce and more valuable, said James Sellergren, who purchased the Pebble Creek Golf Course in Palatine to build apartments. "It's just not feasible for golf courses to exist around here anymore. You have to go further out west in McHenry County."

Sellergren's company which is in the process of constructing the first of four high rise apartment buildings, struggled with Cook County and then the Village of Palatine before plans were approved.

Homeowners living adjacent to Pebble Creek fought to save it, citing a loss of market value of their homes if apartments were built there. The objections, however, were to no avail.

Sellergren calls the approval of his project a lesson in the law of supply and demand. The value of the property outweighed the value to play golf. The romance of the golf course isn't enough to justify it economically.

Albert Newman, owner of the Old Orchard Country Club in Mount Prospect, fought for 10 or 12 years to save that golf course. He said the 200-acre site at Euclid Avenue and Rand Road was constantly being sought by developers.

"THEY WANTED the highest and best use where you could build homes or apartments," Newman recalled.

Newman finally conceived a development of his own to make it practical to continue with the golf course. He plans to build townhouses on about half of the property with the golf course in the center, also projecting a hotel and office buildings there at a later date.

Townhouses enhance the value of my land, he said, "with people buying frontage on the golf course." He called the project "the best of both worlds and a way to save my investment."

But Newman projects a bleak future for many Northwest suburban golf courses. "The public fee course is tightly budgeted and the land keeps going up in value... it's difficult to make a decision."

HIS DECISION to continue for at least 50 years the Old Orchard Golf Course (a part of the townhouse agreement), "was because I felt I had a commitment. I've been operating out here for 20 years... but some other owners won't feel that way."

Marshall Dann, an official with the Western Golf Association in Golf, Ill., said he has noted "two or three golf courses every year are being lost," because of land purchases by developers. "There's nothing much we can do about it," he said, although the association will advise local golf course owners who want to save their facilities.

He said the best opportunity for the continued existence of golf courses is "if the municipality could take over and keep it green for the public. The value is in the green area."

Several communities have taken over golf courses for public use, including Mount Prospect which has a village course operated by the park district. Voters approved a referendum to buy the course that "now pays for itself," said a park district official.

WILMETTE VOTERS last week supported a referendum to purchase a golf course from Northwestern University. The course will be operated by the village.

And the Village of Northbrook has salvaged the Sportsman's Golf Course by selective zoning requirements there. A part of the course will be utilized for single-family and multi-family projects and the golf course will continue to operate.

"One of the things we wanted to do is continue the golf course," said Village

Mgr. Robert Wardau. "The value of the land could be recovered by the small cluster of homes on the golf course," he added.

A SIMILAR PROJECT is under way east of Wheeling in unincorporated Cook County at the Mission Hills Golf Course to make it feasible to continue the golfing operation. "That one also is a low density multi-family plan with the stipulation that the golf course continues," Wardau said.

But the most famous of the Chicago area golf courses to be sold, Tam O'Shanter, was doomed when all the land around became commercially developed. "It was inevitable that we would buy it sooner or later," said a spokesman for the J. Anderson Co., which purchased the course. "We owned the land all around it."

The firm leases only a portion of the former golf course to the Niles Park District, while the bulk of the property rapidly is filling with tenants in the Tam O'Shanter Industrial Parkway.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: We moved last year from one city to another and the most annoying thing has been the mistakes made in our monthly charges. While I occasionally saved the charge slips in the past I never realized how important it is now with the computer in charge. We now save every slip — for either charge or credit — until the monthly bill comes around. — Mrs. Lewis S.

You're wise. The computer is the most advanced way of doing business and inevitable, but it has to be fed by humans and, therefore, is subject to human error. The wise homemaker does what you do — saves all bills — and canceled checks, too.

Dear Dorothy: Since I always save the plastic containers that contain ice cream comes in, I was glad to have one handy when I wanted to spread some grass seed. I punched holes in the lid (like a saltshaker top), put the seed in the container, put the lid on tight, then shook the container "saltshaker fashion" over the yard. I found the grass seed spreads pretty evenly — at least much more so than trying to do it by hand. — Mrs. Clifford Abraham.

It's always good to hear from other pack rats on how they use their treasures. Inasmuch as I like to make a big pot of vegetable soup when I get around to it, these plastic containers have proved ideal for freezing the soup. All one needs to do is leave an inch on top for expansion.

Dear Dorothy: When you have white left over from dinner, can it be used in cooking at a later date? — Julia G.

Absolutely. While sherry keeps well almost indefinitely after being opened, other wines do not, so use them up as soon as possible.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to Dorothy Ritz in care of Suburban Living, Padlock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

The Potting Shed

Bad year for mosquitoes you say?

The mosquitoes at my house are so big they need a runway to take off. And it's pretty hard to garden when a person has to fight off an army of mosquitoes and plant the transplants at the same time.

Before I tell you how to get relief from what's bugging you, listen to what happened hereabouts last week:

I was having some difficulty sleeping three nights in a row. I kept waking up to the buzz of mosquitoes joining me in bed. I had more bumps than an Osage orange. The books says there are more than 2,000 kinds of mosquitoes, and 150 of them live in the United States. Correction: 150 kinds live in my neighborhood.

ON THE FOURTH day of combat, the mosquitoes became so unbearable I moved from room to room to do my work. When I finally holed up in a 2 x 2 back bathroom and they found me there too, I decided it was time to fight back. I found the site of their entrance into my house, through the chimney and vents on the roof. Then I opened the fireplace door and a big, black cloud of mosquitoes attacked.

I don't recommend chemicals, except in extreme emergencies — but this was it. I sprayed the bombardiers with an aerosol, having selected one containing pyrethrin as the main ingredient, (sanctioned by the organic movement). Chlorodane, malathion, DDT — never would I use any of these — indoors or out. Pyrethrin is non-toxic to humans and pets. Even my parakeet was unaffected, although I did remove him to another room anyway. He had just about had it fighting off mosquitoes too.

AFTERWARD, I climbed the chimney and poured 1/2 cup of ammonia down it to fumigate any stragglers, then built a nice fire.

Outdoors to get rid of mosquitoes, so as to garden in peace (peas?), eliminate standing water in gutters, rain barrels, bird baths, old tin cans, lying-around junk. Light a mosquito coil or two on the patio. Believe it or not, I use a mosquito hat — a see-through nylon net I bought at a sporting goods store, which fits easily over any wide-brim hat. Also good for use while fishing, camping, hunting, and you can make one for pennies, too, if you prefer. (Mine cost $1.77, cheap enough.)

The newest gizmo for beating the bugs is an electronic mosquito repeller called "Skeeter Skat," which effectively drives away blood-thirsty female mosquitoes (the harmless males don't bite, you know). When turned "on," it emits a high-pitched buzz which keeps mosquitoes off you. Cost is $10, and company refunds money if it doesn't work for you.

I BOUGHT one since my mosquito encounter (at a sports store) and found it satisfactory for flies, no-see-ums and bees as well.

It's interesting to note that mosquitoes do not really bite (try to convince a victim of that) because they cannot open their jaws. When a mosquito "bites," it stabs through the skin with six needlelike parts called stylets, which form the center of the proboscis. As the stylets enter the skin, the mosquito's lower lip bends and slides out of the way and his saliva flows into the wound to keep the victim's blood from clotting. We victims get our itchy welts because most of us are allergic to the saliva.

Happy hunting!

Collecting Coins

by Mort Reed

When the auctioneer's hammer rapped for the last time during the sale of Armand Champ's famous rare and scarce coin collection last month, new record-breaking prices had been set for some already highly valued specimens of United States coins. The two-day sale surpassed all expectations in competitive floor bidding.

Of particular interest was an exciting moment during the disposition of United States gold specimens. The coin on the block was the beautiful and extremely rare (only 10 were ever struck) 1879 coiled hair $4 gold Stella, a gold coin composition struck as a pattern piece only in 1879 and 1880.

The first bid of $23,000 was submitted through the mail, and announced by the auctioneer. This prompted a floor bid of $24,000, and it was obvious that from there on the sky would be the limit.

The $24,000 offer was immediately followed by two offers of $28,000, $27,000 was bid from the floor only to be followed by a shout of $28,000. Just when everything was beginning to quiet down, an offer of $29,000 was made by a dealer who had traveled a very long distance just to acquire this individual piece. After two warnings at $29,000 the bidding closed on the $4 gold Stella, and an entirely new trend had been set in gold market values.

A SUPERB Uncirculated specimen of an 1876 CC (Carson City) 20 cent piece once owned by the noted composer Jerome Kern, brought an immediate floor bid of $24,000, without any urging from the auctioneer. Only 10,000 pieces of this particular date were struck in Carson City, and while this is only 5,000 less than the number struck in 1876 at Philadelphia, the difference of $23,800 in value may be attributed to most of the CC specimens being unaccounted for.

Information on this and all future sales to be conducted by the American Auction Association, may be obtained by writing Mr. James F. Ruddy, American Auction Association, Suite 810, 6922 Hollywood Boulevard, Hollywood, California 90028.

Vision Screening Seminar Is Slated

Holy Family Hospital June 19-23 will host a seminar for nurses and technicians certified by Illinois Public Health Department to do vision screening of school age children.

Sponsored jointly by Suburban Low Incidence Development of Exemplary Services (SLIDES), Illinois Public Health Department, and the Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness, the seminar will provide the certified vision screeners with recent information on eye health and safety, educational and community resources for children's eye health, and educational programs for children with visual limitations.

Representatives from the eye professions, state and local education offices and community services are speaking. A feature of the week is a tour of two nationally recognized agencies providing eye care and services to the visually handicapped — the Illinois Eye and Ear Infirmary and the Illinois Institute for Visually Handicapped.

Do-It-Yourself

You would think that with the popularity of air conditioning, especially by way of one-room units, that the electric fan would be obsolete.

It isn't.

If anything, fans come in a wider variety of models, in sizes that vary from tiny desk models to giant exhaust fans that will empty an entire house of its stale air in minutes.

Not everyone wants air conditioning and not everyone needs it. In moderate climates a fan will provide all the relief you need from the heat.

Use portable fans to give quick comfort in a small area. For larger areas consider exhaust fans. There are small window mounted units or big ones that can be placed in the ceiling. Installed and used properly, they can move cool air through an entire house.

THE EXHAUST fan is used throughout the night when outside air is cooler and is used to replace the warm inside air.

Once the house is cooled off in the morning, the fan is turned off and window shades and windows are kept closed on the sunny side of the house. The idea is slow up the heating process until night rolls around again and you can pump more cool air in again.

Most people can make do with window fans. The fan is placed in an open window. Sometimes the removal of a window unit is required.

Don't put the fan just anywhere. Best place is an upstairs window on the sunny side of the house. Open a window on the shady side so that you replace hot air with cool air.

Windows adjacent to the fan must be closed. Leaving them open will short circuit the air, moving it from the window next to the fan right through the fan without ever moving the air through the house.

ATTIC FANS are bigger and more efficient. Install the fan high in a central location so that it draws air through the whole house.

There must be exhaust openings in the attic. These can be in the roof, gable ends or under the eaves. You may have to put in a special louver. Openings should be screened.

Whatever fan you use, keep doors and windows on the lower level of the house open during the night. This allows cool air to enter to replace the warm air that is being exhausted.

Stamp Notes

by Bernadine M. Rechner

A new U.S. souvenir card honoring Belgium '72 (the international philatelic exposition) will be available for distribution in Brussels when the exposition opens June 24. The card will also be available in the United States after that date for $1 each, by mail, from Belgica Cards, Philatelic Sales Unit, Washington, D.C. 20036.

Three stamps are simulated on the card, each with a Belgian affinity. These are the flag of Belgium in the over-run nations series of 1943, the 1958 stamp which shows the U.S. pavilion at the Universal and International Exhibition in Brussels, and the Gen. George S. Patton Jr. commemorative of 1953. Belgium has issued a stamp honoring Patton.

The text of the card is a brief commemoration of the exhibition and a description of the three stamps and is printed in Flemish and French over the Postmaster General's signature.

If the cards are ordered separately from the above address, the usual service charge will be waived.

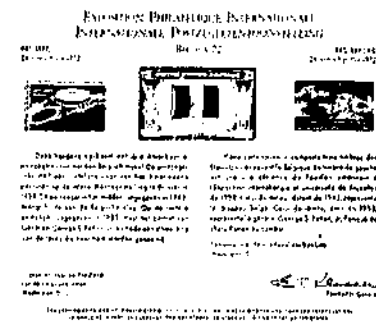

FIRST DAY COVER service is available from The Washington Stamp Exchange, Maplewood, N.J. 07040, engravers of Artcraft cachets. They will service U.S. and U.N. covers for you or sell you the cachets if you prefer to service them yourself.

Canadian covers on Rosecraft cachets are available serviced or unserviced from Rosecraft Covers Ltd., Box 402, Ottawa, Canada K1N 8V4.

U.S. and U.N. covers can be obtained from Artmaster, P.O. Box 7156, Louisville, Ky. 40207 either serviced or unserviced on Artmaster cachets.

Write to the individual dealers for prices.

OUR THANKS to Mount Prospect Postmaster Theodore Geocaris for some interesting information brought out in a recent U.S. Postal Service survey.

The survey found twice as many people add to their collections by buying stamps from post office than from hobby shops, stamp stores and dealers.

"The conclusion can be drawn that U.S. stamps enjoy greater popularity over foreign stamps than had been believed. However, the margin is not necessarily 2 to 1 because many stamp dealers also sell U.S. stamps," Geocaris said.

Conducted to obtain statistics on stamp collectors, the survey found that male collectors outnumber females 8 to 5. The 15 to 24 year old age group led with 16 per cent. The figures dip to 10 per cent for the 25-34 year old group, advance to 14 per cent for those 35-44 and to 15 per cent for those 45-54. Only 8 per cent of the collectors are 55 to 64 years of age.

The number of collectors between the ages of 15 and 64 was found to be 16 million with the New York City metropolitan area having the highest concentration of collectors in the nation.

Sport's Mystique And The 72nd United States Open

by MURRAY OLDERMAN

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. — (NEA) — The romantic mystique of sport is getting harder to maintain. Like who cares which horse really won the Kentucky Derby. Baseball is not a bucolic exercise but a turgidly run business on plastic fields. The July 500 is not for the betterment of machine and exaltation of speed but a debris-strewn quest for the buck.

The mystique is artificially re-inflated by the aura of the traditional event, like the one coming up on us now. The 72nd renewal of the United States Open Golf tournament. At glamorous Pebble Beach in view of the ocean. With Jack Nicklaus still hot on the trail of the holy grail. The Grand Slam of golf. Which never has really been achieved in pure, modern form (Bobby Jones won the amateur version thereof).

It does give Nicklaus personal, contrived motivation since he has already won the Masters, and the PGA and the British Open but beyond if he can jump this hurdle. From a self-satisfaction viewpoint there's no doubt Jack desires the Slam but sometimes we wonder if it isn't equally important for him to pick up his annual $200,000 in prize money on the tour; this frees him for his other avocations, like fishing and tennis.

And to the other pros, the Open is beginning to merge into the prize blob of more than $6 million. After all, there are 11 regular tour events in the year which are worth more in total loot.

"We're always playing for a $20,000 to $50,000 first prize," emphasizes Frank Beard. "And I'm playing the same bunch of opponents 30 times a year. The public has been brainwashed that the site is automatically great just because it's the U.S. Open. There's no guarantee that the title will be won by a great player."

Ah yes, there, Orville Moody. Some of us remember you well. More remember Sam Park and Tony Manero of another vintage. A generation ago singular episodes were magnified for lifetimes. For example Fred Merkle failed to touch a base and never was allowed to forget it. But Willie Davis in modern times made three errors in one World Series inning and it has left no psychic trauma in him. We're in a much more cynical, or maybe relevant, age.

We are still, however, prone to exaggerate. Take, for instance, the image of Nicklaus as the gigantic boomer of golf balls. Jack does hit the ball a long way. So does Bob Lunn. Because, when he came along, Jack had an ample posterior and weighed around 220 pounds, there was a general notion that his power came from his size. The current Nicklaus is not a big man at all. He has trimmed down to 186 pounds. He's an inch and a half shy of six feet. He wouldn't make a pro football scout blink. Yet he's still the greatest golfer in the world. It emphasizes touch as the paramount quality in golf.

Nicklaus gets his from supreme concentration. Lee Trevino, who won the Open last year, uses an air of insouciance to blot out the pressures of championship golf.

They're the favorites at Pebble Beach because they're mentally gathered together to function well in a dramatic setting such as the Open. Nicklaus is quoted at 6-1, Trevino at 8-1. You don't hear about Arnie Palmer, the darling of the 1960s, because the years have eroded the swagger which enabled him to dominate a field.

A man's only as good as the last time he won, which also reduces the mystique of sport.

Fun, Chance In Buying A Rural Home

by LEA TONKIN

Making the transition from city slicker to country folk can be a rewarding experience. Millions of Americans are making the great escape to a golden years retirement home, a weekend Shangri-la or a working farm.

Although some of the "escapees" do not build a permanent residence at their country retreat, the boom in second homes tells part of the story. Last year, according to the National Association of Home Builders, 95,000 second, or vacation, homes were built in the U.S. The figure is expected to reach 180,000 by 1980.

This land rush is boosting the prices for rural property. Yet even the most determined and sophisticated seeker of a tranquility in the boondocks needs a working knowledge of the nitty-gritty in buying country property, contends real estate man, banker and builder, Irving Price.

Leafing through a catalog of rural properties in the market or drives through the countryside won't be much help when it comes time to translate your fantasied country estate into reality. Price warns. There are pitfalls and pleasures in the purchase of country property, he warns.

Price is currently on a cross-country tour to promote his new book, "Buying Country Property." In an interview last week, he discussed the growing interest in rural properties and the need for sound consumer information in this area.

He'll offer an easy smile and a handshake to anyone interested in chatting about the "country way." Born and raised on a fruit and dairy farm in upstate New York, Price will reminisce about his memories of early rising, berry-picking and simply enjoying the outdoors.

AS A 25-YEAR veteran of the real estate industry and president of Hudson Michael Realty, Inc., in New York, Price is excited at the prospect of booming trade in country properties. Yet he is amused at the willingness of many urban dwellers to buy a home in the sticks without taking precautions to insure the investment.

His tell-it-like-it-is approach to land investment in the country offers counsel for would-be country gentlemen. Too many couples looking for a retirement or vacation home have been financially and physically unprepared for this way of life, he warns.

Would your average realty super-salesman fill you in on the real meaning behind those catchy ads for country homes? Price maintains that disclosure of the drawbacks as well as the attractions of country property is part of the salesman's responsibility.

He's good-naturedly compiled a glossary of terms in touting rural real estate. For example a "country kitchen" could mean four walls and an old sink; "good drainage" might well be a big ditch; "amenities" could indicate electric lights; and nearby cultural center might mean a Grange hall with a bulletin board, Price said.

Getting down to the serious business of buying a place in the country, Price laments the tendency of many families to invest in rural property hundreds of miles from home without so much as a visual inspection. The family of limited means would be better off investing in property close to home they can enjoy as a weekend retreat, he says, rather than investing in out-of-state property.

Buying country property solely as a means of amassing a fortune involves more know-how than the average buyer can muster, according to Price. True, the value of many country properties has risen substantially over the years, but appraisals can also swing downward, he said.

THE HARDY soul who'd like to save a few dollars in commissions to seek out country properties unassisted, should beware the pitfalls of the business, Price says. He advises potential country dwellers to seek out and befriend a local real estate professional, a reputable "country" attorney with a knowledge of area real estate practices and a local banker.

RARE GEM OR A ramshackle ruin? It's all in your way of looking at things. According to real estate man

Only through careful investigation can the buyer of rural property be assured that his country estate materializes, according to Price. This means the documentation of a safe, adequate supply of water; certification of adequate sewage disposal system; certified land survey to protect your investment; and title insurance.

The antiquated land assessment practices in many rural areas can and should be investigated, Price warns. If a property is sold for the first time in many years the property taxes could skyrocket. Inadequate zoning can also pave the way for deterioration of a country area, he said. The cost of installing utilities in rural areas can be high.

Financing is another subject to be studied carefully, Price advises. Banks may not be willing to finance unimproved property so alternate means may be used.

Additional considerations confront the buyer of lakeside property, warns Price. And a good way to break up a friendship is to buy a country property in partnership with other families, he adds.

THE AMERICAN Dream of going "back to the land" for your daily bread can turn into the American nightmare, he cautions. Price has talked with many professionals in other fields who wanted to take up full-time farming. Those who go into the business without a knowledge of the hazards are often in serious financial condition within a short time, he said.

He'll tell you about the idiosyncrasies of country folk. In Price's mind the charm of country homes and people far

Veterans' News

Q—MY PRESENT husband has adopted my daughter whose father died from injuries suffered in World War II. Does this make her ineligible for schooling under VA's Dependents' Educational Assistance program?

A—No. Adoption does not affect her eligibility which is based on her father's death from service-connected causes.

Q—EVEN though I have been married six years, my husband, a World War II veteran, still carries his mother as beneficiary on his GI insurance policy. Can VA change it so I will be the beneficiary?

A—No. VA must pay the proceeds of GI insurance to the beneficiary named by the veteran.

Q—WILL THE Army furnish a memorial marker to be put in a private cemetery for my son who was lost at sea during World War II military service?

A—Yes. Application forms for memorial markers are available at all VA offices, and should be mailed to the Office of the Chief Support Services, Department of the Army, Washington, D.C.

Q—I'D LIKE to apply for a certificate of eligibility for a GI loan, but I lost my DD-214 Armed Forces Report of Transfer or Discharge. What should I do?

A—VA will accept a legible copy of an original discharge or release from active duty. If a copy is not available, any VA office will supply an application form for requesting a replacement from your military department.

Q—MY HUSBAND, a veteran, is in a nursing home for a condition not related to military service. Will VA pay for his nursing home care?

A—No. VA is permitted to provide nursing home care only for a limited time for such veterans who have received maximum benefits from VA hospitalization. There is no time limit for veterans who were hospitalized primarily for service-connected conditions.

Special Education Scores In Assembly

Special education legislation scored one of the biggest victories in the Illinois General Assembly this session.

While a series of education bills died in committee or were defeated on the floor, the special education legislation soared through both houses.

John Wightman, director of the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization (NSSEO), attributes the bill's success to a "good parent lobby." They can get support 2,000 strong to the legislature within two hours.

Two bills in particular are expected to be a bonus to local schools. House Bill 4366 grants districts a state reimbursement of $2,000 per child if the district provides "extraordinary special education services for handicapped children."

Dwyer School, for children with severe emotional problems falls into the classification of extraordinary services, according to Wightman. The school, located in Arlington Heights, is operated by a cooperative of eight school districts.

Dwyer School has had to rely heavily on local district funds, said Wightman. "The extra state money may allow us to admit more children in the Dwyer program."

The second bill, House Bill 4328, offers state reimbursement for special education programs extended over a full year. Wightman said he plans to recommend that Dwyer School and the Kirk Center, a school for the physically handicapped, be put on a 12-month schedule.

A pair of bills lowering the minimum age of children eligible for special education from 5 to 3 years has produced mixed reaction. House Bills 322 and 323 allows parents concerned about the development of a 3 or 4-year-old to take him to a district for testing. If the tests reveals the child has a problem, he will be placed in a special education class.

SOME SCHOOL officials are concerned the new legislation, effective July 1, will bring a flood of 3 and 4-year-olds to their door. To accommodate the influx, NSSEO has set aside two classes in an Arlington Heights school. The children will also be placed at Dwyer School and the Kirk Center.

Finally, House Bill 4156 grants $2,000 in tuition for every child who must attend a private special education facility. Local districts are already taking advantage of the grant, which was optional in the past.

The Lighter Side

by Dick West

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "How does Henry do it?" someone always asks when Henry A. Kissinger shows up at a party with yet another maddeningly beautiful international sex symbol.

The presidential adviser is a handsome devil, sure. Urbane, sensuous, witty and cuddlesome, yes. A snappy dresser and all like that, with charisma to burn. And one of the last of the big spenders.

Besides which he exudes the animal magnetism that always radiates from those who wield vast power.

But how does he get all those girls?

It was Kissinger himself who finally revealed the secret. At a party in Tehran, when a Persian belly dancer went gaga and plopped herself into his lap, Kissinger told all. He said he "spent some time explaining how you convert SS7 missiles to Y-class submarines" under the Strategic Arms Limitation treaty with the Soviet Union.

And now you, too, can be a great lover. For the General Services Administration has published the text of the SALT agreement along with a transcript of Kissinger's explanation of how it works.

ALL YOU HAVE to do is memorize his lines and . . .

The scene is Harvey McAcne's bachelor pad. Soft music. Candlelight. And the girl Harvey has never been able to get to first base with.

He takes her by the hand, gazes deeply into her eyes and says:

"Basically, the Soviet submarines are frozen at the level they now have. Beyond that, however, they are permitted to trade in old missiles and old submarines for new submarines up to a total level of either 62 submarines or 950 missiles."

"You've finally reached first base, Harvey," she sighs, sliding into his lap. "Tell me more."

"Under the formula that we have adopted, the Soviet Union can convert 210 old ICBMs and 30 old submarine-launched missiles into new submarine-launched missiles. In other words, in order to get more submarines, they have to give up 240 old missiles."

"YOU REALLY know how to turn a girl on."

"Now the formula is somewhat complicated by the fact that they have two types of Soviet boats, one with 12 and the other with 16 missiles. So the Soviets have to make a choice of 62 of fewer missiles or lesser boats of more missiles . . ."

"Kiss me, you fool."

In the transcript, Kissinger also explains the U.S. conversion formula, but that part is X-rated.
